A New Transportation. His Majesty's Presents. Wrong Selling and Buying. Farmers and Fertilizers.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN GERMANY, at Hanover, a cigar-shaped car, built like a Zeppelin, running on an abandoned railroad track, driven by a 400-horsepower airplane motor, its propeller hitting against the air, as a steamship's screw hits against the water, carried 40 passengers 100 miles an hour. It can go faster.

The German government makes this experiment, and we, in free America, will be content to shout "paternalism" and borrow the idea, later.

SUCH CARS or other small carrying units, started at short intervals, each making a non-stop trip to its destination, will solve the fast transportation problem for railroads, and solve, also, their problem of motor omnibus competition.

To fasten 10 or more heavy cars together, haul them with innumerable expensive stops, is stupidly wasteful, as this column has occasionally suggested.

RAILROADS HAVE the tracks, the right of way, the possibility of speed that motor buses cannot touch.

If they have brains and energy to discard long trains, especially on suburban runs, substituting small units, each an express, they will pay better dividends, and give better service.

RAS TAFARI, soon to be crowned Emperor of Abyssinia, is receiving compliments, accompanied by gifts from other rulers.

France sends an airplane, built with special care.

Which of these presents do you think will be most highly appreciated by Haile Sallassie, which will be Ras Tafri's official name after his coronation.

The gift from France seems to suggest "Remember that we can come and get you."

That from Hindenburg might mean, "Enjoy yourself, while you may. In Germany, we know that the emperor business has its ups and downs."

LAST WEEK'S stock market closed with lowest averages since the beginning of 1930. The foolish sort of sellers were getting rid of stocks, an excellent sign.

Speculators of a certain type, very numerous, lose hope and get out, throwing stocks overboard just as they reach bottom prices. They buy them back later, when they have gone too high, then hang on awhile, and sell out again at the bottom.

The flight of the timid, indicating that the bottom is not far away, encourages men that hold on.

STOCK BROKERS share their customers' grief. A stock exchange seat sold last Saturday for $245,000. Last year it was worth more than double that sum. Ten years hence, if we are not then in one of our periodical slumps, that seat will be worth close to a million, despite the 40 per cent watering of the seats.

Don't gamble, but gather money together and watch your opportunity to invest. Some stock will sell $400 per share above present prices, before 1940.

WHEN THE President speaks the stock exchange will oblige, if it can. President Hoover told the president and the vice president of the stock exchange what he thought of selling short, thus adding to public worry.

And, suddenly, it has become hard to borrow stocks in Wall Street. Short sellers must borrow what they sell, since they have not got it.

NO ONE KNOWS who sent around the word not to lend stock for short sales.

And no one knows what the result will be. The way of an eagle in the air, a ship in the sea, a serpent on a rock, or a man with a maid is simplicity, compared with stock dealing and finance generally.

Letting nature take its course may be the best plan, in the long run.

A NATION'S wealth comes from the soil and depends on fertility. Fertility depends, largely, on nitrogen. Untold quantities of nitrogen are in the air above us, billions and billions of tons, and science, with the aid of electricity, can bring it down.

Among countries engaged in synthentic nitrogen output, this country stands number nine.

THAT IS NOT a high rank for the richest nation on earth, with industry so highly developed.

Make fertilizers cheaper, the soil richer, and the farmer can get what he needs, covering a smaller area, and he becomes more efficient. One difficulty lies in the fact that organized producers of fertilizer do not want government meddling with their business, and they have more influence, working all year

SNOW HOLDS UP MANY AUTOS

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 20.—Hundreds of automobiles were in snowdrifts in Western New York today, abandoned by tourists who left home in Indian summer.

Snow from nine inches to four feet deep mantled the ground all the way from Buffalo to Erie, Pa. The storm over Lake Erie was accompanied by a gale which drove freighters to shelter.

Autoists who abandoned cars plodded their way to farmhouses in search of food and shelter. The houses soon were overcrowded. Snow plows endeavored to push their way through to them with supplies, urgent appeals having been sent out when the few oper-

20 DEGREES FORECAST TONIGHT

Cold Wave to Stay, Says Brotzman; Man Seeking Shelter Burns to Death

The record October cold wave which gripped the district today will be marked tonight by a heavy frost and a further drop in temperature to 20 or 25 degrees, according to Forecaster William S. Brotzman.

The mercury mounted to 42 late today, about the same as yesterday's maximum.

The unusual frigid spell sent the mercury to an official low of 26 early today, bringing the sting of winter into homes of thousands of poor, covering creeks with ice, and killing late flowers and vegetation.

The minimum of 26 was the lowest temperature recorded on this date, and was five degrees below the previous record of 31 in 1875 and 1895.

BONNIWELL BOLTS TO PINCHOT

Calls Dry Issue Smoke Screen For Public Utilities; Forester 'Incorruptible'

With Western Pennsylvania ringing with political oratory from the camps of the two major parties in the gubernatorial contest these developments were recorded:

1—Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, Philadelphia, twice candidate for governor, avowed anti-dry, declared the wet issue is a smoke screen.

3—A. Mitchell Palmer, Attorney General in President Wilson's cabinet, called on Democrats to support the party nominee.

4—Gifford Pinchot continued his swing through western counties. Democratic nominee, minus Hemphill, opened week's speaking in Bradford. Hemphill, confined at home by illness, will speak tomorrow in Erie.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Party lines continued to break as Pennsylvania's somewhat spectacular gubernatorial campaign entered the next to the last week.

Supporters of both Gifford Pinchot, Republican candidate, and John Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal party nominee, claimed victory for their candidates, but declared that the contest would be hard fought to the finish.

Claims and counter-claims of gains come almost hourly from both camps, and almost as frequently there is an important defection from both sides.

The latest shifts reported in party lines were Judge Eugene C. Bonniwell, of the Philadelphia Municipal Court, twice Democratic candidate for governor, and an avowed anti-dry, who announced for Pinchot, and Mrs. J.

"Baering" Down

On the News With Arthur "Bugs" Baer

Let us have moderation. Only violate one amendment at a time.

Dry Democrats have not made their stand clear. Did they never drink? Or are they sobering up?

In point of capacity four wet Republicans are equivalent to one dry Democrat?

We heard an amazing argument on the business end of a park bench yesterday. A dry orator said between hiccups:

"An amendment is like a banana. When you peel a banana it is peeled, and you cannot repeel it."

When the nation went dry your wet Republican was a man without a country.

It's patriotism with him. He wants his citizenship back.

But we want to say that bartenders are sticking strictly to the three-fourths majority ruling.

You've got to name 36 states before you can get a drink.

2 DIE AS MINE CARS CRASH

PORTAGE, Pa., Oct. 20.—Two men were killed and more than a score injured, several probably fatally, when a trip of cars carrying 100 men into the mine of the Sonman Shaft Coal Company here ran wild and piled up early today.

A coupling broke, the company reported, releasing 12 cars, which dashed down grade 1,000 feet, jumped the tracks and crashed into the mine walls, covering many with the wreckage.

When the wreckage was cleared away, 30 sticks of dynamite and 150 dynamite caps were discovered in the front empty car of the trip. Although torn, the sticks had not exploded.

The dead are Mike Hoschuck and George Fuchala.

Seven of the injured, including August Smith, Anton Sydrych and John Major, were removed to the Memorial Hospital, Johnstown, all reported in critical condition.

The accident occurred as the day shift was entering the mine shortly before 7 a. m.

The long-awaited report was made public here today simultaneously with the British government's statement of its future policy in Palestine, a statement largely based on Sir John's report.

The Simpson report says:

"It is not right, if therre are workmen unemployed, that Jewish workmen from foreign countries be imported to fill the existing vacant posts."

DRUG STORE PROPRIETOR BEATEN

A bandit trio composed of a woman and two men who used the methods of Irene Schroeder, the "Blonde Trigger Woman," and her accomplices, today robbed a drug store at 1200 Allegheny avenue after trussing up the owner, Samuel Reich, of 6328 Cromble avenue.

One bandit struck Reich, and after he fell to the floor the second man tied him up and gagged him, using five yards of adhesive tape, Reich said.

WOMAN SCANS GROUND

Like the "Trigger Woman," the woman entered the store first. She bought a tooth brush, and stood gazing about the store until a man, who wanted directions to Franklin street, came in.

With his appearance the woman left, and a second man came in. The second man, after drawing a revolver, knocked Reich to the floor, while the first man ran to the doorway and glanced out into the street, where the woman stood guard.

BANDITS ESCAPE

Having taken the money from the safe, which Reich had opened just before the woman came into the store, the two men went to the cash register for the rest of the money, and then returned to take Reich's auto keys. Then they escaped.

Reich struggled for almost half an hour before he loosed his bonds. Then he called police and questioned a driver at a taxi stand across the street, but neither he nor Lieut. Harry Moore were able to find any trace of the trio.

The woman was described as wearing a cheap gray coat and hat. She was of medium build and aged about 40, Reich said. The men were tall, Reich said, and spoke with a Southern accent.

Pershing Completes His Story of War

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Gen. John J. Pershing has written his own story of America's participation in the World War. His memoirs are to be added to those of other great military leaders 12 years after the end of the conflict.

The work is described as an intimate, soldierly account of America's part in the war, not without humor and studded with "close-ups" of the world figures with whom Gen. Pershing was in constant contact.

'Blonde Viking' of Byrd's Party Weds Norway Belle

At a quiet ceremony on Saturday he was married to Miss Emmy Soerle, of Oslo, Norway, to whom he had been engaged for four years, and who came to this country after Balchen returned last year from Antarctica. The marriage took place at a little church in Coytesville, N. J., with Peter J. Siccardi, chief of Bergen County traffic police, and Mrs. Siccardi as attendants.

Balchen was back at work today at his job as test pilot for the Fokker Aircraft Corporation, turning airplanes inside out in the air to find out how good they were. But when news of his marriage leaked out he pulled off his flying suit and fled to seclusion.

It had been his plan to keep the wedding a secret until he had finished some work he had at hand and to have it announced after he and his bride had left on their honeymoon. But when the secret was discovered it was indicated that the wedding trip would begin at once in an effort to escape publicity.

PLEA BALKED BY FRANCE, CHARGE

Documents, Published for First Time, Delayed By Hoover Diplomacy

By HAROLD J. T. HORAN.
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Publication of the secret diplomatic correspondence of the United States for 1916 by Secretary Stimson today revealed:

First, President Hoover withheld publication in August, 1929, and the documents were kept in the State Department archives until after the London naval conference.

Second, sharp differences of opinion between English and American interpretations of "freedom of the seas" in 1916, before the United States entered the World War, almost caused a severance of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Third, Germany was ready to make peace as early as November, 1916, but French intransigeance on preliminary parley conditions prevented this.

Fourth, indications of German willingness for peace were revealed to the correspondent of the New York American, William Bayard Hale, in an exclusive interview with the German chancellor, Von Bethman-Hollweg. This dispatch was held up by German and Allied censors.

Fifth, United States insisted on observance of her neutrality in carrying on maritime commerce with Germany and the Allies.

RELEASED TODAY

This volume of diplomatic correspondence was ready for publication in August, 1929. The copy was released to the press today for publication.

Under this notice was the original date of publication:

"Confidential release, for morning newspapers of August 7, 1929."

President Hoover, however, realized that the acrimonious correspondence of 1916 between the United States and Great Britain on the subject of freedom of the seas might compromise his negotiations with Ramsay MacDonald.

The British prime minister then was planning his visit to the United States and preparing for the Rapidan conversations which have since become historical.

SECRET UNTIL NAVAL PACT

The volume therefore was not made public at the time originally scheduled, but was kept secret until the London naval treaty matter was settled.

Senator Borah, it was learned, personally requested a copy of the volume when he was preparing his famous "freedom-of-the-seas" speech, but this was declined by the State Department.

The tense situation which arose between the United States and Great Britain over "freedom-of-the-seas" doctrine in 1916 was evidenced by the following dispatch from the British foreign secretary Sir Edward Gray to British Ambassador Spring Rice.

BRITAIN'S ATTITUDE

This dispatch was left by the British ambassador at the secretary of state's office, September 17, 1916:

"The action of the United States will certainly be regarded as most surprising if, after tolerating without protest the continued reduction of the world's shipping by the activities of the German submarines, that power now adopts a course the result of which must be to compel the shipping of Great Britain and her allies to carry goods in the interests of their enemies' trade."

Earlier that year the American secretary of state had sharply criticized as "intentionally discourteous" the indifference of the British government to American protests over the latest British order in council.

"APOLOGIES"

Secretary Lansing's note was as follows:

"The action of the British government in thus treating with indifference the contentions of the United States by the issuance of an additional order in council making still more rigorous the practice under those to which the United States is objecting, cannot be regarded otherwise than as an act which appears to be intentionally discourteous."

POISON LIQUOR KILLS 9 IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(INS.)—Another flood of lethal poison liquor in New York was feared today. Nine men died Sunday from drinking poison liquor. Three of the deaths were in the lower East Side, where more than 30 died last year.

Authorities said they thought the deadly mixture came from the same source that killed more than a score earlier this month in Newark, N. J.

Federal and city authorities planned to confer today to determine what action may be taken against sellers of poison liquor under the state homicide laws.

QUAKE ROCKS LOUISIANA

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Southeastern Louisiana, including New Orleans and Baton Rouge, reported the first known earth tremors in the state's history Sunday but no serious damage resulted.

A resilient cradle of alluvial silt and moist loam, 2,300 feet deep underlying the region affected, was credited by scientific authorities with softening the tremors, which nevertheless were sufficiently strong to throw scores into a panic.

The only injuries reported were at Morgan City, where worshippers in a Catholic church became frightened at apparently seeing the walls of the church sway and were bruised in a dash for exits.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The National Education Association today sought congressional consideration of its proposal that a portion of all available radio channels be set aside for education.

HOW DOES electricity travel. Does it move inside the empty spaces between electrons in the atom, does it jump from atom to atom, as a bell ringer rings his series of bells.

When an electric power line is mentioned, you think of copper wire. But a power line in Canada, 230 miles long, carrying a 220,000 volt load, is built of aluminum.

It is a curious construction, many strands of aluminum wound over a few strands of steel.

That interests copper producers and stockholders. Will someone find an electric carrier better and cheaper than any now known?

What will the new idea do to aluminum stock values?

INDIAN POET ILL, LECTURES OFF

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Rabindranath Tagore, 69-year-old Indian poet and philosopher, is suffering from a serious case of heart trouble and all his American engagements have been canceled.

Dr. Tagorfe was examined by a New Haven specialist and was ordered to take a complete rest. It was said he would return to India as soon as he can safely make the journey.

The poet arrived in this city a little more than a week ago and spent last week in Williamstown, Mass., in rest and relaxation before beginning a lecture tour.

BRAZIL REBELS MENACE CITY

PORTO ALEGRE, Rio Grande do Sul, Brazil, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The rebel siege about Florianopolis, sole federal stronghold in Southern Brazil, pressed so hard today that troops withdrew from the mainland across the bridge to the island on which the city is located.

Revolutionary forces under Gens. Waldrozro Lima and Ptolomeo Assis Brasil Sunday morning occupied Estreito, on a mainland point opposite Florianopolis, and obtained control of the power lines which supply the city.

Newspaper Standards Improve, Coolidge Says

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., Oct. 20.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

Newspapers always have a very serious problem in giving the public what it wants to read and so getting a circulation, and at the same time presenting a candid report and comment on really consequential current news and so promoting general education and forming sound public opinion. This is important because newspapers are more and more read, are the chief medium for distributing information, are generally accepted by the people as accurate and authoritative and ought to be a cross section of the record of contemporaneous history. Future historians will have to rely on them largely for enlightenment concerning the most important events. That is a great responsibility for newspapers to discharge.

Calvin Coolidge

Like almost everything else the standards of the press are ultimately set by the people themselves. They will get what they insist on having. If they want a reliable, serious, informing newspaper, it will be furnished for them. If they are content with exciting, highly colored sensationalism they will get that. The present tendency is toward higher standards. The once purely ephemeral and sensational paper is changing its tone. It is a healthful and encouraging development indicating the advance of the people to a broader culture.

CUBA'S HATED RULER OF WAR DAYS DEAD

Gen. Weyler, Held to Blame For Spanish-American War, Dies in Madrid

MADRID, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Gen. Valeriano Weyler, Spanish officer whose administration in Cuba was one of the contributing causes of the Spanish-American war, died today at the age of 92.

Weyler was captain-general of the Spanish army, highest ranking officer of that body and among the last of Spain's oldtime militaristic figures who were conspicuous in her campaigns more than 30 years ago.

TWICE MINISTER

Gen. Weyler served twice as minister of war, in 1901 and 1909.

His civil name was Valeriano Weyler Y Nicolau and he was marquess of Teneriffe.

Gen. Weyler, regarded by Spain as its most loyal and efficient soldier, remembered by Americans as a merciless ruler in Cuba who had much to do with bringing on the Spanish-American War.

When Weyler was sent to Cuba to succeed Marshal Campos, whose dealings with insurrectos were regarded as too mild, he began a policy of inexorable repression. One act required all inhabitants of insurgent provinces to concentrate near military camps, thus depriving them of their homes, normal occupations and associations. They were massed in such numbers that they could not be properly fed and sheltered and Gen. Fitzhugh Lee, then consul general of the United States at Havana, is authority for the estimate that probably 200,000 of the rural population of Cuba died of starvation or resultant causes during the consultation period.

FINALLY RECALLED

Under pressure from the United States, Gen. Weyler was recalled by Spain in 1897, less than two years of his merciless rule having elapsed.

Until his death Gen. Weyler took an active interest in public affairs. He was one of the intensive enemies of the Primo dictatorship and always said he would live to see the end of the De Rivera regime. Primo once fined Gen. Weyler 100,000 pesetas for opposing the dictatorship. The Berenguer government nullified such fines imposed by the dictator but Gen. Weyler died without actually getting his money back, although he kept up his fight for it.

LEWIS STONE, ACTOR, WEDS

YUMA, Ariz., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Lewis S. Stone, veteran character actor of the stage and screen, and Hazel Elizabeth Woof, of Playa Del Rey, Cal., were honeymooning here today. They were married yesterday by the Rev. Herbert Brook, of the Yuma Methodist Church.

The marriage was a surprise. The final decree of divorce separating Stone and his second wife, Mrs. Florence Oakley Stone, the actress, became final Friday and the trip from Hollywood to Yuma began the next day. Stone's first wife, Margaret Langham, died in 1917.

Stone has been a familiar figure in theatrical and film circles for nearly a quarter of a century. He is 50 years old. Mrs. Stone is 29.

RACING PLANES CRASH IN AIR, PILOTS DIE

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—George Zinn, 23 years old, wealthy sportsman of Rydal, Pa., and R. W. Mackie, 36, a professional pilot, were killed at the Mercer airport yesterday when their planes collided during the free-for-all race in the Eastern States air meet.

A crowd of 25,000 was watching the planes round the home pylon at a speed of more than 120 miles an hour, when Zinn tore into the tail of Mackie's plane in a spurt to avoid hitting another machine. Zinn's propeller cut away the tail surfaces of Mackie's plane.

TAKES NOSE DIVE

Mackie attempted to land his plane but it dived nose foremost, falling less than 200 feet and buried the pilot under the wreckage. Zinn's plane crashed a moment later, bursting into flames as it struck.

Zinn was the son of the late Capt. George Zinn who demonstrated the construction and operation of Browning machine guns to the American forces during the World War. His grandfather was Brig. Gen. George Zinn, an officer in the Union Army during the Civil war. He had been flying about two years. His mother lives at Gordonville, Va.

ARMY INSTRUCTOR

Mackie began flying in 1916. During the World War he was an instructor at various Army flying schools. Since the war he was engaged in commercial flying. He was married and the father of two small daughters. He was employed as pilot and instructor at the Curtiss Wright airport, Valley Stream, N. Y.

67 IN ONE HOUSE

In one ordinary-sized farmhouse, two miles north of Farnham, Erie County, 67 snowbound autoists were accommodated last night. Women and children slept on floors from cellar to garret.

The Chamber of Commerce of Silver Creek today took steps to find accommodations for 1,300 persons marooned at that hamlet.

Interurban bus lines and heavy transportation vans were abandoned.

Several buildings collapsed from the weight of the snow. The roof of the Angola, Hotel caved in. Twenty-five persons escaped injury. In Orchard Park a factory roof gave in, causing considerable damage.

The unseasonable snow storm was of freak variety. In this city snow plows plunged through a nine-inch depth in the southern part, while in the central and northern portions the ground showed not even a trace. In place it was reported that thunder and lightning accompanied the snowfall.

GRAPE CROP RUINED

The heaviest fall was in the vicinity of Angola, where a four-foot depth was attained on the level.

In many places wires and trees were down. The unharvested grape crop in which Western New York prides itself, was ruined. Orchards were wiped out.

Telephonic advices were received here late last night that eight lake vessels had taken shelter from the Lake Erie gale behind Long Point, Ontario. It was expected the boats would get under way again this morning.

The steamers City of Buffalo and City of Erie were held at this port and Cleveland, respectively, last night, owing to the strong wind and high seas.

ERIE DIGS OUT

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Erie today was recovering from a near-blizzard which swept in from the lake last night, bringing snow and a high wind which caused property damage, hampered traffic, menaced shipping and caused discomfort over a wide area.

Road and rail travel was almost at a standstill for a time as highways in the vicinity of Erie became drifted. Boats kept close to shore. One freighter came into port late last night with its cargo damaged.

SNOW HALTS TRAFFIC

MEADVILLE, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—About three inches of snow fell here last night. The snow was accompanied by a high wind. Many motorists en route to Erie were unable to make their way northward because of the severe storm blowing in from the lake.

Elephant Topples, Kills Boy Who Falls in Path

BLACKPOOL, England, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A circus elephant which was brushing against a railing along a pathway near the circus here lost its balance and toppled over, killing an 11-year-old boy. The boy, Joseph Robert Elgey, walking along the pathway, had tripped and fallen just as the elephant toppled. The big animal's knee came down on the boy's back, killing him instantly.

An eye witness said the elephant appeared to be quite peaceful. After killing the boy, it rose and stood still until led away by attendants.

CABINET SAFE, GERMANY CALM

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS.
International News Service.

BERLIN, Oct. 20.—A mixed feeling of relief and satisfaction smoothed German politics today in the wake of Chancellor Heinrich Bruening's victory in the Reichstag, which expressed its confidence in his government by a majority of 82 votes.

PLANS TO FIGHT FOES

By that time, the Chancellor hoped to be entrenched sufficiently strong to beat off the savage attacks expected against his administration.

Bruening, it was understood, will launch at once into the task of rehabilitating the country's finances. One of the final acts of the Reichstag before adjournment was to ratify the sinking fund debt, assuring more than $118,000,000 credit to Germany to start with.

The brief sessions devoted to pressing problems served merely to postpone the real clash of parties and the bitter chamber battles between them, according to prevailing opinion.

CRISIS STILL TO COME

It was pointed out the crisis to be faced by Bruening after his initial success probably will come shortly after the Reichstag reconvenes in December.

The immediate problem confronting the administration and endangering the peace of the capital is the strike of 126,000 metal workers, who laid down their tools to protest threatened wage reductions recommended as one aspect of Germany's drastic economy program.

CRASH DELAYS WOMAN FLIER

WINSLOW, Ariz., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Keith Miller, British flier, was here today awaiting minor repairs on her light biplane, damaged in landing at the end of the first leg of her West-to-East transcontinental record attempt.

Landing at 6:29 p. m. (Mountain Standard time), on a flight from Los Angeles yesterday, Mrs. Miller broke a wheel and damaged the tail skid of her plane. Mechanics said a new wheel must be brought from Los Angeles. The aviatrix expected to leave Wednesday.

The record Mrs. Miller hoped to better was set Saturday by Laura Ingalls, 25-year-old St. Louis aviatrix, who completed the eastward transcontinental jaunt in a flying time total of 25 hours 35 minutes. Mrs. Miller said she expected to spend but 20 hours in the air.

Last week the British aviatrix clipped four hours 43 minutes from the westward record previously set by Miss Ingalls.

FINAL FIGHT ON MERGER OPENS

Arguments Begun in Long Battle to Block Combine of Bethlehem, Sheet & Tube

YOUNGSTOWN, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The courtroom of Common Pleas Judge David G. Jenkins again became the scene of battle over the billion-dollar merger of the Youngstown Sheet and Tube Company with the Bethlehem Steel Corporation when the final arguments of counsel began today.

The first barrage after a three weeks' adjournment was the presentation of briefs by both sides setting forth the issues of illegality and fraud raised by the plaintiffs and the answers and denials of the defense.

DAY LEADS FIGHT

Then Luther Day, member of counsel for the International Shares Corporation and the executors of the late Myron C. Wick, Jr., took the floor to launch the arguments of the plaintiff.

Day turned his guns on Eugene Grace, president of Bethlehem, and Harry G. Dalton, of Cleveland, director of Youngstown and Bethlehem and a partner in Pickands Mather & Co., Cleveland ore firm.

He declared these two men were the prime movers in the preliminary negotiations which resulted in an agreement for an exchange of one and a third shares of Bethlehem common for each share of Youngstown common. The agreement was approvated later by Sheet and Tube directors and ratified at a stockholders' meeting April 8 by a proxy vote which the plaintiffs contend was illegal.

ATTACKS CAMPBELL

Referring to James A. Campbell, 79-year-old chairman of the Sheet and Tube board, who concurred in the merger terms, Day asserted that the Campbell of today approved a deal which the Campbell of five or ten years ago never would have approved. The veteran Youngstown chairman, he charged, was dominated by Grace and Dalton.

Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland capitalist, whose interests instituted the injunction suit, was described to the court by Attorney Day as the man who assumed the task of representing the Youngstown stockholders in the fight against the alleged illegal contract.

The length of the arguments is indefinite for Judge Jenkins again reminded counsel that he would impose no limitations. Some of the lawyers estimate, however, the arguments will last a week or slightly longer. Judge Jenkins' decision is not expected for a month.

20 DEGREES IS PREDICTION

thermometer fell to 20 degrees and that a pebble which he tossed on an ice-covered pond failed to break the surface.

Little prospect of relief was seen by Brotzman except the subsiding of the wind to almost a dead calm. Yesterday the wind reached 25 and 30 miles an hour, chilling pedestrians, despite the bright sunshine.

This district today was in the midst of a vast high pressure area with likelihood of continued clear weather tonight and tomorrow, the forecaster stated.

Homeless and unemployed men swarmed to relief centers for shelter and food, while the sudden advent of cold brought suffering to many homes unprepared for the pre-winter blast.

FLOWERS DESTROYED

Dahlias, asters and late fall flowers were destroyed by last night's freeze, gardeners reported.

The first fire of the season blamed on an overheated furnace caused $700 damage today to the two-story frame and brick dwelling of Samuel Kreiling, 1508 Nobles Lane, Carrick.

A man, said by police to have been trying to keep warm, crawled on a cinder pile at Falk & Co., Rosslyn stop, Carnegie, and was burned to death when smoldering ash set fire to his clothing.

Boys on their way to school discovered him, but he was dead when a physician examined him. He was known throughout the neighborhood as "Duffy," police said. He was aged about 40.

Simple Wedding to Unite King Boris and Giovanna

PISA, Italy, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Invitations to the wedding of King Boris III of Bulgaria and Princess Giovanna of Italy Saturday have gone out from the royal villa at San Rossore.

They are signed by the Duke Borea Dolmo, prefect of the palace and grand master of ceremonies to King Victor Emanuel. The duke recently celebrated his hundredth birthday. He has been master of ceremonies since 1864 and has ordained the ceremonies for several score royal weddings.

Instructions sent with the invitations indicate the wedding will be simple, conforming with Franciscan austerity. The ladies are required to wear gowns with high necks and long sleeves, with white veils. The wearing of jewelry is forbidden. The men will wear full dress, with their Italian or Bulgarian decorations. Officers will be in full dress uniforms.

The act which will give civil effect to the religious ceremony will be read by Father Risso, who will unite the couple. The marriage agreement will be signed by the couple and four witnesses, together with Premier Mussolini and President of the Senate Federzoni, at the Villa Costanzi, Assisi.

A large number of girls were working in Turin on Giovanna's trousseau, which was ordered by Queen Helena. The garments are entirely hand-made, with flowers worked in red and old gold and a wealth of rich old Italian lace. Giovanna's name in Bulgarian, "Janna," is the marker on the garments.

Fascist Offensive 'Bombs' Rout Prince at Opera

FRANKFORT-AM-MAIN, Germany, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Prince Takamatsu, brother of the Japanese emperor, and his consort were driven from the opera house here last night by "stink bombs" thrown by Fascists.

The bombs, which were accompanied by cries of "Hail Hitler" and "Germany awake," were not directed at the royal visitors, but in protest at the opera, "Rise and Fall of the City Mahogany," nevertheless the Prince and Princess, rather puzzled, hastily left the auditorium amid considerable furore.

The opera is by Kurt Weill and Bert Brecht. It describes in modernistic words and music several daring scenes of a utopia of freedom founded by three fugitives from justice. The Fascists apparently objected to its political flavor and some of its orgiastic scenes.

PRESIDENT'S CABINET TO ACT

Unemployment Remedies to Be Discussed at Meeting Tomorrow in White House

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Wintry weather stimulated today the members of the cabinet committee which is to lay out a program this week for meeting threatened suffering from unemployment.

The blustering October airs, tearing along the capital's streets through rustling leaves and penetrating all but warm clothing were eloquent of the misery for the homeless and foodless which the group hopes to lessen or avert.

CABINET MEETING

The renewed efforts of the government to relieve unemployment will be started tomorrow when the President's cabinet committee meets at the White House under the chairmanship of Secretary Lamont.

Mr. Lamont first called the meeting for today, but later had to postpone it.

The commerce secretary, after a conference with President Hoover, said the cabinet group would act only as a preliminary committee, and later would endeavor to set up whatever organization is found necessary to cope with unemployment.

"REVIEW COMMITTEE

He expressed doubt that a commission similar to that appointed by President Harding, of which Mr. Hoover as Secretary of Commerce, was head, would be necessary.

Pointing out that it had been appointed to relieve a sudden emergency, Mr. LaLmont said the present committee was appointed to review the work of 10 months since the business depression began and intensify the government's efforts already under way.

The commerce secretary said the reduction in tax receipts announced today by the treasury would not interfere with the government's program of expansion to provide employment.

ASK U. S. FUNDS

Recommending legislation to furnish the sinews of the government's share in the general relief program, is expected to form a part of the group's immediate activities. Already Secretary Hyde has decided to ask that federal highway aid funds be doubled. He plans to recommend that the $125,000,000 appropriated for 1932 be made available immediately to the states. This money must be matched by each state and unless they have already made appropriations sufficient to cover the federal increase, their legislatures will have to vote more road funds if the government money is to be used.

Postmaster General Brown also has announced he expects to ask that Congress supplement the current government building program with a five-year plan for replacing leased postoffices through building and purchase.

STRETCHER BEARERS REMOVING DIAMOND FROM NEW YORK HOSPITAL, FEARING GANG VIOLENCE WHILE HE WAS THERE

DIAMOND HELD AS PRISONER

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(Universal.)—Jack "Legs" Diamond, prize patient in Metropolitan Hospital, today was a virtual prisoner.

The gangster was in confinement more solitary than the prisoners on Welfare Island, who were convicted by judge and jury. The charge is being shot.

He can be seen by no one, not even his wife, under orders which apparently emanated from Police Commissioner Mulrooney's office. Flowers and the delicate luxuries he has become accustomed to—such as pink silk pajamas—were denied him in this same order.

Prospect of legal conflict to end this solitary confinement loomed yesterday. Friends asserted Diamond's attorneys could obtain a writ of habeas corpus compelling his appearance in court. But Commissioner Mulrooney has prepared to block such a move through the process of arresting him as a material witness in his own shooting.

VOLSTEAD TEST AGAIN BALKED

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(INS.)—The Supreme Court today declined to again review constitutionality of the national prohibition act as petitioned for by A. Stanley Copeland, of Buffalo, N. Y.

Copeland, who said he made wine, was freed of the charges, but claimed to be in constant jeopardy of prosecution. At one time he made wine in public on the steps of the Buffalo court house.

He sought to raise new grounds for the alleged unconstitutionality of the Volstead act, as well as to bring before the court again some objections previously raised. The act was upheld by a divided court several years ago.

Mr. Roosevelt is a relative of the governor of New York, and is a nephew of the late Theodore Roosevelt. He is an official of the Eastern Michigan Railways and the American State Bank.

CLUE TO STOKES PROVES FALSE

A wooded section in Armstrong County, about 20 miles north of Kittanning, was searched Saturday by a squad of county detectives for Benjamin Stokes, alias Jesse Frazier, wanted for the killing in 1921 of James H. Neal during the holdup of the Boggs & Buhl $49,000 payroll.

Stokes, the object of an international search, with a reward of $2,500 for his capture, was the only member of the gang to elude police.

The tip that a man resembling Stokes was living in a shack in the woods of Armstrong County came from a woman who was employed in the store and who witnessed the killing. When the detectives surrounded the shack a man, whose description tallied somewhat with that of Stokes, came out and identified himself as a resident of Armstrong County.

NATION-WIDE CONSPIRACY RUN DOWN

Forgery Scheme Fleeces Wealthy in Many Cities; Prisoners Wanted Here

International News Service.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 19.—Three threads of evidence around two women and a man who are held as members of a check-forging ring that is said to have preyed on "blue book" families in Pittsburgh and Erie, Pa., and elsewhere throughout the country, are being carefuly traced by police here.

One thread purporting to link the trio with the national swindle ring, police said, is the identification of the man as a bogus solicitor for City Hospital who sought to obtain a signed check from Mrs. Hayden Eames, wealthy society matron of Cleveland Heights, on the alleged pretense of using the money for charitable purposes. Mrs. Eames gave the check, but later she stopped payment at her bank.

The identification, police said, was made by Miss Catherine Moore, a maid in the Eames home.

ACCUSED BY EMPLOYE

Further identification of the man was furnished by Miss Wanda Torowski of Akron, according to police. Miss Torowski declared the man was the same who employed her as a stenographer and for whom she cashed a $400 check, allegedly forged in the name of Mrs. J. W. Herron, wife of a prominent Akron banker.

The third thread of evidence, which police believe may definitely link the trio here with the daring swindle ring, is a confession alleged made in Buffalo by two men suspected as being confederates of the man and two women held here.

CLEVELANDERS ESCAPE

The check-forging ring, police here believe, has been operating in all parts of the country. Among those said to have fallen prey to the swindlers are Mrs. J. B. Book, Jr., wealthy Detroit society woman; Mrs. Harvey Firestone, wife of the tire manufacturer, and Mrs. Seymour Knox, prominent Buffalo society woman.

Authorities here believe that with the arrest of the man and two women in an exclusive East Side hotel, the operations of the ring were nipped before any Clevelanders fell victim to the scheme.

SUSPECT HELD

BUFFALO, N. Y., Oct. 20.—(INS.)—Walter Marks, under arrest here, today was accused by police of being the "brains" of a nation-wide check-raising plot, in which the wives of prominent men in Pittsburgh, Detroit, Boston, Chicago, Cleveland and other cities were the victims.

A check for $2 given in a "fake" charity drive by Mrs. J. B. Book, wife of a Detroit financier, was raised to $2,000 by the forgery ring, it was charged. The Detroit bank, however, refused to cash the check.

Police said Mrs. Nell Ford Forrey, wife of a Detroit physician, was swindled of $500 by the ring, and Agnes Eccles was bilked out of $750.

WANTED IN BOSTON

A telegram from Boston police said Marks was wanted in that city on 14 counts. He is wanted also in New York on a charge of forging alcohol permits.

In Chicago the ring was said to have swindled wealthy persons of $40,000 in three weeks.

In addition to Marks, alleged members of the swindle ring under arrest include Frank Carpenter and his wife and Mrs. Marks, held in Cleveland; Jerome Greenberg in Oak Park, Ill.; Leonard Steiner, in Boston, and Harry Munson, alias Benjamin Miller, who is held here.

Miller was said by police to have been a "contact" man for Marks.

Police estimated the ring had collected $2,000,000 from rich persons in the last two years.

RETURN BODIES OF FIRE VICTIMS

Arrangements were being made today for the return to Pitcairn of the bodies of Mrs. Margaret Gilson, 75, of 605 Fifth street, Pitcairn, and her two sons, Frank and Howard, who were burned to death beneath their overturned automobile in Deland, Fla., Saturday. Funeral services are planned for Wednesday in St. Michael's Catholic Church, Pitcairn.

The Gilsons were riding in a machine owned by Howard Gilson, 35, former well known athlete in the Turtle Creek Valley. Following a collision with another machine, the Gilson car overturned and burst into flames.

Howard Gilson had been living in Florida for some time and 10 weeks ago the mother went to visit him. She returned to Pittsburgh a week later when another son, J. F. Gilson, was killed in an automobile accident at Ligonier. She went back to Florida two months ago. Other articles of wearing apparel were found on the kitchen floor.

Bertillon Operator Harry Ross, of the county detectives, made photographs of finger prints on the window casing.

Humphrey is president of the Westinghouse Electric and Machine Company and chairman of the committee of businessmen organized here last week to support John M. Hemphill, Democratic-Liberal candidate for governor.

650 Perish as Fire Sweeps China City

CANTON, China, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Six hundred and fifty persons were burned to death today by fire which swept through the teahouse district of Wuchow, Western Kwantung.

Name of Wineville Must Go, Held Far Too Wet

WINEVILLE, Cal., Oct. 20.—Wineville, center of a vineyard area, is going to have a new name November 1.

Reasons for the change were varied. Some said Wineville was a strictly pre-prohibition name and therefore out of date. Others asserted it had received too much unfavorable publicity because of the nearby "murder farm" of Gordon Stewart Northcott, who was hanged recently for slaying three boys.

The name will be Mira Loma, Spanish for "view of the hills."

Schoolmates See Girl Killed by Auto

YORK, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Struck by an automobile on the Susquehanna trail, near Shrewsbury, Marian J. Rehmeyer, 11, was fatally injured. She had been conversing with two schoolmates, who were riding horseback on the road, when she ran into the road, where she was hit by a car driven by James C. Koons, Taneytown, Md. Coroner L. U. Zech exonerated Koons after an investigation.

SEE PARIS LOSS IN HEARST CASE

LONDON, Oct. 20.—(Universal.)—The expulsion of William Randolph Hearst was the "biggest blunder" ever made by France, says the London Sunday Express in an editorial under the headline "Spending Abroad."

The editorial says:

"The French have been enjoying a good time for many years. Their workmen have been busy, their industries have been prosperous. They have made some bad blunders, and the biggest blunder was their quarrel with William Randolph Hearst and his expulsion from France. This has not done Mr. Hearst any harm. It has conferred a favor upon him, for he was expelled, not for being anti-French, but for being pro-American.

"This blunder going to do France a great deal of harm. Many Americans who would have normally visited France now look upon France with disfavor. As a result France will lose a great deal of the luxury trade which she formerly has done with Americans."

4-Eyed Fish Added To Museum's Rare Nature Freaks

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A nine-inch moth and a four-eyed fish have been added to the collection of nature freaks housed by the Academy of Natural Science.

They are among the collection of birds, reptiles, amphibians and insects obtained in Honduras by James A. G. Rehn, secretary of the academy and others in two months of exploration.

Other new specimens brought back were a flightless gold-green grasshopper and another grasshopper so twig-like in appearance as to be almost indistinguishable from the branch on which it alights.

BONNIWELL OUT FOR PINCHOT

WOMAN FOR HEMPHILL

A statement from Liberal headquarters said that Mrs. Martin, who is the wife of Judge J. Willis Martin, of the Philadelphia Common Pleas Court, would support Hemphill, while from Pinchot headquarters came the announcement that Bonniwell would throw his support to Pinchot.

While Bonniwell was appealing to Democrats to vote for Pinchot, A. Mitchell Palmer, for eight years Democratic national committeeman from Pennsylvania and attorney general in the cabinet of President Wilson, called on them to support Hemphill.

PINCHOT INCORRUPTIBLE

Announcing his support for Pinchot, Judge Bonniwell said:

"I intend to vote for Pinchot. I do not know the Liberal party nominee, John W. Hemphill. I do know the public career of Pinchot, the friend of Theodore Roosevelt, and his splendid and incorruptible record as governor.

"When any nominee for the office of governor is confronted by an alliance of disgruntled politicians of his own party, and their defection is hugely enhanced by the public utilities, public service and the other types of corporations that have acquired overwhelming wealth from the wage-earner and toiler, it behooves every man who has any concern in a fair and equitable government of the state to take heed.

"On the question of national prohibition, I still stand as I did in 1918, when none of these so-called Liberal leaders would lift a finger or contribute a penny to aid the battle which I began.

OPPOSES DRY LAW

"I am uncompromisingly opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment. I resent the hypocrisy presented by the so-called Liberal party support of John M. Hemphill. That support is a smoke screen to deceive the unthinking; otherwise Sedgwick Kistler would head their ticket. What effect can Hemphill, as an alleged 'wet,' have upon the members of Congress or the United States senators."

70 New Charges Are Filed in School Case

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 20.—(INS.)—Seventy additional charges were filed against the Swoyersville board of school directors this afternoon by citizens seeking to oust the seven school officials from office. Charges included alleged acceptance of $150 for appointment of a teacher.

HEMPHILL ILL, CAMPAIGN DELAYED

Nominee Will Speak at Erie Tomorrow; Others Going To Rally at Bradford

Democratic nominees for state offices to be filled November 4 are due in Bradford for a meeting tonight, according to David L. Lawrence, Allegheny County chairman.

The party includes Sedgwick Kistler, for United States senator; Guy D. Hard, for lieutenant governor, and George F. Douglas for judge of Superior Court. John M. Hemphill, nominee for governor, was delayed for a day by illness, but expects to speak at Erie tomorrow.

The nominees are scheduled to make a brief stop in Pittsburgh Thursday night before leaving to carry their campaign into Philadelphia and Delaware counties. They will speak tomorrow in Kane, Warren, Corry and Erie.

NORTH SIDE RALLY

On Tuesday they will tour Crawford County with meetings in Titusville and Meadville. Before coming to Pittsburgh Thursday the Democratic nominees will speak in Monongahela City, Donora and Charleroi.

Lawrence announced that a Democratic rally would be held October 28 in North Side Carnegie Music Hall, where all nominees of the party were expected to speak.

Former County Commissioner James Houlahen will preside at a Democratic meeting Wednesday night at the St. Antonius Musical and Beneficial Association hall, Butler street.

Attorney Andrew G. Smith will be the principal speaker at a noon meeting today in Democratic headquarters, Magee Building, 334 Fourth avenue.

DAILY NOON MEETINGS

The Liberal party began noon meetings at headquarters, 512 Wood street, with a speech today by J. H. Weisman, of Mt. Oliver. Amplifiers will carry the headquarters speeches to sidewalk audiences. Attorney W. R. Scott will broadcast at 7:15 p. m. tomorrow over WCAE.

The Liberal party's local headquarters today announced that the Republican League of Pennsylvania, composed of Italian voters, has pledged support for Democratic Nominee Hemphill and all nominees on the state Republican ticket excepting Gifford Pinchot, Hemphill's opponent in the governor's race. Officers of the Italian organization are Frank A. Maddas, of Greensburg, president and Conrad A. Falvello, of Hazelton, secretary.

The Liberal party also announced today that Walter W. Wilson, of Milton, Pa., president of the Pennsylvania Bankers Association, has resigned as a member of the ways and means committee appointed by Republican State Chairman Edward Martin to aid the candidacy of Pinchot and the other Republican nominees.

DAILY MEETINGS

W. S. Dalzell, of counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, chairman of the Liberal party's speakers committee said last night that noon meetings would be held daily until the campaign ends and that radio proadcasts would be delivered daily over KDKA and WCAE.

Arthur M. Scully, Allegheny County chairman of the Liberal party, announced last night receipt of a telegram from Reading, stating that 40 industrial and professional men of Berks County, "all outstanding Republicans," have declared their support for Democratic Nominee Hemphill.

Simon T. Patterson, chairman of the executive committee of the Crusaders, anti-dry organization, said last night that thousands of members would be added to the lists as a result of the National Crusader Week campaign that will end Saturday.

TANKER BLAST KILLS TWO

TROY, N. Y., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Two men were killed, two others were severely burned, and two tug boats and an oil tank barge were destroyed in a gasoline explosion aboard the barge in the Hudson river today.

The cause of the explosion is not known, but there was a terrific blast aboard the barge which enveloped that craft and the two tugs tied alongside, in flames. The detonation shattered all windows in five blocks of River street, and blew all the glass out of three blocks of buildings in Watervliet, on the opposite bank of the river.

At the instant of the blast, Capt. John Auckerman, of Brooklyn, master of the tug Dynamic, yelled to the six or seven members of his crew to jump overboard, which they did. All were picked up shortly afterward except one man, who was not immediately accounted for, but who is believed to have been among those rescued.

Inquiry in Fatal Bus Crash Opened

DETROIT, Oct. 20.—(INS.)—A youth is dead and 18 others are suffering injuries today as an investigation was started into the bus crash which resulted in the tragedy. Of those hurt, three may die.

The accident occurred Saturday night when a bus load of Ferndale high school students, returning from a football game, was struck by an automobile at a road intersection.

PINCHOT BEGINS FINAL TOUR OF CAMPAIGN

G. O. P. Nominee Confers With Supporters Here; Scores Unfair Utility Rates

His conferres included County Commissioner C. C. McGovern, James F. Malone, Frank I. Gollmar, State Senator James J. Coyne and representatives of the Allegheny County Labor Conference for Progressive Political Action.

Pinchot issued a statement here in which he declared that public utilities charging a fair rate were i. .erative to the welfare and prosperity of the people. He scored the corporations that charged consumers from 100 to 3,000 per cent more than the production cost.

HITS UTILITIES PRICES

He said certain public utilities were abetting the present depression by making manufacturers and merchants pay exorbitant rates for electric power needed in their business. He said it was equally bad for general prosperity when these same electric magnates extorted from the people, excessive rates for electric current in homes thereby adding wrongfully to the cost of living.

MEET PINCHOT

Officers of the Labor Conference group that met Pinchot here are: Chairman P. J. McGrath, secretary of the Street Railway Employes' Division No. 66, secretary of Pittsburgh Central Labor Union and second vice president of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor; Secretary Jacob Yeager, local chairman of the Baltimore and Ohio System, Division No. 33, Railroad Telegraphers and member of the Employes' Relief Department, Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; Treasurer John J. Kane, financial secretary of Pressmen's Union and president of Pittsburgh Allied Printing Trades; First Vice Chairman Frank W. Weibel, secretary of Journeymen Barbers' Association; Second Vice Chairman Thomas B. Brown, legislative representative of Railroad Conductors; Third Vice Chairman H. L. Woodmansee, president of Typographical Union, No. 7; Fourth Vice Chairman William Laffey, past president, American Flint Glass Workers.

LABOR COMMITTEE

The general committee of 52 members representing 20 labor unions includes J. R. Herring, of the Railroad Conductors; C. P. Wilson, of the Railroad Firemen; George N. Orbin, of the Locomotive Engineers; Charles L. Swift, of the Pattern Makers; Thomas J. Gallagher, of the Flint Glass Workers; D. A. Harshbarger, of the Switchmen's Union; Fred Schaffer, of the Taxicab Drivers Union, and Thomas G. Gillis, of the Amalmagated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers.

All the Republican nominees will address an open-air meeting from the Grant street steps of the City-County Building at 11:45 a. m. Saturday. Pinchot will be the honor guest at a banquet in the William Penn Hotel Saturday night under auspices of the Richard W. Martin Republican Association. He is expected to broadcast at 11 a. m. over WJAS and to witness the Pitt-Notre Dame football game in the afternoon.

Pinchot's itinerary will take him to Waynesburg and Washington, Tuesday; to Kittanning and Butler, Wednesday, and to New Castle, Beaver Falls and New Brighton, Thursday.

He will speak in Ambridge Friday before coming to Pittsburgh to broadcast at 6:15 over KDKA. Later he will be guest of honor at a banquet in the Penn-McKee Hotel, McKeesport.

Boy Dies When 34 Lack Proper Blood

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Properly matched blood — a quart of it—would have saved the life of Leonard Eckdahl, 10, of Craig, Neb. Thirty-four persons, including his parents, doctors and nurses, offered their own life blood to save the lad, but none had the needed type. Leonard's blood was of a rare variety not readily matched with the four normal classes for human beings.

BUTLER LABOR AIDES SCORED

BOSTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The Boston Central Labor Union decided at its meeting here that members of organized labor who have been working for the election of William M. Butler, Republican senatorial nominee, had not been paid for their support with the exception of Charles J. Hodsdon.

E. A. Johnson, of the Boston Building Trades Council, and others associated with him in the formation of Republican workmen's clubs, were criticized, however, as worse than Communists in attempting to wreck labor unions by boring from within.

Hodsdon, a member of the Boston Street Carmen's Union and field secretary of the Workers' Republican Committee of Massachusetts, was termed a paid agent of the Republican State Committee.

Dance Endurance Test Ends When Promoter Skips

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—This was the one thing these marathon endurance dancers—they had been going since August 31—would not endure.

Nine of them were left, stumbling groggily about the floor of a North Side ball room last night. Thoughts of the $2,700 in cash awards for the three surviving couples kept them on their blistered and bunioned feet.

They had just entered the 1,160th hour when a detective took the center of the floor to make an announcement. One of the promoters, he said, had left, and the gross receipts of the enterprise had been tied up in a court action.

They quit—just 1,671 hours short of what they claimed to be some sort of a record.

4 DIE, 3 HURT AS HOME BURNS

PARSONS, Kan., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Ed Kennedy, 36, Big Island farmer, and three members of his family burned to death in a fire caused by an explosion of kerosene sprayed into a heating stove. The home was destroyed.

The victims, besides Kennedy, were Marvin Kennedy, his 6-year-old son, and Edna Tyler, 11, his step-children.

Mrs. Kennedy, 40, was injured seriously. Charles Tyler, eldest child in the family of seven children, who was burned critically in a futile attempt to rescue his sister, Edna, and the youngest child, Bernard Kennedy, 6 years old, also were in the hospital. Edward Kennedy, 9, and Mary Ellen Kennedy, 4, escaped uninjured.

Kennedy, whose efforts to kindle the smoldering fire resulted in the blast, rescued one child and reentered the home to save another when he was trapped.

'Reno Ring' Latest For Milady With Divorce

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A "Reno ring," to distinguish divorcees from married women, single women or widows, is an idea that has occurred to Mrs. Nan Barclay, recently divorced from McClelland Barclay, noted illustrator.

Labor Party Likely To Win in Norway

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Norway today goes to the polls for a parliamentary election after a campaign which has brought the nation to a stage of intense excitement.

The Laborites, who three years ago jumped sensationally from 32 to 59 seats in the Storthing, say this year they will obtain a clear majority in the body, with its 150 seats, bringing about the first purely labor government in the country.

THUGS HOLD UP 23 AT PARTY

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Twenty-three persons at a card party in suburban Beverly Hills were held up by two men, who gave first aid to one victim who suffered a heart attack and then failed in their mission when another intended victim slipped away and obtained police help.

One of the guests, Mrs. Gertrude Ilg, used one arm to hold up her other when the "Hands up!" order was given. The robbers allowed her to lie down when they were told she was partly paralyzed. Mrs. Ilg's husband, Gust, fearing for his wife's condition, collapsed of a heart attack, and the holdup men gave him first aid.

Another guest, Edward O'Connor, evaded the gunmen, jumped out of a window and ran for police. As the squad arrived, a lookout fled without notifying his companions. One of the men, who gave his name as John Wright, was caught. His companion jumped out a window and escaped without obtaining any loot.

HOOVER GREETS DISCIPLES

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A message from President Hoover praising "gatherings for spiritual fellowship" was read before representatives of 30 nations attending the world convention of churches of Christ. The President wrote:

"I send cordial greetings to the world convention of the churches of Christ. These great gatherings for spiritual fellowship contribute not only to an enrichment of the life of those participating, but also an inspiration and example of good will and service of high value in the life of our people. You have my best wishes for a happy and fruitful meeting."

Hoover's letter was read after 10,000 Disciples of Christ, which is affiliated with the world convention, had united in the simple communion observance of their faith.

Village Fair Blast Death Toll Mounts

Indigestion, Gas, Pain 3 Years, Finds New Quick Way to End It

No More Stomach Torture —Can Eat Everything —Sleeps Fine—Thanks New Prescription, ACIDINE

"I had a mean case of acid indigestion for the past three years," writes Miss Adeline Meinzer, Brooklyn, N. Y. "Tried everything with little if any results. Then heard about ACIDINE and got some. It is wonderful. I can eat everything without gas or pain. Sleep fine."

Amazing the way this new scientific prescription ACIDINE succeeds where other known remedies fail. The reason is that it is entirely different, containing the marvelous digestant called Japtase. In laboratory experiments Japtase has been tested on certain starchy foods which cause so much stomach distress. It digested and tames its weight of such foods in only 30 minutes!

Five other ingredients in ACIDINE neutralize burning acid, soothe irritated stomach lining, stop gas and headache from acidity. No other known remedy contains this scientific combination to end acid stomach.

Physicians are prescribing ACIDINE. Thousands of people have found it the only relief from acid indigestion and dyspepsia, gas pain, heartburn, coated tongue, bad taste, dizziness, fullness, sour breath and other troubles from acid stomach. Pain goes like a flash.

Don't take chances with acidity and gas that often lead to serious and more painful troubles. Get ACIDINE today from druggist. Costs only a few cents. Watch how quick pain, gas and sick, sour, acid stomach go away. Then eat, drink and smoke all you want. Results guaranteed. If not delighted, maker refunds money. Get ACIDINE from any druggist.

HEAVY ANTI-DRY VOTE SEEN

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Henry H. Curran, president of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, said in a statement that the sentiment of the voters for repeal of prohibition would be "vigorously expressed" in the November 4 election. He declared:

"It is a startling step ahead in the fight against the dry law that political parties in 18 of the 48 states go on record either for outright repeal, referenda on the question or demanding states' rights.

"Equally encouraging is the fact that in only 12 states were law enforcement planks adopted. Seven additional states found it prudent to ignore the question altogether in their platforms."

TARDIEU SEES PEACE THREAT

BELFORT, France, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Premier Tardieu in an address to war veterans here declared that "events abroad have endangered French peace policy."

The French premier reiterated the thesis of his government, "organization of peace with arbitration as procedure, security as its fundamental basis, and reduction of armaments as a consequence," but added that the policy "has not always met the support hoped for." He added:

"Thus France has been forced to insure by its own means conditions of security which exact respect for frontiers and respect for treaties.

"Before long, in parliament, I shall have opportunity to establish that no government has done more toward world peace than France."

MANY LEAVE DUTIES HERE AND TRAVEL

Colonial Will Assume Management of Securities, Property.

Recently, the following letter was received by the Personal Service Department of The Colonial Trust from a Pittsburgh woman who had just returned from a long and much-needed vacation trip:

"I appreciate very much the efficient manner in which you have taken care of my business matters. It has made my vacation so much more enjoyable, knowing that this responsibility is in the hands of some reliable person."

One Woman's Experience.

That lady heard of the Personal Service Department last May when Mrs. Karl Emmerling, head of the department, described its functions in a radio talk over KDKA. She came to The Colonial and talked with Mrs. Emmerling. She wanted to go away for a year with her daughter, but she had been perplexed about how to have her business affairs handled in her absence.

The department assumed full charge in her absence. Arrangements were made to have dividend checks on her securities sent to the Personal Service Department, which deposited them, had the proper entries made in her passbook and sent to her notification of the deposits. Her mail was handled at the bank, much of the first class mail was forwarded to her and authority was given the department to open anything which seemed urgent and which needed attention at once. All her securities were left in charge of the company. During her absence, bonds have been called and they have been properly presented at once, to avoid the loss of interest. Certain rights were declared on stock which she owned, and, in consultation with her attorney, these rights were exercised, to her advantage. Emergency bills, taxes, water rents and other invoices have been paid for her so that discounts have been earned and penalties avoided.

Available to You.

These and similar services are available to you through the Personal Service Department if you are going to be absent from the city.

The Colonial's Radio Programs

RADIO TALKS FOR WOMEN

Each Monday morning at 11:45 Miss Ella Graubart broadcasts a friendly, helpful talk. Miss Graubart is a Pittsburgh attorney and her work brings her into intimate daily contact with the special problems which confront women. Her experience with these problems makes Miss Graubart's talks very human, very interesting and very practical.

These talks of Miss Graubert are, of course, of a general nature and she does not give advice on questions of law.

Discuss Personal Service.

The talks are illustrated with actual incidents which many women find parallel their own problems. Tune in on these Monday morning addresses and you will be amply repaid. If there is some particular problem of wide general interest to women which you would like to hear Miss Graubart discuss, write to her in care of The Colonial Trust Company.

In a recent Monday morning broadcast Miss Graubart was joined by Mrs. Karl Emmerling, head of the Personal Service Department at The Colonial, and they discussed several cases in which the Personal Service Department was able to be of service to Pittsburgh men and women.

The morning broadcasts to women under The Colonial's auspices began last spring.

November 5—Current Events Club.
November 20—Bradford Woods Civic Club.
February 28—Women's Club of Crafton.
March 19—Women's Club of Aspinwall.
May 12—Oakmont Women's Club.

In addition to the radio programs for women The Colonial has an evening musical program on KDKA. This program is broadcast each Friday evening at 7:15.

Personal Service Department Offers a Type of Help Never Available Before

BUSINESS-HELP FOR EXECUTORS

The Colonial Will Relieve Individuals of Details.

The manner in which men and women who are named as executors of estates can relieve themselves of some of the many details of that work is shown in a recent incident in the Personal Service Department of The Colonial Trust Company.

A well-to-do Pittsburgher died unmarried about a year ago. He left a large estate to his brothers and sisters. He named, as executors, two of his friends. Both of them are business men who have many demands upon their time.

A Typical Case.

One of the assets of the estate was a large house in which the deceased made his home. It was in an excellent neighborhood and is a valuable property, but after his death it was unoccupied. The executors took steps to sell it, but with all the other duties they had to assume in settlement of the estate, they simply could not personally see that it was kept up. The lawn was soon overgrown with weeds and an otherwise valuable property began to assume a somewhat seedy appearance.

At that point, they heard of the new Personal Service Department of The Colonial and asked Mrs. Emmerling whether the services of her department extended to a case like that.

The grounds were turned over to her department for care. The lawn was put in fine condition, the flower beds were weeded, the trees were trimmed and order restored.

Property Sold.

As a result it was soon profitably sold.

There are many other ways in which executors and administrators might turn over burdensome duties to this department, secure in the knowledge that they will be handled with speed and discretion and at a small expense which the court will recognize as justified.

New Department Establishes Enviable Record in First Five Months of Service—Finds Large Field for Its Work.

MRS. KARL EMMERLING, Heads Personal Service Department.

Five months ago The Colonial Trust Company inaugurated a service totally new in banking and trust business. It is known as the Personal Service Department. It was established because modern life has brought an entirely new set of conditions and responsibilities and because it seemed important that some outside agency which could be counted absolutely trustworthy should help people with these new responsibilities.

The manner in which this new department has found a place for itself is shown by the services it has already rendered. Some of them are told on this page. In these intervening five months the department has done almost everything from outfitting a boy who was going to Europe to join his grandfather to placing a large mortgage on a piece of property.

Essentially, the function of the department is to relieve you of any responsibility, no matter how confidential, which you are unable to handle because of absence from the city or any other cause. In any situation which calls for assistance you can turn to the Personal Service Department and find a capable, tactful, trustworthy agent for you. The officers of The Colonial Trust Company invite you to make use of the facilities of this new department. Think of it when you are in any quandary. Call upon it for any help you may need.

The incidents which are related on this page are just an indication of some of the conditions under which other people found this department of service to them. The way in which it can help you may be entirely different from any of these.

The department is in charge of Mrs. Karl Emmerling. She will be glad to have you talk with her about any problems you have.

WATCH HOMES IN OWNERS ABSENCE

When people have to be away from their homes for periods of two or three months, as is now a common occurrence, there is a certain element of risk which causes apprehension to many home-owners. The Personal Service Department of The Colonial Trust Company can often provide a supervision of the house which is a valuable precaution for the owner.

A service of that kind was rendered to several Pittsburghers during the present year. One customer of The Colonial, upon her return after an absence of several months, assured The Colonial that her home was in better condition upon her return than it had been after any other time she had been absent in years.

Bride's Budget Troubles Solved at The Colonial

This young woman came to the office of Mrs. Karl Emmerling, head of the department, and told a tale of financial troubles. She had been married just a few months, and had furnished a home and started housekeeping. In spite of everything she could do, the task of paying for furniture and household equipment, rent, food and other necessary expenses had become too involved for her.

Mrs. Emmerling sat down with her and worked out a complete budget. She listed all the bride's obligations, apportioned the family income to provide for these obligations at the proper time and established the proper amount which should be set aside for savings, insurance and other protective measures.

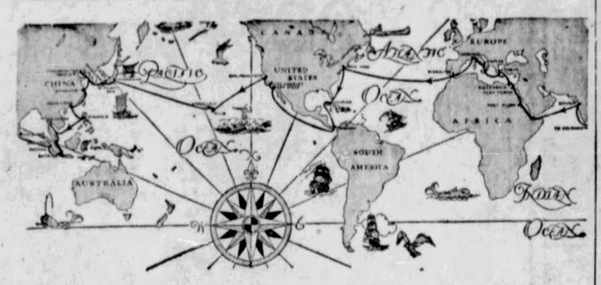
Working to that plan, the new family's financial path has become untangled and life is a much pleasanter affair. Recently the bride came in and said that a friend who had entertained for her when she was married, was about to be married herself, that she felt she should give a party for her, and asked how much she could spare for a wedding present.

"I think it would be all right for you to give your friend a wedding present, but you certainly can't afford to give an expensive party at this point—your budget simply won't stand it," Mrs. Emmerling replied.

And the bride answered with a sigh:

"You don't know what a relief it is to have someone tell you that you can't do a thing."

Take a Trip Around the World This Winter



On December 15 a line will steam out of New York harbor on a cruise around the world. Down to Cuba, around through the canal, up the California coast, westward to Honolulu, then two weeks in Japan when Japan is at its loveliest, over to China, down to the Philippines, then Siam, Java, Sumatra, Ceylon, Bombay and the Indian interior, a week in Egypt, then Greece, the Mediterranean, Italy, the Riviera in April, Monte Carlo, Nice, Gibraltar, and back across the Atlantic.

If you would like to see the world this way, ask Mrs. Emmerling of the Personal Service Department to send you one of the beautiful, illustrated books about this tour. The Personal Service Department will assist you with your reservations, arrange for your tickets, help you with your passports and vises, and assist you in every other part of your preparations.

Mrs. Emmerling has descriptive literature on many other delightful winter cruises . . . to Havana, or Bermuda, or the Orient, the Mediterranean, or a coast-to-coast trip through the Panama canal and back by rail; and a wonderful one to Africa. The Personal Service Department will be glad to help you with any of these.

Arrangements can also be made through this department for railroad tickets, Pullman reservations, and hotel accommodations on any trip you are planning.

Mother Ill, Son Absent, Bank Handles Emergency

Patient Is Met at Train by The Colonial's Personal Service Executive, Hospital Is Ready, Wheel Chair Is There, Everything Is Arranged.

A young Pittsburgher who is in business in an eastern city found himself recently in a quandary when the news came to him that his mother had been taken ill while in Europe and was returning to Pittsburgh, where she could be cared for by her own physician.

The young man telephoned The Colonial Trust Company and asked if some responsible person could arrange to meet his mother and sister at the train, secure a room for her at a certain hospital, arrange for necessary nurses, and take general care of his mother.

One of the executives of the Personal Service Department called the family physician, went to the station, secured porters to look after the luggage and a wheel chair in which the patient could be taken to a waiting taxicab. The Personal Service officer personally met the train upon its arrival, went with the patient to the hospital where a room had been engaged and assisted this customer to get settled in her hospital room, meet her nurses and get in contact with the proper hospital authorities.

The lady remained in the hospital many weeks, and during that time she was visited continually by the Personal Service officer, who did some necessary shopping, answered some notes for her and rendered many other helpful services.

Just WHY Is the A.M.C. WASHER

Such an Unprecedented Value?

$69.75

The extraordinary nature of the value represented in the A. M. C. washer is founded on the dual principle of quantity production and economic distribution. Eighteen of the country's largest stores, with many years of experience with leading makes of washers, drew up specifications which, in their opinion, comprised the most salient points of a good washing machine.

They then pooled their orders and obtained the benefit of a quantity price far lower than would be possible to an individual store.

What the A.M.C. Washer Offers:

Large porcelain-enamel tub of 8-sheet capacity.

All mechanical parts encased. Only one place to oil.

A small initial payment will deliver a new A.M.C. Washer at once—the balance to be paid over a period of months.

TIP ON BANDITS WINS $1,000

CHARLEROI, Pa., Oct. 20.—Percy Hileman, 24, of Charleroi, whose tip to Donora police resulted in the capture of Clarence and Joseph Williams, Negroes, of Uniontown, confessed bandits and alleged slayers of August Braun, West Elizabeth Council president and merchant, has been named to receive a $1,000 reward from the brothers of the slain West Elizabeth butcher.

Braun's brothers conferred with Hileman and said they would double a $500 reward which they jointly had offered, and present it to Hileman.

He will also share in $500 reward offered by the borough of West Elizabeth for the bandits' capture, it was learned.

The local man discovered the bandits while en route from Charleroi to Donora. Although he was threatened by the pair, he trailed them until they reached Donora and then notified police.

RED CROSS AID FOR JOBLESS

Unemployment relief work and home service in the smaller communities were principal problems discussed today at the annual regional conference of the American Red Cross in Hotel William Penn.

National and district workers led discussions participated in by 100 members. The audience was composed primarily of volunteer workers and chapter executives from Allegheny, Beaver, Butler, Greene, Washington, Somerset, Cambria, Indiana, Armstrong, Westmoreland and Bedford Counties.

Morning discussions were led by Henry T. McClelland, of Waynesburg; Mrs. George Phelps Rose and Miss Irene E. McDermott, of Pittsburgh, on roll call work, following an address of welcome by J. Rodgers Flannery. William G. Hunt, of Washington, also spoke.

Leading round table discussions on unemployment relief and home service were Mrs. Pauline Gardescu, Pittsburgh; J. Blaine Gwin, James K. McClintock and Miss Marie Peterson, of Washington headquarters, and Dr. H. A. Heise, Uniontown.

A Junior Red Cross play, staged by Bellevue High School students, featured the afternoon program. Additional speakers included E. C. Noyes, Pittsburgh and Mr. Hunt. A noon luncheon, with A. K. Oliver presiding, was addressed by Mr. McClintock.

SALES TRAINING DISCUSSED

Sales training programs were discussed at the opening sessions today of the Consumer Marketing Conference of the American Management Association in the William Penn Hotel with 300 members expected to attend during the three-day meet.

Training costs and methods were outlined by R. F. Lovett, personnel research department manager, Procter & Gamble Company; David R. Osborne, training director, Studebaker Corporation of America; James A. Preston, Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company; and Earl W. Barnhart, of Federal Board for Vocational Education. Vincent Coffin, sales training group chairman of the association, presided.

Training sales managers to train salesmen was declared to be as important as the selling of the product by Mr. Osborne. Among eight important selling points he cited were:

"Training must aid salesman to distinguish between real prospects and 'china eggs;' must provide practical plan for sales attributes of product and presenting them in terms of value to customers; must save his and prospect's time; must prepare him for promotion."

A dinner meeting will be held tonight at the University Club. R. H. Fogler will be the principal speaker.

JEWISH MEET ON IN CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The eighth session of the American Jewish Congress convened with an expression of regret by Bernard G. Richards, executive director, that a "positive program for American Jewry" looking beyond its immediate needs is as yet impossible of achievement.

Explaining that "our activities are of a negative character," involving protection of Jewish rights and in counteracting attacks in every form, he said a positive program "can as yet only be hinted at." He added:

"With an unrelieved, darkened horizon over the Jewries of Eastern Europe our immediate tasks are so sadly and pressingly outlined for us that it may not be given to us to at this time address ourselves to plans and ideas beyond the immediate scope, illustrating again how the crises of the hour come into constant conflict with the purposes of the years."

A banquet in honor of Harry Snell, Internationalist and member of the British parliament, was given last night. The congress closes today after a reception at the White House and the election of officers.

Forest Fire Costs $100, Drys Sued

STAUNTON, Va., Oct. 20.—(INS.)—Determined to collect $100.28—the cost of extinguishing a forest fire at Harrison last May—allegedly started by two federal prohibition agents, the commonwealth of Virginia today instituted court proceedings against H. R. Dinges and J. L. Dirting, the agents.

They are charged by Gray Barnhart, a fire warden, with starting the fire, in a raid on a still, by burning barrels.

Fatal Wreck Laid To Stones on Rails

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Small pieces of limestone, piled on the rails of the St. Louis-San Francisco system, near Osage Hills, Mo., were held by an Interstate Commerce Commission report today to have been responsible for the death of six persons and the injury of 70 others in a railroad wreck August 31.

4 HELD IN THEFT OF PIGEONS

Four men were held for court on a charge of stealing more than 100 homing pigeons, in Morals Court today. William Ruffing, 16, of 818 Parkwood road; Joseph Wagner, 27, of 501 Parkwood road; George Haid, 27, of 501 Parkwood road, and William Handlos, 22, of 2111 Brent street, admitted, police said, taking pigeons from the lofts of Albert Wilkes, 478 Belonda street, Louis Koval, 51 Lafferty avenue; Morris Walker, Becks Run road, and Thomas Davis, 13 Lafferty avenue.

Koval said his birds were traced to Ruffing's pens, and he recovered 20. Pigeons taken from the other men flew to their home lofts when released, he said.

At a later hearing Handlos and Henry Christian, 23, of 3 Gray avenue, were held for court on a charge of robbing Thomas J. McBride, of 1927 Carson street, of $47 in McKinley Park on August 8.

Over-Stout Women

No matter how heavy you are, here is an adjustable Reducing Surgical Corset, designed by one of the world's foremost corsetiers, that will just simply bring you together into the appearance of shapeliness and for the first time enable you to be comfortable all day long. To any overstout woman it will show at least a

Fifty Pound Reduction

And it will do this because it takes up all the bulge of the abdomen, rounds over the hips, curves the waist line to symmetrical appearance and brings the entire figure into comely proportions.

Makes You Shapely

Those layers of excess fat will gradually thin down. The flesh thus held more compactly will become more firm. The figure held securely induces a greater degree of activity, you don't tire easily, aches, pains and distresses caused by over-burdened fat disappear and all of this because the Corset

Holds You Perfectly

It has all the beauty and exquisite workmanship of the finest custom-made corset, but is made of special material, shaped for a stout figure, reinforced to stand strain, fits snugly at all points, feels smooth and moulded to the shape and cannot bulge, bend, wrinkle, curl up or get out of place at any point.

Try It Free

Mrs. J. A. Gilligan, the personal representative of W. S. Rice, is now here to give the ladies of Pittsburgh every opportunity to fully test his wonderful Reducing Surgical Corset.

Put it on and see how charmingly it feels, how perfectly it brings you into shape, how nice and comfortable you feel, how easily you breathe, how actively you become, how you can bend over without strain, walk upstairs like a girl and wear modern gowns with all the appearance and freedom of a perfect figure.

It is made by W. S. Rice, Inc., in the largest and most complete factory of its kind in the world. And if you have been so unfortunate as to have undergone a surgical operation that has left the abdomen weak, a simple attachment of air cushions gives perfect protection.

THE NEW FORD

BEAUTY COMFORT SAFETY
SPEED POWER ECONOMY
LONG LIFE *RELIABILITY

Ford

* Of all the features of the new Ford there is none more important than reliability. It is a reflection of the substantial worth of the car.

Evidence of the high quality built into the Ford is the extensive use of ball and roller bearings. There are more than twenty in all — an unusually large number. From the engine to the road, the entire drive of the new Ford on all forward speeds is wholly on ball and roller bearings.

In addition to smoother operation, this saves gasoline, gives the car more speed and power, decreases noise and increases the durability and efficiency of every moving part.

Another important factor in good performance is the care with which the car is made. The aluminum pistons are an interesting example of precision manufacture.

Though weighing more than a pound each, they are made so accurately that they do not vary more than two grams in weight. In size they are held true to within one one-thousandth of an inch. The wrist-pin holes in the pistons are diamond bored to within a limit of three ten-thousandths of an inch. In each motor, complete piston and connecting-rod assemblies are not permitted to vary from each other by more than 3½ grams.

Throughout the car you find many other instances of this same accuracy in the manufacture and assembly of vital mechanical parts. Combined with simplicity of design and high quality of materials, it is the reason for the economy and long life of the car and the satisfactory service it is giving millions of owners the world over.

See the nearest dealer and have him give you a demonstration ride in the new Ford. You will know then that it brings you everything you want or need in an automobile at an unusually low price.

Note These Low Prices

There is a Ford car for every need at an unusually low price. Appointments and upholstery are in keeping with its mechanical excellence. You may choose from a variety of body colors.

You can purchase a Ford for a small down payment and convenient monthly payments. Ask your Ford dealer for details of the Universal Credit Company financing plan.

SLAYER WOUNDS SELF IN BLAST

SAN QUENTIN, Cal., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—An ingenious attempt to end his life resulted in probably fatal injuries to William Kogut, 36, convicted murderer, awaiting execution.

Kogut wrenched a piece of tubing from his cell bed, filled it with water and placed a lighted kerosene lamp under it.

After plugging the end of the tubing, Kogut lay down to await death. In a terrific explosion he suffered a mangled face which physicians said probably would cause his death.

Kogut, a lumberjack, was convicted in Butte County for stabbing to death Mrs. Mayme Guthrie, rooming house proprietor, May 29.

RICH, ECCENTRIC WOMAN SLAIN

GARY, Ind., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mary Janovich, 65, wealthy eccentric, known as the "cat woman" because her home was a haven for stray felines, was found slain yesterday. Police said she had been choked to death, with robbery as a probable motive.

The body was discovered in her home by a rental agent who came there to show prospective tenants about the place. The victim had been dead about three days.

Mrs. Janovich, one of whose eccentricities was to go about begging food for her large collection of cats, was said to have been distrustful of banks and was believed by police to have hidden large sums of money about the house.

FIND CAR, HUNT BODY OF DRY

SPRINGER, N. M., Oct. 28.—(AP.)—Discovery of the blood-stained automobile of Ray Sutton, Federal dry agent, missing since August 28, today had confirmed belief of officers that he was murdered by bootleggers.

A posse aiding searching prohibition agents late yesterday began dragging a lake near Taylor, N. M., where the automobile was found. It was thought the agent's body might have been thrown in the lake.

So carefully had Sutton's car been covered by brush, that the hiding place had escaped posses of hundreds of men and a Colorado National Guard plane which combed the mountainous country after Sutton disappeared. The car had been covered over with brush. The machine was found by Prohibition Agent C. U. Findley.

British Women Held Best in Politics

LONDON, Oct. 28.—(AP.)—American women excel British women in business, in the opinion of Miss Mary Agnes Hamilton, M. P., but in politics British women have made much more progress, although not having the vote so long. The reason, as she gave it in an international radiocast, is that politics in the United States is not held in the highest esteem.

LUCKY GIRL

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Chester Says That Cathie Murdered Husband

CHAPTER XLIX.

Chester Farnsworth mounted the stand. He looked more than usually sallow, and there were dark circles under his eyes, as though he had not been sleeping.

Cathie thought he shot a malevolent look at her, and she gazed back at him steadily. She wasn't afraid any more. Cheong and Gordon had given her courage.

Chester spoke in a low monotone. Frequently he had to be asked to speak louder. He denied all of the accusations that had been brought against him, denied any illicit relations with Marguerite.

"Impossible," he said. "If it were possible to find the woman who has been spirited away by someone—"

"Just what do you mean by that?"

Chester declined to answer. He didn't mean anything, he said, but if it were possible to produce the woman he felt sure that any doubt would be dispelled. "She was untidy, slovenly, a creature of offensive habits and miserable disposition. Certainly not one who would appeal to any man of fastidious taste. Her treatment at the hands of my father, my dead mother and myself was the kindest. It is gross ingratitude on her part to spread slanderous tales about us. If she were here I could make her admit it."

Attorneys Argue

If she were here. . . . A long, bitter argument between the attorneys, Mr. Allan tactfully suggesting that the district attorney might know her whereabouts, the district attorney, with equal tact and bitterness suggesting that Mr. Allan should be the one to find her.

Then Judge East put a stop to it, and Chester's testimony was resumed.

Yes, Chester admitted, he had discussed his father's second wife with Enid, his own wife. He had had no reason to suspect his maid of listening. No, he did not know that Marguerite was ever a visitor in his home. He would not have allowed such a thing. He reiterated that his father had agreed to a divorce, had decided to change his will. He told of the party at the home of his friends, of his determination to walk over and talk to his father about the matter.

"I had accidentally burst in upon the lovers — Catherine Farnsworth and Mr. Moore, twice," he stated. "I could not bear to have my father made such a fool of. I also hoped to save what was left of the family fortunes. My father had already made this woman a marriage settlement and squandered many thousands of dollars upon her. I hoped to save something out of what was left."

Cathie stared at Mr. Allan in amazement. Why didn't he do something? Why didn't he jump up and say Chester was lying? She plucked at his coat, timidly—"Mr. Allan, we ought to—"

What was that Chester was saying . . . "charge this woman with the murder of my father . . . convinced . . . saw everything but the actual shooting . . ."

Damaging Testimony

Mr. Allan was objecting now, but what good was it doing him? Chester was going right on, speaking in his low, sure voice . . . "I saw her in the window as I came up the street. I wondered what she was doing in my father's room . . . I had gone into the garden to look up and call to him, to see if he was awake. The lights were out, but he often lay awake in the dark, all night long."

"You saw your—the defendant, Catherine Farnsworth, lean out of the window. Did she have a gun in her hand?"

"Not at that time. She merely leaned out and looked up and down the street."

"You were able to identify her positively? There is no doubt in your mind that it was the defendant?"

"Describe her appearance."

"She was wearing a silk and lace negligee, with long flowing ribbons from the shoulders. I remember that particularly because when I came face to face with her in the room some two hours later she was wearing a nightdress of entirely different cut and trimming. I was struck with that at the time."

"Describe what you did."

"I did nothing. I remained where I was in the shade of a tree, looking up. She did not see me. While I was wondering what had brought her to my father's room, I heard a shot. I ran half way around toward the front door. Then I turned and looked up at the window again, and as I looked she came to the window again and leaned heavily against the side of it—it was open, do you understand? It is a very long window, and for a second I thought she had lost her balance, and would fall out. Then she righted herself and braced one arm against the window ledge. In her hand she held a pistol. I watched, fascinated and horrified. She did not see me, although I was now standing in the open lawn. She seemed suddenly to see the pistol in her hand. She opened her mouth and made some faint, gurgling sound. Then she threw the pistol back into the room, and staggered from the window."

Denies His Story

"What did you do then?"

"I did not know what to do. I walked out to the curbing and sat down. I think I sat there for the better part of two hours. I was frightfully shocked. I knew without any doubt that it was my father who was killed with that gun. Something seemed to tell me so. I was partly stunned I think, for it did not occur to me to go to him, or to call for help. I was tremendously relieved when I heard the coroner's statement that my father died in his sleep and almost instantly, for otherwise I could not excuse myself for my weakness in giving way to my grief without going to his aid. I knew even then that Catherine Paige had killed my father, even before I went into the house and saw him dead and her guilty face, and her changed gown, and the crying maid. Marguerite, who was trying to lie and shield her—"

Mr. Allan was holding on to Cathie's arm, forcibly keeping her in her chair. Mr. Gunther was whispering in her ear. The judge was tapping for order, the bailiff was shouting, two newspapermen were fighting to get out of the door first with the news.

But Cathie didn't see them, she didn't see anything but Chester, nor hear anything but what he was saying.

"It's a lie, Chester Farnsworth!"

"No, no—calm yourself. Keep quiet," Mr. Gunther was begging.

"Shh—for God's sake!" from Mr. Allan.

Somebody held a bottle of smelling salts under her nose. She dashed it away, pushed everybody away, struggled to her feet, her face white and set, eyes blazing—

"It's a lie. I don't care! You can't make me keep quiet, anybody! It's a lie! I didn't kill Mr. Farnsworth—I didn't—I didn't—I didn't—"

By FAY KING

All the attractive colors and shapes of sugar-coated pills do not fool us. We have learned from experience that they are not what they seem.

But neither are we deceived by the forbidding burr which protects the meaty chestnut.

Even children search for it and pounce upon it with joy, because they well know in spite of its Lon Chaney makeup they have found a treasure.

And so it is with folks we meet in life. Their marshmallow manners do not hide from us the bitterness they would hide with never ending sugar smiles and words.

Nor are we deceived by the frown-like burr which often conceals an understanding heart.

Veritzen—Detective Puzzle Discussed

Mary stared at me for a long minute while she digested the theory I had just advanced that Philip Veritzen's espionage had been directed to Harry Underwood and myself because of the work he had entrusted to us, rather than to her. Then she shook her curly head decidedly, while a skeptical smile touched the corners of her mouth.

"No," she said. "The colors on that theory are not sunfast. He's not crazy, and only an insane person would doubt you or Mr. Underwood."

"I'm not so sure, Mary," I said judicially, with the devout hope that I had enough histrionic ability to make my words plausibly impressive. "I'm not at all sure that Mr. Veritzen is altogether sane. In fact, I think he has shown distinct signs of monomania, or, at least, egomania, more than once. He is a man who is apt to get any insane idea into his head and act upon it."

"I know," Mary nodded her head vigorously. "That just proves what I've been saying. The only time he's acted crazy is when he's been making a balloon ascension over Noel not cottoning to Princess Olina, as he'd set his heart upon the match. He hasn't bothered himself about anything else that I've heard of, and I've been sticking around pretty close."

I loosened my grasp on her arms and motioned her to a seat opposite me before I spoke.

"My dear child," I said at last with purposeful loftiness, "you know nothing whatever of Philip Veritzen's professional affairs since you severed your connection with him."

"Nice of you to dress it up that way,' she said with nonchalance, in which there was bitterness. "You mean when he kicked me out."

"Therefore," I went on, ignoring her interruption, "you have no reason for your assumption that his only insane ideas are those concerning his son's matrimonial plans. But there is Purnell with the tea," as a knock sounded upon the door. "Will you go, dear?"

I was glad to give her something to do, equally pleased to have a minute or two to pull myself together. When Purnell had deftly placed the tea things on a table and made his smiling, deferential exit, I spoke firmly:

"We're going to declare a truce," I said. "No discussion of unpleasant subjects over the tea things.'

"That surely bars old Phil Veritzen, Esquire," Mary said stoutly. "He's about the most unpleasant subject I know just now."

"I think I agree with you, Mary," I told her smiling. "So we won't mention his name again until the Underwoods join us. And then I want you to be a good little girl and trot into your room while we older people go into a committee of ways and means."

"Just watch me trot," she retorted. "The way I feel now I'll go in and hide my head under the pillows until somebody comes to assure me they've put that man in a straitjacket There! You see I didn't mention his name. Will you have cream or lemon, Auntie Madge?"

"Lemon," I decided, and we proceeded to discuss our tea leisurely and enjoyable. I did not believe we should be interrupted, and, indeed Purnell had been summoned back and had cleared the tea things away a good ten minutes before Harry's knock sounded on the door.

"Will you come over?" he said. "Lil isn't quite up to leaving her own fireside."

"Do you mind if I stay here?" Mary asked.

"Very much," Mr. Underwood replied promptly. "You needn't join our executive session if you don't want to, but no leaving you in the empty apartment at this juncture, if you don't mind. Bring along a book or some writing and choose any room you like save the living room."

"I don't want a book, thank you," Mary said.

"I crave sleep and lots of it. If nobody minds my taking a nap, that's my programme."

"Best thing you could do," Mr. Underwood agreed heartily, and, taking the key from my hand, he locked our door and escorted Mary and me through the door of his own apartment, which he had left ajar.

Lillian was sitting in front of the fire in a comfortable negligee, her head resting against the chair back, as if she were spent with weariness. That there had been tears, grateful ones, I guessed, in the interview just concluded.

I knew as I looked at her eyes, though she had so cleverly concealed their ravages that no one save a friend knowing her every mood and tense, as did I, could have guessed that she had been weeping. But there was something like the soft light of a candle in her face which told me that she had found happiness for which she longed in her husband's steadfast love.

When Mary had excused herself and gone into a room beyond earshot of us, Harry Underwood spoke incisively.

"Now, let's have the works," he said, "as quickly as you can. I've got to round up this Veritzen bird and manhandle him."

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Decline and Fall of Sin

This is going to be a pretty good world in the very near future. Because SIN is losing all its popularity, and becoming as prosaic and innnocuous as breakfast foods.

* * *

Once sin was rare and exceptional. It was either black or purple or red. Now, it is just a dull, faded mauve and as prevalent as hayfever.

Once, you could sit virtuously at home and feel shivers go up and down your spine, as you read about "Sin" in a sensational novel or a lurid magazine. But now, all the players and books and musical comedies are so full of sin that it is positively refreshing to find one that deals with the emotions of clean, wholesome people.

* * *

"Beautiful Sinners and Savage Sins," announces the advertisement of a new motion picture. Ho-hum. Well, sin has GOT to be awfully savage, these days, to keep us from yawning.

Once it gave us a real kick to go to see plays like "Mrs. Warren's Profession." But the only play that is a novelty nowadays is one without a successful crook or a gold-digger or a racketeer in it. Even SIN can be overdone!

The trouble with sin is that, like love-making, it's getting to be too EASY and too casual. Of course, murder is still considered immoral and blackmail is not considered "nice." But, lots of things that were once delightful "sins" are not sins any more.

For instance, it's not a sin to stay away from church and play golf on Sunday morning. It's just "relaxation." It's not a sin for a woman to wear trousers and smoke cigarets. It's not a sin for a girl to paint her face or to let a man kiss her, when she has not the slightest intention of marrying him. Or to go to lunch with another woman's husband.

All these things were "sins" in the good, old over-stuffed mauve decade. Now they are just customs.

Those fascinating people, "the man with a past" and the "dangerous woman," are no more. Every man's past, present and future is more or less orchid, and every woman HOPES that she is "dangerous."

* * *

"Temptation" used to be something that a woman was taught to resist, and a man was looking for. Now, every girl tries to LOOK like a "temptation," and every man tries to dodge it. It bores him so!"

* * *

Sin, like cigarets, is getting too much advertising and losing all of its piquancy and flavor. We are so TIRED of "sin," that a good book, a clean play and decent people are actually a delightful RELIEF!

* * *

Fads come and go in America; and pretty soon sin will be out of the picture, along with Mah Jong and the Rubaiyat. And a good reputation will be absolutely smart!

A Glass Tube

Don't try to give the patient who is unable to sit up a drink out of a glass and just trust to luck you will not spill it. Purchase a glass tube at a drug store and feed the invalid through this. It will cost much less than the danger done by your spilling.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Tuesday, October 21

The stellar mutations bearing rule on this day point to important moves of major magnitude. There may be events moving to high climaxes, although the final outcome depends upon tactful relations with superiors, employers and those who might be able to advance these crises. Fine judgment and acumen may move affairs to the goal of the ambitions. Make changes with precaution. Sign papers warily.

Those whose birthday it is are assured of a year of great opportunities, with many channels moving to the goal of high ambitions. But all must be managed with sagacity, preserving the confidence and assistance of those in places of power and authority, especially safeguarding the employment. Sign papers discreetly and protect the finances by conservatism and ability.

A child born on this day will be splendidly endowed to attain success and good position in life, but it may be disposed to be extravagant and reckless with its funds and to incline to run counter to its best interests in dealing with employers or those in places of power.

TELL IT TO SALLY

By SALLY MARTIN

Don't Pick a 'Hop-Dream' for Your Hero When There Are Real Men to Be Had

Rudy Vallee "may have faults" . . . but her "heart thrills at the thought of him!" And she thinks I'm an Old Meanie because I told a love-sick sister to snap out of her dreams and act human.

Are you, perchance, also mashed on the Curly Crooner? If so, you're going to get a big bang out of Jeannette.

"Dear Miss Martin:

"I've done a lot of thinking over one of your articles, entitled 'She Has the Rudy Vallee Blues and She's Crooning Her Life Away.' And I think that you are very wrong to speak as you did to poor Betty.

"Why? Because I'm exactly like her. I too, am terribly and madly in love with Rudy. Of course I'm a little different than Betty, because I do keep dates with other boys, but I haven't met one who could ever thrill me like Rudy does, and I've met a few, too.

"And since I read that article, I don't admire you nearly so much. It showed a different attitude than you ever have taken before, and I don't like it.

"You may have thought that your advice was good and sound, but you know very well that not one of us will take it. We couldn't. If you had ever been madly in love as we are, you would understand what it means, but I guess you never have been, or you wouldn't have talked the way you did.

"I know Rudy has faults. We all have, but he is wonderful, too, and my heart just thrills to thoughts of him.

"I should think you would sympathize with Betty, instead of hurting her. I would have. But then I know just how she feels, and I guess you don't. I know because I feel just like she does. JEANETTE."

Nor is Jeanette alone in her worship of the Boy with the Coo. Believe it or not, the girls are making clubs about him!

"Dear Sally—

"I've just finished reading Betty's letter, and I don't agree with your answer at all. I, too, have 'Rudy Vallitis,' and do you know what I did for comfort? I organized a club for all who were thus afflicted. We have wonderful times groaning over each other's pangs of love for Rudy. It happened to us all about the same time. This is how it happened to me.

"First I saw his picture and fell in love with that. Then I heard his voice, and fell for it. Then I put the two together, and I've never been the same since. I saw his picture a dozen times. I buy every magazine, in hopes of finding a picture or a bit of news about him. I write poems about him. I draw pictures of him, and hang them all over the house until Mother doesn't know whether she's coming or going.

"I know I will never be able to like anyone else, but I don't want to be cured. I like it. What would I have to look forward to, if it weren't for his broadcasts? I've found my solace in doing something for him, and for the household who also worship him.

"You ask what this man has that makes the girls fall? Well, he's typical of the real American boy, who has striven for fame, and who deserves all he gets. I'd rather stick to Rudy Vallee than to be tied down to some of the dissipated so-called sheiks one sees on the streets every day. Where will they get? And I think Betty's lucky, as are all of us who have fallen for Rudy, for he is worthy of our every tribute.

"Sincerely—

"H. F., Pres.

"Vallee Vagabond Club., Chicago, Ill."

However, don't be too discouraged, Boys. The girls haven't all Gone Vallee. There are some who still appreciate others. As, for instance—Mitzi, Kitty and Mary. One man in a canoe is worth 20 on the air, according to these lively young ladies.

"Sally dear—

"Ha! We got a great bang out of that article about the girl who imagined she was in love with Rudy Vallee, and we'd appreciate it if you'd print this for the benefit of her . . . and all the other victims suffering from this epidemic of Rudy Vallee. If she and the others keep on the way they're going, they'll all end up . . . silly, sickly spinsters, instead of happily married mothers.

"Betty, you're right in the best years of life right now. And doubtlessly opportunity has knocked at your door many times, but you've passed it up, to moon around in the fog like nobody's business. And you certainly picked yourself a hop dream when you selected Rudy for your hero.

"Why not look around and get yourself a Regular Guy, not one who 'keeps you in a trance?' We're not laughing at you. Oh, no! We're just having hysterics, that's all. Get wise to yourself! If you want Romance, why not do as we do . . . go in for the Real Thing? Go swimming, dancing, moonlight canoeing, with live men, instead of wasting your time glumping around dreaming of some crooner?

"Stop dreaming these silly, impossible dreams, and put yourself in circulation for some real, honest-to-goodness sport and happiness.

"Sure, you'll butt up against some faults and exasperations with the fellows you meet and go out with. But you'd butt up against them just the same if you ever met this grand pash of yours. He's only human, just like the rest of us. And if you ask us, I'll bet he's bored to tears with all this gush you've spilled.

"It's a cinch that someone has sadly neglected to teach you any sense. But you'd better collect some from somewhere, if you don't want to end up with nothing in your life but a cat and a geranium. Join the 'Anti-Rudy Brigade' and live!

"We Demand Men!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Wedding Announcements

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it proper for the bride's parents to send wedding announcements to the groom's relatives? A Bride-to-Be.

Undoubtedly the groom's parents will be invited to the wedding, and people invited to the wedding are not sent wedding announcements. The groom's parents should be sent invitations to the wedding, but, if they are invited to the wedding, not announcements. Indeed, their invitation to the wedding is the most important invitation and should be the first one sent. It should be addressed: Mr. and Mrs. Irving Walton. And a separate invitation should be sent to every one of the groom's brothers and sisters.

Announcing One's Self

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

If one is without calling cards, and enters a place of business where the announcement of her arrival is necessary, what is the correct form for repeating the name to the secretary's question, "What's the name, please?" Should the caller reply "Smith" or "Miss Smith?" R.

Miss Smith.

An Error in the Guest List

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Some friends are to be married. The best man is to stand up with the bride's sister, but he has a girl friend and they all have been friends for several years. Did the bride and groom show poor taste in not inviting her to the wedding at all?

Patsy.

If the wedding isn't to be very small, with only the families invited, the close friend of the best man, whom they have known for so long and so well, should most certainly have been invited to the wedding.

The Formal Engagement Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When giving an informal engagement party which is to be a catered affair, would it be incorrect for the engaged couple to wear formal evening clothes?

I.

If the party is to be given in the evening, this form of dress would be the best of form. This is a charmingly formal occasion, and demands formal attire to do it honor.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Rheumatic Pains and Changes in Weather

A popular notion, long believed by everybody, is that sufferers from rheumatism are good weather prophets. Recent experiments made by scientists of the Mayo Foundation appear to prove this age old theory.

DR COPELAND

How often have we heard somebody say: "I feel it in my bones that it is going to rain." But just why this should be true has never really been solved.

According to a report made to the American Medical Association a short time ago, the Mayo investigators studied, over a period of a year, 367 patients suffering from arthritis, or rheumatism. The study was undertaken to determine whether there was actually any relationship existing between rheumatic pains and the changes in the weather.

It is reported that for more than 90 per cent of the time the experiments showed a relationship between stormy weather and an increase in the pain. During 72 per cent of the time the patients seemed to suffer more pain as the barometric pressure fell. During a rise of pressure they experienced relief. For 21 per cent of the time the curve of pain ascended as the barometric pressure descended, and vice versa.

There are included in the experiments observations on the humidity, temperature and atmospheric electricity. It was thought that these factors working together might have some effect.

It is well known how restless birds and animals are before a storm. They seem to have a foreknowledge of approaching bad weather long before there is any sign of it in the sky. Seagulls often come far inshore before a storm. Migratory birds are on the wing at such a time. Hogs bed themselves down and cattle seek shelter long before a change in the weather is noted by man.

Rheumatism, and many other diseases, cause the nerves to be particularly sensitive. In bad weather the low barometric pressure, which has its effect on the free action of skin and a consequent lessening of the escape of water from the body, sets up a nerve irritation. The perspiration is lessened, and on this account probably the rheumatic pain increases.

Persons who suffer from rheumatism should keep the bowels freely open. They should be moderate in eating and drinking and avoid alcoholic drinks. They should lead a simple, regular life.

Local treatments of dry heat, stimulating liniments, electricity and judicious massage will help the rheumatic pains. But as rheumatism is, directly or indirectly, a germ disease, the only real cure is a clearing up of the seat of the trouble. It may be in infected teeth, tonsils or adenoids, or from the toxic poisons in the intestinal tract. There are many causes for this condition. A doctor should be consulted in all cases of rheumatism, and especially in cases appearing in growing children.

DEEMS SOVIET'S FATE PUZZLE

Attempting to answer whether Soviet Russia can endure was declared futile by the Rev. Dr. John Ray Ewers last night in the third of a series of addresses on Russia at the End End Christian Church. Dr. Ewers said:

"All Russia is mad as another five-year plan is going forward. The enthusiasm, privation and hectic toil are beyond words. On the Dnieper, a hydro-electric plant costing $100,000,000, is nearing completion. Oil is now piped to the sea. Coal production is increased. Cotton is on the up-grade.

"As the second year of the plan closes this month, they plan to more than double all industrial production within the five years. Wages are to be increased and production costs lowered. Peasants are being whipped into line. They must be socialized or the whole plan fails. Only two per cent of business is in private hands.

"With bated breath we watch this experiment in Russia. Do not fool yourself, Russia flies in the face of all that we hold dear: religion, private property, romantic love and the modern American family. I do not marvel that we dread Bolshevism."

BANKS HOLDING BOB MILLIONS

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(Universal.)—A sum of $3,000,000, belonging to Charles V. Bob, missing capitalist, and his associates, is being held in Chicago banks under escrow, authorities declared today as the financier's disappearance entered its third week.

This slum is held by the banks, according to Watson Washburn, deputy attorney general, as a result of the complicated financing involved in Bob's attempt to gain control in his fight over the Neon light interests.

At the same time it was revealed in Chicago that Bob and his associates have forfeited a $500,000 option when the transaction to buy a $7,000,000 interest in the Federal Electric Company of that city failed.

for Difficult Coughs from Colds

Husband Had to Do Her Work

"When my baby was a month old, I took a heavy cold and after that I felt miserable. Could not lift anything. My husband had to help me with the housework. I was so weak I could not do a washing. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in the Kittaning paper and I gave it a good trial. Before I had taken half a bottle, I found the difference. I do all my own work now and I have told others how much this medicine helped me."—Mrs. Alice Bassett, Cadogan, Pennsylvania.

STEP-MOTHER HELD IN DEATH OF GIRL

Body of Child Found in Lake Reveals Clues of Murder; Had Eaten Glass

DENVER, Col., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, wife of a city detective, was held for questioning today by police investigators, who have established that her 10-year-old step-daughter, Leona O'Loughlin, was the victim of brutal murder.

She was arrested yesterday when an autopsy over the child's body, discovered in City Park Lake Friday, revealed physicians said, that Leona had been fed ground glass, beaten unconscious and hurled into the lake to drown.

The stepmother of the youthful victim of foul play declared in the face of hours of questioning that she knew nothing about the slaying or the presence of glass in Leona's stomach. She remained overnight in the matron's quarters with no charge lodged against her.

The slain girl's father, Leo O'Loughlin, is in a hospital apparently recovering from eating ground glass. When questioned by police, Mrs. O'Loughlin said she had been ill, as had her son by a previous marriage, Douglas Millican, 8. She said she believed the illness was induced by eating glass.

Physicians conducted an examination, but said they could find no symptoms other than that the woman was weak from a 48-hour fast.

DRY CHIEF OFF TO WEST

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—With stops planned in Indiana and Illinois, Prohibition Director Amos W. W. Woodcock today was entering into the final phases of his nation-wide survey of the government's dry machine.

By the end of the week Woodcock expected to invade the vineyard country of the Far West, where interest has been centered recently because of official government reports showing that a tremendous volume of grapes go into wine in the United States annually.

Woodcock seeks first hand information as to Pacific coast conditions. He does not intend, however, to interfere with the legitimate distribution of the grape crop. In fact, Woodcock recently indicated there was nothing the federal government could do about home wine-making.

VOTING MACHINE USE INSURED IN FAYETTE

Injunction Suit Fight Fails To Develop; Attempt Made To Block Purchase Money

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Oct. 20.—Jamestown (N. Y.) voting machines will be used in Uniontown and Connellsville in the coming election.

The expected move by Attorney Anthony J. Cavalcante to obtain an injunction against the machines developed into an attempt to withhold the payment of money for the machines until it could be determined whether they were defective as alleged in a former petition presented by the attorney.

Mr. Cavalcante made no move to block the use of the machines at the coming election.

Joseph J. Baer, Fayette County solicitor, declared that he had an agreement with the company producing the machines that in case of defects the contract price would be held up until the machines met with the entire approval of the commissioners.

Judges Thomas H. Hudson, S. John Morrow and Davis W. Henderson reserved their opinion as to the payments on the machines.

Hundreds of persons leaped into the stream from blazing boats. Some of them managed to reach shore, but scores were reported to have drowned.

Treasure Buried in River 500 Years to Be Raised

BUDAPEST, Oct., 20.—(Universal.)—Two valleys, laden with gold and treasures of every description, lying buried for more than 500 years on the bottom of the Danube River, are to be brought to light again by Prof. Tibor Gerevich, of the University of Budapest.

The galleys belonged to the private fleet of Queen Maria of Hungary in the thirteenth century. When the Turks invaded Hungary, King Louis II, husband of Queen Maria, was killed in a fight at Mohacs, in 1426, in which the Hungarians were defeated.

His widow tried to save some of her personal property out of the country's ruin. Twenty-four hours after the news of the Mohacs disaster had come to the castle of Buda, a fleet of 72 galleys, laden with gold, gems and other treasures tarted up the Danube for the western frontier.

Seventy galleys arrived at their destination. Two of them, however, sank and they have stayed at the bottom of the river to this day.

BREAKS RECORD IN FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA

Kingsford-Smith Lowers Time From England Five Days; Speeds to Fiancee

PORT DARWIN, Northern Territory, Australia, Oct. 20. — (AP.) — Dashing across a continent to reach the side of his fiancee, Wing Commander Charles Kingsford-Smith today flew southeastward over the 2,000-mile route to Sydney after lowering by more than five days the record for a flight between England and Australia.

He will marry Miss Mary Powell just as quickly as she will consent after his arrival at Sydney. For her sake this man whom many have compared favorably with Col. Lindbergh, will forsake the uncharted air paths of the world and settle down to more humdrum but less dangerous air-liner piloting between Sydney and Melbourne.

NEARLY 10 HOURS

Kingsford-Smith swooped down here at 2 p. m. yesterday (4:30 a. m. G. M. T. or 11:30 p. m. October 18 Eastern standard time) in completion of a flight which in nine days and 23 hours had brought him across 10,000 miles of plain and mountain, jungle and ocean from Heston Airdrome, England, to the northwestern tip of the world's smallest continent.

His mark bettered by five and one-half days the record of 15 and one-half days set by Bert Hinkler in February, 1928. The trip was made in defiance of doctor's orders, who considered that Kingsford-Smith, who recently has had two operations and two bouts with influenza, was in no condition to fly nearly half around the world.

The aviator insisted upon leaving at dawn today on the concluding lap of the journey to the side of his fiancee, whom he said he hoped to marry at least within two or three weeks. He said:

"But of course the date depends on the lady. We planned to marry September 3, but I couldn't make that date. I have promised her that if this trip is successful we would spend our honeymoon in Honolulu. The problem now is to get the necessary funds."

RECEIVES MESSAGE

While discussing his marriage he was opening telegrams, and he laughed as he read one aloud:

"Marvelous effort, darling. Love. "MARY."

He commented:

"Even she says it was marvelous."

He said he would resume his piloting over the Sydney-Melbourne route and would organize night flying and would attempt to reduce the flying time between the two cities to nine hours.

The worst part of his trip, Kingsford-Smith said, was in the passage across the Alps. His plane, a 125-horsepower, single-engined Avro "Avian," which he called the "Southern Cross, Jr.," bucked like a wild horse, and he would have been thrown out, he said, except for his safety belt. Another bad lap was from Rangoon, Burma, to Singapore.

PASSES RIVAL

Kingsford-Smith, who also has flown across both Atlantic and Pacific oceans, left behind him at Atomboea, on the Island of Timor, Flight Lieut. C. W. Hill, who had hoped to beat him to Australia. Saturday, however, Hill cracked up his plane at Atapoepoe, only one lap from Port Darwin, just when it appeared he would break Hinkler's record by one day.

Kingsford-Smith, setting his plane down at Atamboea, noticed Hill's plight. He offered to cut his own flight short and return to Singapore to get help for the stranded man, who was not injured, from Royal Air Force men there. Hill refused and when he learned Kingsford-Smith had no rubber boat persuaded him to take his own for the flight across the dangerous Timor Sea.

"I was so moved," Kingsford-Smith said, "I had to turn away to keep from showing my emotion."

SPLIT AVERTED IN HOOVER LAW QUIZ RANKS

Agreement to Report on Dry Situation Halts Possible Walkout of 3 Members

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The recent decision of the Hoover law enforcement commission to make the report on prohibition its immediate business may have averted a break-up within the commission membership.

Judge William S. Kenyon, of Iowa, led a movement to force the prohibition report, and little surprise was expressed in commission headquarters today at reports that Kenyon at one time considered resigning.

The jurist was supported in his demand that the commission report on prohibition "without any pussyfooting" by Kenneth Mackintosh, of Washington, and Henry W. Anderson, of Virginia.

ALL REPUBLICANS

All three are Republicans and regarded as advocates of prohibition.

After a long wrangle at its opening session here early this month, the commission acceded to the demands that it work out the prohibition problem. No report is expected before Congress meets early in December.

Senator Glass (Dem.), Virginia, led a movement in the Senate last session to force the commission to confine its activities to a study of prohibition.

DRAFTING REPORT NOW

At the same time, it has now developed, Judge Kenyon and the insurgent members of the commission were seeking to force an immediate report on the subject.

The commission ordered further investigation of the wet and dry problem during the summer and under the leadership of Chairman Wickersham is now engaged in drafting the report.

PARK OPPOSING TILLES PARDON

Andrew T. Park, district attorney, will strenuously oppose a pardon for Albert H. Tilles, 46, of Ingram, who is serving a life sentence for the death of his son, Albert H. Tilles, Jr., 17, on February 1, 1925.

Tilles was convicted of shooting the boy as he sat writing a letter, said to have been dictated by the father, and telling of a suicide pact between the pair. Tilles then shot himself.

Park has written a protest to S. H. Hoy, secretary of the State Board of Pardons, in which he said:

"I do not believe this defendant (Tilles) is a fit man to be returned to society. I oppose a pardon for him most strenuously."

PLANES HUNT MISSING BOAT

DETROIT, Oct. 20.—(INS.)—Army airplanes from Selfridge Field today circled over Lake St. Clair hunting a 65-foot combination sail and motor boat with four Detroit men aboard, which has been missing since Thursday.

Relatives of the men declared that the craft may have taken refuge in some port. The boat is said to be seaworthy and those in charge are experienced sailors.

Manning the boat are Joseph Daoust and Morris Trepanier.

The craft set out from Belle River, Ont., Thursday and was to have returned yesterday. A gale lashed the lake Friday and snow flurries and heavy winds swept it Saturday and yesterday. There is a slim hope that the boat outweathered the storms.

U. S. Probes Beating Of American Citizen

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—State Department officials today said a "very careful" investigation had been ordered by the embassy at Warsaw into the case of Justyn Fedoryszyn, American citizen of Ukrainian origin, who was reported to have been beaten by Polish soldiers. Officials said if charges were found to be correct, there would be the possibility of a protest by this government.

Panels Morgan Gave New Church Finished

LOCUST VALLEY, N. Y., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—When J. P. Morgan next passes the plate at the Episcopal Church of St. John's he will see panels of carved English oak which have been finished during his absence in Europe. He provided the funds and the work began two years ago.

MOVIE REVIEWS COMBINED WITH NEWS FROM HOLLYWOOD AND NEW YORK

Charles Farrell May Wed Virginia Valli Before Current Year Ends

By HARRISON CARROLL
(Copyright, 1930, Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 20.

Filmdom is buzzing with the rumors of another important wedding before the end of 1930.

Sometime in the near future, they say, Charles Farrell and Virginia Valli will march to the altar.

Miss Valli has told a number of her friends of the approaching event, although she has named no date or place.

The wedding of these two would be no surprise to the film colony, as they have been seen together for several years.

Charles Farrell

Miss Valli has been married once before to Denny Lamson, an actor's agent. Farrell is one of Hollywood's most eligible bachelors. In former years, he was rumored engaged to Janet Gaynor, but she has since married Lydell Peck, of San Francisco.

For the first time in many months, Charlie and Janet are to be reunited as a screen team in "The Man Who Came Back."

BE NONCHALANT

Esther Ralston relates that the horn on her car became jammed at the corner of Hollywood and Highland. As she sat there in helpless embarrassment, an unknown wag stepped out of the crowd and handed her a cigaret.

GLORIA'S MUSICAL

The plan for Gloria Swanson to star in the De Sylva, Brown and Henderson musical at United Artists, is very much to the fore these days.

Conferences have been held between Gloria and the three phenomena of the musical comedy world, and she is understood to have given her consent if a suitable story can be obtained.

Gloria Swanson

This picture would follow her new vehicle at Pathe.

Hollywood is agog over "Just Imagine," the second screen musical of the talented trio. Charlie Chaplin insisted to me at the premiere that it is the best picture ever made. He enthuses over its rhythm. Don't ask me just what he means. But it's the same thing that he sees in "Mickey Mouse."

Charlie still is adamant about using his voice. He even refused to speak over the microphone at the opening of "Just Imagine."

CLEAN-MINDED

The road, maligned by stage producers, is welcoming Colleen Moore in her first stage venture. According to word reaching Hollywood, the star's play may never arrive on Broadway, or at least not this season. Colleen writes that the small town audiences refuse to accept some of her sophisticated lines. Consequently, the script is being altered. In case of a New York engagement, the company will return to the original script.

TEST OF VERSATILITY

After playing the Christus in the local pilgrimage play, and the gentle Lieut. Osborne in Tiffany's "Journey's End," Ian MacLaren is to become a heavy in Richard Arlen's forthcoming western, "Stampede."

This picture will be the last of its type that Arlen makes for Paramount. The company is now in Sonora, Cal., where "Fighting Caravans" just was completed, and where Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "The Great Meadow," is now on location.

Arlen has recovered sufficiently from his recent attack of influenza to join the "Stampede" company.

NEW IDEA SAVES SILK HOSE

Did you ever realize that it is the oily excretion of the sebaceous glands and rubbing that keep you buying silk hose and lingerie so often? This oil film that next-to-skin garments absorb is destructive to silks, because it softens and rots the fibre. Soap and water alone will not cleanse it out. Only a solvent like Energine cuts it.

Add a tablespoonful of Energine to a quart of lukewarm soapy water. Wash thoroughly, rinse well. Note the new cleanliness—the pleasing freshness—see how original color is revived. And all this with far less rubbing. You'll be amazed at difference in results from washing in just soap and water, and your silken hose and undergarments will last longer.

THE BAD LITTLE GIRL BECOMES GOOD IN 'HER MAN'

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH.

"Her Man," a screen treatment of the "Frankie and Johnny" stage play, is the new attraction in the Fulton, downtown. It also is the current feature in the Sheridan Square, East End.

The film is a melodrama of life in a Havana honky-tonk. It is all about men who are anything—and women who aren't any better.

Helen Twelvetrees, who never has aroused our enthusiasm as an actress, is present as a little gal who was born into the vermilion life. Her motto is not so much to get her man as it is to get his pocketbook.

THE BOY FRIEND

She is the "dame" of Ricardo Cortez, the fellow who is boss of the place. A nice boy, this fellow! He has a grand time throwing knives into the backs of persons he doesn't like.

Into this setting comes Phillips Holmes, remembered as the young and innocent wheat farmer in "Devil's Holiday." He's a sailor now. He takes a big tumble for honky-tonk Helen and away they go into the future at the finale; a future that is supposed to be full of green grass, morning-glories and love everlasting.

NO GIN SHORTAGE

Majorie Rambeau, from the stage, makes her talk screen debut by consuming an awful lot of movie gin. She plays an oldtimer among the honky-tonk ladies.

James Gleason, who hasn't much hair, but a lot of comedy sense, does a seaman act. He goes in for the slot machines in a big way.

A rather glorious free-for-all fight comes as the big climax. Fists, chairs and bottles fly.

"Her Man" is exciting and all that. But its basic idea of the bad little girl who becomes a good little girl when Handsome Hero enters her life is whiskered with much movie repetition. It is an old and not too convincing story.

STEREOSCOPIC FILM IS 'BILLY THE KID'

Realife, newest invention in screen technique, will be introduced to Pittsburgh at Loew's Aldine next Friday with the showing of "Billy the Kid," King Vidor's epic of the West. Realife was developed with the idea of presenting screen figures as near real flesh and blood as possible.

Realife pictures are double-width and double-depth, and make possible, it is said, the showing of pictures with virtually third dimension. The process involves both photographing the original scenes as the picture is made and projecting them on a screen of an entirely new size and shape. The screen, instead of being almost square as at present, now fills the entire stage and is twice as wide as it is high. Under the new process backgrounds no longer are blurred. The new type of motion picture has a depth of focus never before attained.

It is claimed this causes a naturalness new to the screen, with a sweep and scope hitherto confined only to the human eye.

In "Billy the Kid" is a scene presenting foreground action which calls for a daring rescue. All the while this action is in progress, the audience can see clearly what is going on in the background, the steady approach, from five miles or more away of the speeding rescue party. Another is a scene where "Billy the Kid" makes his escape from jail. With ordinary film it would have been possible to show only one side at the time. The escape and its effect on the citizens are presented simultaneously.

Things I Never Knew Till Now

That the entire population of Boston could be seated in New York's cinema houses and other theaters.

That according to the junkman who collects them the newspapers thrown away in the Interborough subway are worth $30,000 yrly.

That there are only 38 blueblood old New Yorker families in the city. Mrs. J. King Van Rensselaer checked this fact before she died.

That there are 15,000 more women than men in Greater, N. Y.

That a Chicago dept store owner was so religious he instructed that the store window curtains be drawn on the Sabbath.

That 700 ft. a minute is the speed limit for bldg elevators.

That Shelley refused to use sugar in his tea or java, because cane was produced by slave labor.

That if you think you're crowded in New York, remember that there are 130 sq. miles of vacant land inside the city limits.

That Austin O'Malley once penned:

"Genuine love between man and woman is possible; but very rare, and when it does exist, it is nine-tenths reason and the grace of God and one-tenth sentiment."

That the sound on movie film is 19 frames (about 10 inches) ahead of the actual action of the film.

That Thomas Adams, father of the choongum industry, tried to provide dentistry with a better sort of rubber for artificial teeth and set the world chewing gum. Yop. That's the guy!

That the snappiest sign over a speakeasy bar is: Nobody ever has to take a tonic to create an appetite for flattery.

That Plato was blamed for asking money, Aristotle for receiving it, Democritus for neglecting it and Epicurus for consuming it.

That modern culture, any good critic will tell you, consists largely in the most refined method of finding fault.

That one-fifth of the population in the United States attends the movies every day—most of them unemployed.

That orchids are no longer "rare flowers" because growers have discovered how to produce them on the mass production principle, germinating more than 20 seeds where nature could germinate but one.

That radio has contributed 5,000 new words to the language. The war added 6,000. Broadway has contributed 332.

That George Eliot often spoke of Dickens with great kindness, but never had a word of praise for him or his works.

That Victor Hugo insisted that criticism cannot apply to genius.

That the best retort to a critic was Wordsworth's:
"It is hard, indeed, if they who are lame will not let you limp."

That Voltaire called Shakespeare an inspired savage.

That in her reminiscence Ethel Barrymore explains why the tribal name of Blythe was discarded. Her father found the name "Barrymore" in a book and decided that the family used it as a nom-de-theater.

That the price of admission to the London theaters during Shakespeare's days was one penny. Imagine!

That they call it the "green room" in the theater because the walls were colored green to rest the eyes of the actors who suffered from the artificial glare of the spotlight, and the glares of the audience.

That during the French Revolution Sunday was abolished. Every tenth day was a day of rest, however.

That one writer should be happy to learn that 12 o'clock midnight is designated as 12 p. m. by the Naval Observatory. So sorreh.

That actual steam (betcha millyun!) isn't visible!

That the late Alan Dale, the dramatic critic, was barred by Erlanger from seeing his own show, the lucky feller!

That George Washington received nothing for his personal services during the Revolution. His expenses, however, were paid him, and for these he collected more than $64,300. The chump!

That Ellen Terry used to go to a madhouse to study the subjects there to aid her in playing Ophelia.

That the word Rialto is a combination of Italian words meaning "deep brook." Broadway is plenty deep for a lot of us.

HEROINE SENDS HERO TO JAIL IN FILM IN THE HARRIS

By MILDRED FILLMORE.

The Harris screen presents "Temptation" as its feature. It has to do with a boy, who just can't seem to go "straight," and a girl, who loves him so much that she sends him to jail. Which, to our way of thinking, sort of takes the grandeur out of love.

Lawrence Gray is seen as the boy—a weak, drifting individual, who believes that young fellows must shoot their way ahead. And when he says "shoot" he means with a gun.

Miss Wilson is the girl. And this girl is a rather pathetic heroine. All set to marry a pleasant, comfortable-appearing gentleman, who has a quarter of a million dollars in his bank balance, she throws him over and goes taxicab riding into the night to rescue her cabaret Robin Hood from the influences of bad company.

More interest than in the feature film is attached to a Laurel and Hardy comedy, involving a legacy, a murder and a storm, and the short subject, "Killing the Killer," which depicts a battle between a cobra and a mongoose.

COMEDY AND DRAMA IN BILLS OF WEEK

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne will open a week's engagement in the Nixon tonight. They will appear in a Theater Guild play, "Elizabeth the Queen," by Maxwell Anderson.

The Nixon attraction next week will be "The Well of Romance," an operetta by Preston Sturges and H. Maurice Jacquet. Norma Terris and Howard Marsh are featured.

Queenie Smith, in "The Street Singer," opens her week's engagement at the Shubert Alvin tonight. There will be matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

Next week the attraction at the Alvin will be Katherine Cornell in her dramatic play, "Dishonored Lady." Seats go on sale Thursday.

In the Pitt tonight the George Sharp Players will offer a comedy, "Sure Fire."

The successful play for the resident company in the Pitt will be a comedy-drama, "That Ferguson Family."

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" will be presented tonight by Capt. Menke's showboat troupers on Golden Rod at Montrose. Mildred Devoe, new member of the company, will play Topsy.

TECH, PITT AND DUKE NIGHTS FEATURES AT STANLEY

Tonight in the Stanley "Tech Night" will be observed. The entire football team and Bob Waddell, coach of the Tartans, will be introduced from the stage. At the last show, the Carnegie Band will parade to the theater where it will play several numbers. Howard Harpster, former All-American star at Tech, and who has a prominent role in Joe E. Brown's picture, "Maybe It's Love," on the Stanley screen, will be introduced from the stage at both shows.

Tomorrow evening will be known as "Pitt Night" and Wednesday has been designated as "Duquesne Night." The football teams and bands from the schools will participate. Ray Montgomery, former All-American guard at Pitt, who also is featured in "Maybe It's Love," will be on the stage tomorrow night.

Bernie Armstrong, Stanley organist, is featuring songs from each of the three schools.

The Loudspeaker

Comics Not Funny.
Fail to Prepare.
Mary Garden Speaks.
Paley Only 28.

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Most of the theater's funny men who at intervals have been summoned to the microphones have failed signally to set the radio sea on fire. They parade their most reliable jokes, sing their favorite songs, tell their best stories, but in the majority of cases, only a nationwide yawn greets their efforts. It must be discouraging to them, eager as they ever are to roll up their revenues.

Louis Reid.

Wishing to learn at first hand the reason for such conspicuous failure where success, by all the laws of logic, ought to perch, we sought out yesterday William S. Paley, who presides over the destinies of the Columbia Broadcasting System. The M. Paley was quick to respond. He attributes the colossal flop of the stage stars of comedy on the air to their reluctance to take radio seriously. Let's listen to him:

Stage Comics Fail To Prepare for Radio

"The stage comic spends years establishing himself. Through long and arduous work he prepares himself for his rib-tickling job. He must have a great abundance of talent or he would not hold his present position. When he approaches the radio he comes in a spirit of good-natured tolerance, seeing in it an opportunity for a large amount of money for little or no work. Consequently he fails.'

Success on the microphone, the M. Paley declares, demands long and painstaking preparation. What goes over on the stage is more often than not a ghastly failure on the air. The theater star ought to be willing to sit down and study radio technique and after studying it to prepare material with the microphone solely in mind.

"Wisecracks rarely get over. They generally have to proceed out of character to be successful. Nor is the best radio comedy written with a desire to make people laugh. It develops logically and naturally from the situation that is broadcast. Nothing is more pathetic on the loudspeakers than forced comedy."

The M. Paley says, it seems to me a meaningful mouthful. And he is in a position to know. More important, he is in a position to pay. The broadcasters are scouring the earth for personalities who will not only fill the armchairs but keep them filled. The loudspeakers promise untold riches to those artists who can accomplish it. The stage comics appear to be indifferent. But not the stars of the concert stage.

The concert stars are a canny lot. They would no more miss an opportunity to shoo the wolf further from their doors than a politician would miss a chance to kiss a baby.

Mary Garden Finds 'Mike' Big Thrill

With the exception of Kreisler and Rachmaninoff not a single concert star is missing from the microphonic lists. Radio to them is a priceless boon. They are regarding it more and more as the most important factor in their careers. Let us turn the microphone for a second over to Mary Garden, the brightest star in the Chicago opera constellation. She doesn't mince words for a second.

"My greatest thrill is standing before a 'mike.' Radio thrills me like champagne. Often, as my voice is being broadcast, I feel the fantasy that perhaps my sister in Paris is hearing me."

Such musical figures as Damrosch, Stokowski, the executives of the Philharmonic Society are alert to the radio's importance. The response to the Philharmonic concerts, Paley told us, are the greatest musically in the history of Columbia. It is a deep and gratifying satisfaction to him. More power to his check-writing hand!

Paley, you might like to know, is but 28 years old. He entered radio a few years ago, and he has seen his company progress from an obscure loft to its own skyscraper, one of the swankiest in the upper if not uppish regions of Madison avenue. Tall and dark and tailored with a perfection that would gladden the heart of the snootiest stroller on Easter Sunday, he talks with a directness that is continually lighted with geniality. Especially is he proud of the broadcasts from England's great on Sunday and of the plans for this season of his "school of the air."

We Now Present

By DARRELL V. MARTIN
Radio Editor.

Let's go sleuthing tonight with William Gillette in "Sherlock Holmes." Gillette, you know, grew old playing the great detective on the stage, wearing out several peaked hats and burning out many underslung pipes. We shall hear this master of art explain "The Adventure of the Speckled Band" over WCAE at 10. Going from the mysterious to the ridiculous, or vice versa, according to the clock, we shall sit "At the Ringside" with Ray Knight on KDKA at 8:30. It's a burlesque sketch by Amorose J. Weems of Cuckoo fame. "Arabesque," the Columbia desert play, returns to a week day schedule over WJAS at 8:30.

TRAV'LIN'

The signature song of the famous Red Arrow Quartet is more than just a song to them. For instance, they travel to Cleveland for a WTAM broadcast tonight, then back to Pittsburgh for a Tuesday engagement. Then to WGR, Buffalo, Wednesday, they continue "Trav'lin'" to Mount Pleasant on Thursday; do some more "Trav'lin'" to Circleville, O., and WEAO on Friday. This leaves them nothing to do but "travel" back to Pittsburgh after "Trav'lin'" approximately 1,500 miles.

Four hours later when Herb appeared at a downtown cafe to announce Kay Kyser's Orchestra he met the girl backstage. She was a dancer in the show.

QUESTION A DAY:

Is it possible to hear the call letters of the television station at East Pittsburgh?—A. F. R., Tarentum.

Answer—WSXAV operates on 2050 kilocycles and of course the call could be picked up on a short wave set only. Since television is very experimental you might wait for many minutes before hearing a call as most of the time is consumed transmitting pictures.

INVALID, AGED MOTHER SAVED IN BLAZE

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH
By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

A few nights ago Mrs. Norma Vincent, of Sewickley, went to Cranberry Township, in Butler County, some 30 miles from her home, to see the Thiel College DramaClub give a play in Demmler's barn.

She left at home her 8-year-old son, Georgie, and instructed the servants that if they needed to get in touch with her they could telephone a farmhouse near Demmler's barn.

A few hours later Mrs. Vincent was enjoying the play when a farmer sought her out and informed her that she was wanted on the telephone at his home.

Mrs. Vincent hurried along the considerable distance to the farmhouse, all the while wondering what situation had arisen at her home. She was worried as she picked up the receiver.

"Is this you, mamma?" a young voice asked.

"Yes," Mrs. Vincent answered.

"This is Dordie, mamma, and I'm going to bed and I wanted to say good night."

One of our more fervent admirers was reading a treatise on "Home Life in Darkest Africa" in a downtown library when he came across a torn clip of paper which had been used as a book mark. The paper purports to be part of a page from the issue of The Telegraph, of Harrisburg, Pa., of March 22, 1841. The Telegraph chose this issue to report that the Connecticut convention which had met to nominate a state senator also adopted this resolution:

"Resolved, that in deep humiliation we hear of Gen. Harrison exchanging locks of hair with his ancient female associate at Pittsburgh and kissing the ladies by the score at Baltimore, while, if Whig orators are to be believed, the country is in the last state of exhausted suffering."

There is no sense trying to be modest about it and it might as well be told: we wrote "Pagan Lady," Miss Ulric's play at the Nixon last week.

This is the only play we ever wrote. It is true the papers reported that William Dubois, a young newspaperman, penned the piece, but you can't believe what you see in the papers.

Perhaps we didn't write every line of "Pagan Lady" but we like to feel that the success of the play hinges on our contribution.

Leo Donnelly, who plays, and plays well, the doctor's role in the show, was instrumental in our success—which, incidentally, has not gone to our head.

We suggested that instead he say: "Madame, I am not in the Spanish steak mood."

We contended our line was good for a laugh. Mr. Donnelly tried it last Wednesday night. Ten minutes later the audience was in stitches of laughter. Somebody cried, "Author! Author!" and Arthur Burgoyne, who was in the house, stood up and bowed.

Royalties? We've already received them from Morris Green, the producer. They're both perfectos.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Well, sir, if you just get in an automobile and start prowling around California, I bet you can find more different kinds of countries, more different kinds of people, more nice gentlemanly motor cops, more good roads, more different kinds of hot dogs and hamburgers, more different kinds of weather. In 50 miles in an open car, you will put on your overcoat and take it off 25 times. Exactly once to every two miles. We will be in Palo Alto in about 20 minutes. Mr. Hoover's old civic center. I think I will stop and hold a Democratic rally. Yours, WILL.

WOMAN KILLED IN COLLISION OF CARS

McKeesport Girl Victim In Accident That Hurts 4; Football Players Crash

One woman was dead today and 16 persons were injured, one seriously, as a result of automobile accidents in the Pittsburgh district over the week-end.

Two young women and a man were in St. Francis Hospital today from injuries suffered last night when an automobile in which they were riding ran off the Babcock boulevard and struck a pole, according to hospital reports. The victims were Elizabeth Salinger, 19, and Peggy Bauer, 19, both of Mt. Oliver, and John Foley, 21, of the North Side. Albert Gehb, 22, also of the North Side, said to have been the driver, was able to go home after being treated at the hospital.

AUTO HITS TROLLEY

Godfrey Beaumont, 45, of Sixth and Merchant streets, Ambridge, was injured and burned when his automobile caught fire after it collided with a Beaver Valley street car at Third and Merchant streets, late last night, according to Ambridge police.

Mrs. Hilma M. Elhaney, of 510 Jeanette street, Wilkinsburg, was injured seriously last night when an automobile driven by her husband, C. B. McElhaney, was struck by a street car at Penn avenue and Beatty street.

When an automobile driven by James J. Scully, 28, of 5310 Natrona way, crashed into two machines and an iron fence in East Ohio street, near the Thirty-first Street Bridge yesterday, Scully suffered concussion of the brain, police reported. His condition was reported as serious at the Allegheny General Hospital.

5 HURT IN CRASH

Raymond Kelly, of Sheridan street and Anthony Schranchmer, of 125 Evergreen road, were in the Allegheny General Hospital suffering from lacerations of the head and face. A sixth victim fled from the Allegheny General Hospital before he could be treated, according to a hospital report.

'NUMBERS' MAN ARRESTED NEAR SCHOOL FINED

Suspected of Taking Pupils' Bets in Lottery, Agent Is Ordered to Pay $50

Ed. Devorak, arrested last week on suspicion of selling "numbers" chances to school children, was fined $50 for possession of lottery tickets in North Side Police Court today by Magistrate Ray Schneider.

Lieut. Harry Moore, in plain clothes, arrested Devorak near the Seventh Ward School, after chasing him into a butcher shop, where, Moore said, Devorak threw a bunch of lottery tickets behind a counter. Several books of tickets were found on him, Moore testified.

SPEEDER FACES FOUR CHARGES

Joseph McCarthy, 25, of 321 Johnston avenue, Hazelwood, was arrested and lodged in the West Homestead police station on four charges yesterday following a chase from West Homestead to Glenwood, during which a policeman fired at McCarthy's car. He is charged with speeding, ignoring an officer's command to stop, reckless driving and disorderly conduct.

Police charge he sped through West Homestead and a motorcycle policeman took up the chase. It is alleged he increased his speed instead of stopping when the policeman fired a warning shot. In Glenwood the machine was halted when a bullet was fired into a rear tire. The officer charges McCarthy refused to get out of his car and it was necessary to use force in making the arrest.

GLENDALE FIRE WRECKS HOUSE

East Carnegie and Heidelberg fire departments were called early yesterday to fight a blaze which destroyed a three-story frame duplex dwelling, owned by Mrs. Pauline Koziak, at 140 Torrence avenue, Glendale.

According to police, the Koziak family and another occupying the house were absent. After a three-hour fight by firemen, the building collapsed. Firemen estimated the loss at $10,000.

Thugs Rob Driver Of Cash and Cab

Howard Nimitz, of 546 Ford street, Pitcairn, a taxicab driver, reported to police early today that two Negroes held him up at Washington boulevard and Chianti street and robbed him of $14 and his cab. They boarded the cab at Station street and Frankstown avenue, East Liberty, he said. A short time later the cab was found abandoned on the Leech Farm road, half a mile from the scene of the holdup.

Minister Ascribes Forum Throng to Novelty

The Rev. Dr. W. Wofford T. Duncan, pastor of Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, gave his impressions of the recent religious forum held in Carnegie Music Hall, in his sermon last night. He declared that by constant comparison of different views we make progress toward ultimate truth.

He said in part:

"The size of the crowd that sought to hear the four addresses was a great astonishment to many. Some thought it indicated a revived interest in religion. Others explained that the crowd expected a debate with bitter personalities and acrimonious attacks. Many overlooked three plain facts.

"First, it was a promoted meeting. It had behind it a business expert in securing crowds for the sake of the box receipts.

"Second, it was the first of its kind here and held here only once. If held twice a week every year as religious services are, there would be no clamoring crowd.

"Third, it appealed to the entire population of Pittsburgh, those who were religious and those who were anti-religious. Compared with total regular attendance at religious services each week it was a small gathering."

House Ruined Despite 6,000 Feet of Hose

FIRE FIGHTER HURT, CHOPS OFF FINGER

Boy Burned Rescuing Dog In Another of Series of Small Fires in District

A fireman was injured and two women were assisted from the home of Mrs. Eleanor Dunn, when fire started on the second floor of the dwelling, 6956 Upland street, today.

Mrs. Dunn, 70, ran into the house when she saw the smoke from the yard, to aid her invalid daughter, Mrs. Charles Hart, 52, and to save valuable papers.

The two women were led from the house by neighbors, Mrs. Lillian O'Leary and her daughter, Margaret, of 6959 Upland street. The papers were not damaged by the blaze which caused $3,000 loss.

Hoseman Charles Lesher, of No. 38 Engine Company lost part of the little finger of his left hand while chopping a hole in the roof to fight the blaze.

BOY RESCUES PET

Franklin Muntz, 17-year-old son of Edward Muntz, Benton avenue, Ross Township, today was nursing burns suffered while rescuing a dog trapped in the cellar of his burning home yesterday. The house was destroyed.

City firemen who assisted the Ross Township companies, laid 6,000 feet of hose when the flames threatened the home of Joseph Caye, Sr., in Benton avenue.

FAMILIES ROUTED

Fire, caused by a defective flue routed two families from a four-story frame dwelling at 2137 Straubs Lane, North Side, and resulted in a loss estimated at $1,500.

Mrs. Catherine Duerrmeyer, living on the second floor, suffered shock.

Boys broke in the doors of two dwellings, one a two-family residence, which they discovered in flames on the Freeport road and succeeded in awakening all the occupants in time to get them to safety. Springdale firemen answered a call for assistance. Water pressure in a nearby plug was found to be too low for use, firemen said, and it was necessary to tap a Cheswick main in order to save other nearby homes. The loss to the destroyed dwellings was estimated at $15,000 by firemen.

PLANT DESTROYED

Fire early today destroyed the building of the National Baking Company, Third street, West Natrona. Flames were discovered in the front of the building, a one-story structure, but firemen were unable to ascertain the cause. The loss was estimated at $3,000.

Sparks from a chimney were said by police to have caused a fire which did $200 damage to the clubhouse of the Allegheny Country Club, Sewickley Heights, yesterday.

Pedestrians, Drivers Blamed for Mishaps

Failure of pedestrians to observe signal lights and cross streets when they have the right of way, and failure of drivers to give them their rights, are given by Robert L. Wickline, chairman of the highway safety committee of the Pittsburgh Motor Club, as the chief causes of increasing pedestrian fatality toll.

Wickline said a summary of reports received by the club show that 660 pedestrians were killed in the state during the first nine months of 1930.

Gang Plans Raid on Police Station to Free Annie

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

"The Edgewater Kid," Polack Annie's man, is murdered, Goldie Gorio's North Side gang, of which the Kid was a member, accuses Kinky King, leader of the West Side gang. Kinky swore to get The Kid for taking Annie from him. Later, Kinky is found murdered, a gold revolver, similar to that possessed by Goldie, beside him. To satisfy the public's demand for action, the police chief arrests Annie. He refuses Goldie's request for her release. In revenge, Goldie's gang throws the theater district into darkness and destroys public property. A committee of prominent citizens calls on the mayor, demanding protection. In jail, Annie is grief-stricken over the Kid.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER X.

Central Police Detail, headquarters for important prisoners and those detained for "front office" questioning, was located in a three-story squat red brick building two blocks from City Hall. The city had long been promised a modern up-to-date police building. But year after year the plans were pigeon-holed while aggressive politicians won praise for themselves by diverting the building funds to schools, parks, bridges and boulevards. These things impressed the public far more. The cops could wait. Who thinks about cops, anyway, on election day?"

Here were the "blind" cells—the men in a dark, foul smelling basement, the women on the first floor. Day and night the patrol wagons drew up the narrow little alley and the prisoners were hustled out and thrown into the antiquated cages, where they were held without booking—sometimes for weeks.

The chief of detectives had his office on the second floor. The captain of the first precinct was on the first floor, just off the street. The lineup room was in the basement and every morning at 10 o'clock the prisoners were marched out one by one, placed under a bright light, while masked detectives stood about in groups and scrutinized them. There was a small back room which was known to every crook in the city. The "goldfish bowl." It was devoid of furniture, save one chair. In a corner lay an ordinary rubber hose. Sometimes prisoners were entertained here—with little formality. Here detectives vented their sadistic wrath against helpless men, flagellating them with the rubber hose and pummeling them with their beefy fists. This was known as "seeing the goldfish," a facetious way of characterizing the American inquisition.

Gorio Active
Plans to Get Annie Out Of Jail

There was not a gangster in the Big Burg who did not know the layout of Central Detail. Most of them, whether they had been guilty of any crime or not, had been hustled down there at different times to taste the grim hospitality of the coppers and dicks, "on suspicion."

Polack Annie was still bawling her eyes out at a few minutes to midnight, and Police Headquarters had sunk back into its nocturnal tranquility when Goldie Gorio gave his final instructions to his two dozen hoodlums in the converted stable where he had set up his new concentration camp.

"I don't want no useless shootin'," he ordered. "I don't want coppers' blood on our hands. Of course, you never can tell what's goin' to happen. But the way I got this thing doped we'll have Annie out o' there before them flat-feet get their breath."

"I'm goin' to spring her myself—"

Orders
Gangsters Instructed by Their Leader

"Now, Moon-Face," he turned to a slender fellow whose countenance was dished out like a crescent. "You know how to jim up that signal system. You used to be with the telephone company, so don' make no mistakes."

"Oke, Boss," answered Moon-Face, grinning and drawing his linesman's tools from his pocket. "It's jimmied."

"Now, you six," indicated Goldie, laying out a penciled chart on the table before him, "I want you on the corner to the south. Nobody gets through—see? Have your car pointin' north with the engine goin'."

"Right!" chorused Clammy Withers, assigned to lieutenant the half dozen.

"And you guys," he turned to another group. "I want you to do the same at this north intersection. Keep that street clear, because we're goin' out that way like nobody's business."

"Okay!"

"And you eight guys—I want you to walk right in the front door. There won't be more than three or four cops in there. Stick up the desk sergeant—you two cover the captain's office—and you jam that door that leads to the dicks' room."

The eight nodded.

Daring Deed
Gang Prepares to Raid Police Station

"Now Ray," he said, turning to his chauffeur, "you come with me. And you, Cranky. Got that sledge hammer? Yeah? Okay. One sock's got to bust that door. It's old and the lock's weak and it swings in. Ray, back that car just into the alley and have it turnin' north. I want this thing to come off at exactly 12:30. When you hear the siren on my car—beat it. You six straight north—you eight turn at Eighth street an' into the park. I'll go left a block west, but you guys keep goin'. Meet me at Silver Lake. Keep goin' till nobody's followin' you. Shoot it out if you can't shake 'em. Try speed first and lead last."

He paused and motioned to Ray, who went to a box and dragged out six bottles of rye.

"Come on—take a good stiff jolt—but no more after that."

Goldie turned away as the men passed the bottles around. Goldie did not drink liquor. He never did.

He had worked his desperate plan out in every detail, one of the most daring, unheard-of raids in the history of local crime.

True, three desperate men—the notorious Car Barn bandits—prepared in Chicago one day to stick up the outlying Sheffield Avenue Police Station the next night and spring their pal, Gus Marx. But they never carried through their plans because Marx confessed before they came, peaching on all of them into the bargain. That was as near as any purpose had ever come to the wild raid of the gold-lined gangster.

"All set?" asked Goldie as the empty bottles, one by one, were tossed aside. A series of affirmative grunts answered him. It was 12 o'clock.

"Now, take your time about gettin' out of here," warned Goldie. "Pick up your cars wherever you got them stanched. We start work at 12:30 sharp. Everybody in his place and on his job. Let's go!"

ONEAL SCORES HOOVER POLICY

Instead of the World War making the world safe for democracy it has made it safe for a dozen dictatorships on the other side of the Atlantic, James Oneal, of New York, editor of the New Leader, declared in speaking on the sayings of Eugene Debs at a Debs memorial in the Pitt Theater last night. He exhibited a reproduction of advertisements printed before the election of President Hoover predicting a job for everybody. He said:

"Mr. Hoover and the little Massachusetts villager whom he replaced contributed more than anyone else to the idea that we are a peculiar people and that there would be a job for all. There were at least 2,000,000 men out of work before the stock market crash. In the coal mining villages the conditions were almost enough to make the city man commit suicide."

While police and city detectives sought his companion, Frank Mahoney, 29, of Washington, D. C., was remanded to the county jail today to await action by Washington, D. C. authorities in connection with the murder of Louis Bush, bus line official there. Meanwhile, local detectives were conducting a search for William Cornell, who was believed to have been with Mahoney when he was arrested on a transcontinental bus during its stop here last night.

Arriving 10 minutes ahead of schedule, the bus was boarded by Detectives Walter Monaghan and Thomas Morgan, who seized Mahoney.

A woman who was riding in the bus was taken for questioning, but was released when it developed she was a chance acquaintance that Mahoney met on the trip.

Bush, president of the Gray Line Motor Tours, was shot October 6 during a scuffle with a robber in the rear of his home and died three days later.

ed?" Goldie asked as he got into his car.

"Everyone—I looked 'em over, boss," assured the chauffeur.

Goldie settled back in his "business" car, a gray sedan. Cranky got in beside Ray, nursing his huge sledge-hammer between his knees. Goldie looked at his wrist watch.

"Take a turn around the drive for a little air, Ray," he ordered. The chauffeur nodded. The clutch slipped in gently and the car got away like a panther. Goldie lit up and crossed his legs.

Goldie calmly puffed his cigaret, methodically removing it and returning it to his lips with a nerveless hand. He might have been on his way to visit distant cousins, so indifferent was his attitude.

The car moved along swiftly and noiselessly over the velvet boulevard. Goldie's watch ticked away the minutes, and now and then as they passed an arc light, he raised his arm and looked at it.

"Okay, Ray—turn her downtown."

With both hands he patted the two automatics which he had strapped under his armpits. An inscrutable smile rose over his face. Then his lips closed tight and grim. He uncrossed his legs and leaned a bit forward in his seat as the car sped toward Central Detail—and Polack Annie.

BLACK AND RED SHOULD BE USED WITH MUCH DISCRETION

—Sketched in Paris—

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph,

PARIS, Oct. 20.—You do not gamble when you bank your sartorial all on rouge et noire—red and black. For the color combination when rightly treated is irresistibly charming and becoming. The red must be used with restraint, otherwise, the frock will be a blatant failure. We are forced to reiterate this word of warning, because we have lately seen so many women in gowns of the red-and-black combination that were not at all right, for it is so easy to strike a theatrical note with this color merger. Of all the sheer fabrics, black lace looks the best with red. The other sheer materials just somehow do not seem to be so good.

NET IS STILL a material consideration, so much so, that it has been the recipient of some new beauty treatments designed with an eye to making even the woman who simply lived in net last season, freshly enamored with this most pleasing fabric. A frock of good net will make itself a useful member of the wardrobe and is especially nice for those little informal evening frocks than can make even the most uninteresting evening a pleasant one.

* * *

WITH AN EYE to the merits of black-and-red and net, we have had sketched for you two very interesting frocks. The first is by Tollmann and is a most desirable Sunday evening frock that should stand ready to do good service on any evening of the week, unless the occasion demands grande toilette. Tollman used black and red skillfully. The frock is of fine black lace which is poised over red taffeta. The collar and the cuff trimming are of the latter material. The flowers are of black panne velvet. Had they been red, the whole effect of this most discreet but colorful frock would have been altered.

THE NET FROCK is by way of being a novelty. Alex has used net in a clever way. It is tarred, the effect of full black spangles, being a very decorative one. The tunic skirt is piped with black crepe de Chine. A note of brightness and color is introduced by a green velvet belt with a strass buckle.

Ask Rockne What You Want To Know Through The Sun-Telegraph

Do you have a question concerning football that you'd like to have Knute Rockne, Notre Dame's great coach, answer?

If so, here's your chance—and it may net you a couple of tickets for the Pitt-Carnegie Tech game at the Stadium on November 8.

Next Friday night, Rockne will be on the air through Station WJAS on the eve of the Pitt-Notre Dame game here. He will be interviewed by Christy Walsh, his syndicate manager, who will be here for the battle.

During their 15-minute period, they will discuss various phases of football, and included in their conversation will be 10 questions local fans would have Rockne answer. They may be about anything concerned with football.

Readers should submit these by mail to the Knute Rockne Editor, in care of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph. Upon his arrival, Rockne will select the 10 questions that he considers most interesting from the standpoint of a national broadcast, and the writers of these will receive the tickets for the Pitt-Tech battle.

Do you want to know what Rockne thinks about his team's victory over Carnegie Tech, how it will fare against Pitt, or something about his method of coaching or any other football subject? Very well, then, get into the game. Take a few moments to write down your query and then listen in on his interview and learn if you are one of the ticket winners.

Queries will be received up to the time of Rockne's arrival with his squad on Friday.

IRISH WORK FOR PANTHERS

Sport Comment

By JAMES J. LONG

Tartans Overpowered. | Tennessee Drive Stops.

ROCKNE'S TEAM ONE OF HIS GREATEST

THE RATHER UNEXPECTEDLY wide margin by which Notre Dame defeated Carnegie Tech on Saturday, and the decisive manner in which the Irish turned back a team that had looked like a serious threat, is not to be attributed to any sudden loss of form or strength on the part of the Skibos, and is not to be taken as meaning that the Scots were not as good as their followers had doped them to be. The Steffenites were just as good as they had been at any previous stage of the season. Only it makes a lot of difference whom and what you happen to find yourself up against.

Marchmount Schwartz

The truth is that the Irish were stronger in the line than they had been figured as being. There never had been any doubt as to the power of their great backfield. That's the explanation of the surprising score of 21 to 6. The result was due not to any Carnegie weakness, but to Notre Dame strength. Instead of an average Notre Dame team—and that average is admittedly pretty high—Knute Rockne has developed one of the greatest elevens of his sensational coaching career. It was no disgrace to the Plaid to be beaten by a mighty combination mentally tuned to the minute and making no mistakes, that probably would have done the same thing that day to any other team in the country.

POSSIBLY A LITTLE more had been expected of Carnegie on this occasion than was warranted by the fact that the Tartans had beaten only such teams as Buffalo, Thiel and Georgia Tech, but at that the opinion has not been altered that Wally Steffen and Bob Waddell this year have one of the best teams in football. Time is likely to prove that, Saturday's game notwithstanding. That they were able to defeat an eleven of that caliber so decisively only further attests the exceptional strength of the Irish.

Being one of the best teams in football and being able to cope with Notre Dame are different propositions, seemingly. It begins to appear that, when you have figured and doped as far as you can according to accepted football standards and criterions, you then must figure Notre Dame a little beyond that. Rockne's 1930 team does not suffer by comparison with any predecessor. In Marchmount Schwartz, an all-American halfback prospect; Joe Savoldi, perhaps the most formidable ball carrier in the game; Marty Brill, a rare performer defensively as well as offensively, and Frank Carideo, a general as able as they come, the South Benders have a backfield comparable to the immortal Four Horsemen, and with a great line working in front of these stars it is hard to see what other opponent will be able to accomplish what Carnegie failed to do.

PITT WILL BE the next to have a try at the big job, and the country's eyes will be upon the Stadium here the coming Saturday while the Panthers are attempting it before a record gathering of close to 70,000 fans.

Franklin Hood

Beating the modern Notre Dame system the first time it is faced is held by many football men to be next door to impossible, but what Franklin Hood and his mates achieved with a sorely crippled lineup in beating Syracuse, 14 to 0, last Saturday, at least must be admitted to have made Pitt's chances look a whole lot better than they looked previously. Conditions considered, that victory was one of the greatest a Panther team ever scored.

A QUERY RECEIVED from J. H. K., of McKees Rocks, brings up a subject that may be of general interest in football circles outside the Western Conference, otherwise to fans who have had few chances to see University of Michigan teams in action. Newspaper accounts of Michigan's victory over Purdue stated that the Wolverines had resorted to "their old No. 83" play to score their final touchdown, and the correspondent asks for information about that play. "No. 83" is a fake placement field goal kick that is turned into a forward pass.

The quarterback receives the ball from the center, holds it on the ground as if for a placement goal kick, while the man playing behind him steps up and goes through the motion of kicking by swinging his leg toward the spot where the ball is.

But before the kicker's foot reaches that spot the quarterback jumps to his feet and hurls a forward pass to a waiting receiver, generally catching the opposing team completely off its guard. Only on rare occasions, according to conference men, has the play failed to result in a touchdown.

AMONG THE NINE teams on Pitt's schedule this year, only one is coached by a man who was not at one time a star player. The lone exception is Dana Bible, mentor of the Nebraska team, which the Panthers will meet in Lincoln one week from next Saturday.

Ira Rodgers

Of the men coaching the elevens already faced by Pitt this fall, Frank Wolfe, of Waynesburg, made his mark at Penn State; Ira Rodgers, of West Virginia, was all-America fullback there; Gordon Locke, of Western Reserve, starred at fullback for Iowa, though he was shifted to quarterback by Walter Camp on his all-America team of 1922, and Vic Hanson, of Syracuse, was a star end at that school.

OF THOSE TUTORING the teams yet to be tackled by the Sutherlands, Knute Rockne, of Notre Dame, was a star end in the days when Gus Dorais started throwing passes to bewilder the Army and other foemen; Judge Steffen, of Carnegie, was all-America quarterback at Chicago; Sam Willaman, of Ohio State, was a crack lineman there, and Bob Higgins, of Penn State, made the all-America at end for the Blue and White. Rodgers and Higgins won all-America fame in the same year, 1919. Higgins also made the second all-America in 1915 before going into the service for the war period. Steffen was placed on Camp's third team in 1907 and on the first team in 1908. Rockne's closest approach was to make Camp's third team in 1913.

THE OUTSTANDING COLLEGE football record of the country was marred on Saturday when Alabama defeated Tennessee, 18 to 6. In three complete seasons and parts of two others, Tennessee had

Buck McTiernan

It looks like quite a test for Swissvale's Bucky, who recently has turned in corking battles with Farmer Joe Cooper, Clyde Hall, Joe Dundee and others.

Lawless, who hails from Auburn, N. Y., has beaten Gorilla Jones three times, Tommy Freeman, the new welterweight champion; Joe Dundee, Sergt. Sammy Baker, Canada Lee, Harry Mason, Jackie Horner, Babe Anderson, Jackie Brady and Bruce Flowers, among others. He's known as the Fighting Irish Terrier.

The pair are meeting at 153 pounds, a compromise weight, McTiernan having held out for 154 pounds and Lawless for 152.

Between Rounds

Promoter Apples Meyers is at work on the preliminary card for his weekly show in the Moose Temple next Friday night. In his two 10-round feature bouts, Harry Harris, hard-hitting middleweight, of Bellaire, O., meets Indian Tiger West, of Monessen, and Jimmy Kelly, of the North Side, takes on Paul Oger, of Wheeling.

The Western Pennsylvania amateur championship belt boxing tournament will be held in the Palisades ring, McKeesport, on November 6, 13 and 20 and December 6. The winners will receive championship belts with gold buckles. Entries close November 1.

So Eddie Kane has gone away from us. The slim little fellow who managed the Gibbons brothers, Mike and Tom; Sammy Mandell, Al Foreman and others, and started his professional sports career as the manager of Willie Hoppe, the billiard star, was well known around here. More than a decade ago he came here with Tom Gibbons and remained in Pittsburgh for a series of matches. He was a keen manager, but a bit too nervous to be a good second. However, he had the rare good sense to refrain from bothering his men too much in their corners, and was one of the first managers to use water and a towel sparingly between rounds. A few soft-spoken words of advice and plenty of rest and he sent his charges forth for each new round. The last time I saw Eddie was in New York, about a year ago, and he did not appear to be in any too good health then. He succumbed to an attack of pneumonia at Petoskey, Mich., last Friday night.

Seven-Mile Golf Event Played in Sagebrush

RAWLINS, Wyo., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—A sagebrush golf tournament—which is just what it sounds like—was held yesterday, and Lester Gopp, of Parco, won the first annual marathon with a low score of 96 in a seven-mile hit-and-walk contest from Parco to Rawlins.

The winner took 7 hours and 45 minutes to complete his play. He drove off from the first tee of the Parco Club, and holed out in a pigmy course here.

Three women started but only one, Mrs. W. A. Urban, of Fargo, finished. Her score was 244. Forty-four of the 49 entrants completed the play.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF SATURDAY: THE CONE OF FUJIYAMA, JAPAN—The great volcanic cone, whose majestic outlines command our awestruck admiration, are nothing but the refuse heaps of eruptions, being composed from base to summit of lava and ashes. Such a one as Fujiyama, one of the most perfect cones in the world, is so light in texture that the surface, crags and small precipitous walls actually bend under the pressure of the wind. (Reference: "The World in the Past," by B. Webster Smith, or "The Georgraphica' Journal," Volume 7, 1896.) THE FOUR-HANDED CHECKER BOARD—"Foursome" is the name given this game by its inventor, Howard J. Wood, of 1953 Estrella Avenue, Los Angeles. The playing field has 145 squares and 48 checkers, and the quartet of players operate on "an every man for himself" basis, or play partners. Each player has three opponents, who can jump his men from three sides. Checkers become kings when they reach the last row of squares directly opposite their own home territory, and kings may roam in any direction over the board, jumping the men of the other three players.

The McKeesport Olympics went into undisputed possession of first place in the Western Pennsylvania Independent gridiron conference yesterday by defeating East Pittsburgh before an overflow crowd at the Quarry Stadium, 13-0.

The other battle at the Fair Oaks Stadium found Art Rooney's green and white clad Majestic Radio aggregation moving into a tie for second place by defeating the Ambridge Mystics, also by a 13-to-0 score.

Conservative estimates state that 11,000 followers of the independent gridiron watched the two conference battles, and were fully repaid by seeing two brilliant battles.

PITT'S GREAT STAND AT SYRACUSE

The Pitt football machine is running true to tradition—it will be virtually unbeatable in November . . . Coach Jock Sutherland's product is rolling along gathering momentum as it goes . . . The 14-0 victory over the hitherto unscored-upon Orange eleven at Syracuse last Saturday furnished about as stiff a test as could be asked, and the Panthers came through with flying colors.

Seldom has a team's defensive and offensive strength been tried as Pitt's was in this contest. Eight times Syracuse was in a scoring position and yet it never came through, while Pitt had only two scoring chances and capitalized both. . . . In five of those emergencies, Pitt, up against one of the stoutest lines in the East, held for downs. Twice it intercepted passes and the other time the half ended with the Orange on the 23-yard line.

PANTHERS FIGHT THROUGH

Constantly in the hole because of two costly fumbles and the treacherous wind that was playing havoc with Capt. Eddie Baker's punts, Pitt had its back to the wall almost all afternoon, only to emerge from the trenches with a well-earned triumph. . . . That Syracuse line is the pride and joy of its coach, Vic Hanson, and it played throughout the game without a substitution, yet the proof of the pudding that Pitt outplayed the Orange forwards is to be found in the results obtained. . . . When yardage was at a premium, with the goal line just ahead, the Syracuse backs were fought off and piled up. On the two occasions when Pitt had its chances, its forwards cleared the way for Fullback Hood to lug over the oval.

Following is a skeletonized description of the scoring chances: . . . First period—Pitt intercepted a forward pass on its 23-yard line; Pitt held for downs on its 23-yard line after losing the ball on its 32 on a fumble. . . . Second period—Pitt held for downs on its 27 after having punted out of bounds on its 46; half ended with Syracuse on the 23-yard line after Pitt had punted out of bounds on its 39. . . . Third period—Pitt held for

UPSETS MARK GRID WARFARE FOR WEEK-END

By JESS CARVER,

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Oct. 20.—The furnishings and trappings have been restored to their accustomed spots in the lobbies of this town's hotels and the hordes of gridiron enthusiasts who took South Bend by storm and sat and froze as Notre Dame turned back the formidable attack of Carnegie Tech Saturday, have departed. Everything is calm and peaceful.

It's just the lull before the outbreak of another storm, for developments along the football front Saturday indicated that warfare of the near future will be of terriffic detonation. Knute Rockne, well satisfied with the way his eleven routed Carnegie, begins preparation today for Pitt, which battle is to be presented before what is certain to be a record-smashing, sellout crowd in Pittsburgh Saturday.

COLGATE DEFEATED

Saturday's happenings throughout the country, as more and more of the high and mighty toppled from high estate, were hectic. One of the prime favorites of the East, Andy Kerr's Colgate eleven, was sent skittering by Michigan State, making another triumph for exponents of Rockne's football. Pitt, Dartmouth, Cornell, Temple and Army continued the good work along the Eastern seaboard. Penn State, while escaping defeat, was tied by Lafayette.

In the Middle West, Notre Dame and Northwestern were most impressive. Northwestern hung a black eye on Bob Zuppke and Illinois, serving Zup the worst defeat he has taken since taking over the reins at Champaign in 1913. Ohio State dropped another, suffering decisive defeat in the annual game with Michigan. Purdue had little trouble bumping off Iowa; Minnesota found Indiana tougher than the Gophers expected and Wisconsin defended the honor of the conference by riddling Penn.

Chicago didn't do so well in its intersectional fracas with Florida, the 'Gaitors landing a 19-0 win over Stagg's Maroons.

EYTH AMONG GRID LEADERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—In individual scoring, Jim Murphy, of Fordham, and Bart Viviano, of Cornell, are tied for the honor of leading the East's football cohorts. Each has scored 10 touchdowns for a total of 60 points.

Tanguay, of New York University, is pressing the leaders hard with a 59-point total, gained from nine touchdowns and five extra points, while Eyth, of Carnegie Tech, tied with him for second place in touchdowns, is fourth on the list with 54 points.

McKeesport Police To Battle Firemen

The McKeesport police will play the McKeesport firemen in a night football game at World War Memorial Field Wednesday of next week for the benefit of the police pension fund, it has been announced.

It is the second annual game between the civil service elevens. Last year the policemen and firemen played a 6-6 tie. The kickoff will be at 8:15.

WARNER ADVOCATE OF ABUNDANCE OF PLAYS

POP DOES NOT FEAR SCOUTS AT GAMES

By GLENN S. WARNER, Member, All-America Board of Football.

One of the questions pertaining to football which is most often discussed where coaches get together and on which many of them differ is whether or not it is better to give a team nearly all of its offensive plays just as early and as fast as the player can learn them or whether to give a team few plays at the start and let them master them perfectly before adding more plays. It is admitted by the coaches who advocate the former method that a team which is given a considerable number of plays at the start of the season will have a rather hard time learning those plays. The players will miss their assignments many times during the first few weeks and the offense of the team given a large assortment of plays will appear to be very ragged in the early games. It must be admitted also that if a coach wants his team to appear particularly well in the first game or two a few plays well learned will enable his team to make a much better showing in those games than many plays which can at best be only half baked. However the coaches who advocate giving their team practically their whole list of plays in the first few weeks of the season claim that their teams get the benefit of the experience in working the plays in the early games.

Glenn Warner

LEARN BY EXPERIENCE

The players learn by experience how to best execute their assignments on the various plays, the captain and field general learn from working the plays in competition just how good the plays are and to what extent they can rely upon them to obtain certain results, and the coach finds out which plays are best suited to the make up of his team. I have found that a few of my very best plays of one season turn out to be failures perhaps the next season, and I have also learned that some plays which, for some reason, were not winners last year may turn out to be the best ground gainers this year. Giving a large assortment of plays to a team early in the season enables the coach to gradually cull out those plays which are not getting any favorable results, and by the middle of the season only the good plays remain, so that a field general hardly can make a mistake in choosing a play, because all the plays he has at his command have been proven to be good.

Some coaches will secretly work up some new plays which they will not let their teams use in the early games because they do not want scouts of opposing rivals to see them and be able to work up a defense for them. I have never seen that plan work out very satisfactorily—a team soon gets accustomed to rely upon the plays which have been working well in the games played and it is very likely that the field general will forget all about the new plays, and if he uses them it is probable that they will not work because of lack of experience in using them in real competition.

IGNORES SCOUTS

I believe firmly in using every play whenever it is desirable whether scouts are present or not, and in order to confound the scouts I also believe in having a few fancy plays which can probably be worked successfully against easy opposition so that visiting scouts get an eyeful of intricate plays which look good against weak opposition but which will be eliminated when the big games roll around.

In the early days when I played the game teams were given not more than a half dozen of the simplest plays for the first few weeks of the season and almost the whole attention of the coaches was devoted in teaching fundamentals and building up a strong defense. Players had less experience in those days and they needed that kind of coaching. Then, too, only practice games were played by the big teams then in the early season and the success of the teams depended upon the result of two or perhaps three championship games. Coaches could afford to develop their teams slowly. It is different now. Important games have to be played almost from the start of the season and a team which is experienced in the fundamentals and whose players have had experience in playing their positions will, if they are in good physical condition, put up a good defensive game with but very little coaching. But it takes drill, drill, drill to develop a smooth working offense.

EYTH, TECH, AT START OF 68-YARD RUN FOR TOUCHDOWN

Howard Eyth's 68-yard run from scrimmage gave Carnegie Tech its only touchdown in its 21-6 defeat by Notre Dame at South Bend last Saturday.

SCHWARTZ PLUNGES FOR NOTRE DAME'S SECOND SCORE

Halfback Schwartz, of Notre Dame, was the individual star in the smashing victory of the Irish over the Plaid. He tossed forward passes for two of the three touchdowns made by his team and above is seen plunging over for the other tally from the three-yard line.

HOOD, PITT FULLBACK, MAKING FIRST OF HIS TWO TOUCHDOWNS

Pitt defeated Syracuse, 14-0, in a hard-fought battle at Syracuse Saturday. Franklin Hood was the offensive star, crashing over the line for both touchdowns with the drive he shows above.

IRISH WORK FOR PITT

pounding out a 7-0 win. Stanford won over Oregon State; Southern California trampled Utah, and the Olympic Club won its annual battle from California.

TENNESSEE BOWS

In the South, Alabama ended Tennessee's three-year string of 34 consecutive wins or ties, the Crimson Tide finishing on the long end of an 18-to-6 score. Georgia Tech had to go at top speed all the way to gain a 14-12 decision over Auburn, and Duke, rising to unexpected heights, gave the wallowing Navy another trouncing.

In the Tri-State district, Wash-Jeff was erased from the list of undefeated, bowing to Temple. Allegheny kept going, beating Thiel; Grove City remained in the undefeated class by mowing down Westminster; Marshall was too strong for poor Bethany; Bucknell was hard pressed to beat St. Thomas; St. Francis bumped Slippery Rock; Geneva played horse with Waynesburg and the Dukes, after a hard struggle, cut down the Howard College team Friday night to the right size.

TECH LACKS ZIP

Notre Dame had too much on the ball for Carnegie. The Tartans made a great fight, but were confronted with a line that gave unmistakable evidence of being one of the toughest in the country. Rockne's charges did nothing wrong Saturday, and Marty Brill's splendid work on the defense, as he backed up the line, coupled with a precise and business-like attack, engineered by Carideo, Marchmount Schwartz and Joe (The People's Choice) Savoldi, and an alert defense against Carnegie's passes, proved the undoing of the Plaid.

Carnegie lacked the zip and drive that characterized its play against Buffalo. Thiel and Georgia Tech, but then, it met an eleven as tough as any in the land. I'm telling you, this fellow Savoldi is a wow! So is Kassis, the sturdy guard, and Capt. Tom Conley at end. Schwartz, who does most of the passing and his share of the ball toting, is a halfback who can hold his paw up with the best of 'em.

For that matter, Rockne has another Four Horsemen bet, and I'll venture the prediction that by the end of the season the boys will be arguing over the relative merits of the Carideo-Schwartz-Brill-Savoldi quartet as contrasted with the original four, Layden, Miller, Crowley and Stuhldreher.

All of the Notre Dame players came through the game in good physical condition and Larry Mullins, fullback, and Frank Leahy, left tackle, are expected to rejoin the team this week. There will be no practice for the varsity today, but intensive work will start tomorrow.

PITT WIN CLEAN-CUT

Pittsburgh's margin of victory over Syracuse was clean-cut enough to make this coming game with the Irish another leader. Carnegie and Notre Dame topped the nation's card last week, and it looks very much as though the Irish and Panthers will usurp the lion's share of the spotlight at the Stadium Saturday.

"I'm not going to do any predicting on the outcome of this Pitt game," Rockne said. "I had my boys up to a high peak yesterday, and I'm a little afraid of a letdown."

"How are the tickets over in Pittsburgh," he continued.

"That is what I was just going to ask you," this correspondent came back. "How about buying a few?"

Rock threw up his hands.

"I haven't a ticket to my name. We bought a good share and they were gone long ago. Say, when you get back, see Don Harrison and fix it for Mrs. Rockne to get in, will you? I forgot all about saving her one, and it looks like she'll have to see the game in the movies unless Don comes through."

So you see, my friends, that it will do you no good to call this office for ducats. Does anyone know of a good knothole out there?

P. G. A. TOURNEY BUREAU HIT

LONG BEACH, Cal., Oct. 20.—A demand by the Professional Golfers' Association Tournament Bureau that 10 per cent of the prize money be deducted from the purse and made out in a separate check to that bureau resulted yesterday in the calling off of the annual Long Beach open golf tournament, with its $3,500 prizes. The meet was scheduled the first week in January.

The cancellation of the tournament marked the first skirmish between officials of the P. G. A., who demand a 10 per cent cut and who threaten to ask for "appearance money" for certain stellar players, this also to be deducted from the purse, and the heads of California open tournaments.

Several other California open meets were said to be on the verge of decay, due to the general nationwide trend toward saving money during unsettled financial conditions and to the arbitrary stand taken by the P. G. A. tournament bureau, that if the 10 per cent deduction—which in the case of Long Beach would amount to $350—is not made, there will be no players entered.

PURDUE STAR HURT

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Purdue's hopes of defeating Wisconsin here next Saturday were dimmed on the Boilermakers' return from Iowa City, when an examination revealed that Alex Yunevich, hard plunging fullback, had dislocated a shoulder.

All W. Va. Teams Beaten This Season

WESTON, W. Va., Oct. 20.—West Virginia college grid teams have suffered severe setbacks during the present season. Not a single collegiate squad of the state stands undefeated and untied after the first four weeks of the year. Never before has West Virginia's average shown such a standing.

A peculiar group of games were held on October 11. Five of the seven tilts ended in tie battles. Three were scoreless ties.

Scoring has been very lacking. Only 159 points have been scored by Conference teams for a bare average of only five points a team per game.

MASSINGHAM DRUG CHAMP

By VERN SWARTSFAGER.

Sherman Massingham, senior member of the local Shipley-Massingham Company, won the National Wholesale Druggists' Association golf championship at Chicago, winning the title for the second consecutive year, which gives him permanent possession of the coveted trophy donated by National Drug Topics. The tourney last year was staged at French Lick, Ind.

According to R. D. Hayden, Sr., an employe, Massingham is a regular sport, also including in his athletic activities tennis and bowling. Singing is another of his main interests, he being a tenor in the Apollo Male Chorus.

Twenty Grand Sets Turf World Record

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Turf followers have discovered that Twenty Grand, Mrs. Payne Whitney's speedy brown colt, reduced the world record time for 2-year-olds over the mile course by a full second as well as clipped one-fifth of a second off the Churchill Downs track record in winning the Kentucky Jockey Club stakes.

As a result, Twenty Grand's stock as a winter book favorite for the next Kentucky Derby has gone up several more points.

TUBERS LEAD CONFERENCE

Olympics could do little with that Blue and Gold line, and the first score came in the second period when within a minute of time up, Barnes stepped back and hurled a pass good for 35 yards into the waiting arms of Bill Lohr. Vogel had a chance to break down the pass but missed. The extra point was missed.

In the final period with two minutes to go, the second touchdown came through a fluke play, but though lucky, it flashed the fact that the Olympics are in there fighting. On his own ten-yard line, Hooks Carroll stepped back to punt on the fourth down, but Moon Klinzing broke through, hit the ball and English fell on it for the second touchdown.

The outstanding play in the Majestic victory over the Mystics was a brilliant 63-yard run by Red Whitmore in the second period of the game, who ran back a punt for the second touchdown of the game.

Whitmore was playing his first game against his home town boys, and he certainly looked good on that broken field run.

KELSH IN LIMELIGHT

The Majestics scored in the first quarter of the game, Mose Kelsh flashed into the limelight with some great plunging that carried the ball over the black and white goal line.

Jimmy Rooney's play was a big part in the victory with his punting, the former star giving the classiest exhibition of kicking seen down in the Ohio River in many years.

Hooks Carroll and the East Pittsburgh team as a whole played a great game. Carroll did everything in wonderful fashion, until Klinzing blocked that kick. Chamberlain was good at end. The Olympics again featured, all of the boys playing bang up football. Barnes directed the team in a winning way.

And the pass, Barnes to Lohr, was one of the prettiest plays seen in the conference this season. The lineups;

CANISIUS TOPS LATROBE GRID TEAM, 18-6

BUFFALO, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Flashing its most consistent attack of the season, Canisius College defeated St. Vincent's College, 18 to 6, here yesterday. The locals scored once in each of the first three periods and threatened constantly during the final quarter.

A brilliant passing attack helped Canisius score its first two touchdowns, the second score climaxing a 95-yard march down the field. Haskell, Blue and Gold quarterback, was the directing genius of the attack, his tosses to the end splitting out into the flat, accounting for plenty of yardage.

The only St. Vincent's touchdown was scored on a freak play in this third quarter, when Canisius had opened its spread formation. Lengyel, Saints' left end, broke through to take the Canisius' center's wild pass as it sailed over a back's hands, and ran 55 yards for a score. The lineups:

Canisius—18		St. Vincent—6
Dunsmore	L. E.	Lengyel
Magraw	L. T.	Dooling
Hoffman	L. G.	Yankovich
Connors	C.	Burke
Sandman	R. G.	Pinola
Marks	R. T.	Crafko
Lynch	R. E.	Beal
Bergerstock	Q.	Ryan
Haskell	L. H.	Farren
Kelly	R. H.	Wheeler
Dubinsky	F.	Molnar

Score by periods:

Canisius	6	6	6	0—18
St. Vincent	0	0	0	6—6

Touchdowns—(Canisius) Lynch, Bergerstock, Fitzpatrick (St. Vincents) Lengyel. Substitutes Canisius—Fitzpatrick for Kelly, Varella for Haskell, Quill for Berg, Wilson, Chappelle for Connors, Watzke for McNamara, O'Toole for Mistretta, Fracke for Fitzpatrick, Mack for Varella, Turgeon for Fracke, Guarnieri for Bergerstock, D'Aiello for Keller, St. Vincents—Rosen for Burke, Genovese for Ryan, O'Neill for Molnar.

Referee—Tommy Tobin. Umpire—Chuck Mansfield.

GROVERS NEXT FOR GENEVA

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Oct. 19.—There are two great intercollegiate rivalries in Western Pennsylvania. For years when Pitt meets Tech, tradition hails the ensuing combat as the feature game of the schedule. In the same way, when Geneva plays Grove City College, the smaller colleges have their fling at a traditional frayt which abounds in hysterie color.

Next Friday night is homecoming day at Beaver Falls, and alumni in large numbers will return to the gridiron spectacle of the Covenanter-Grove City clash. A capacity crowd of about 10,000 will probably be on hand to see Howard Harpster's proteges against Charlie Berry's Grovers. The Crimson horde, due to their impressive array of veterans and a particularly staunch line, is the favorite to conquer. However, the Berrymen do not boast of as scintillating a back as Johnny Knopic, but their backfield en masse rates somewhat higher than Geneva's. Already one large bet is reported to have been made in Beaver Falls that neither team will score more than three touchdowns.

OLD GRID FOES TO BATTLE

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Oct. 19.—Scholastic football contests booked next Friday and Saturday will bring together some old rivals in the Northern West Virginia section. Farmington will play at East Side on Friday and Mason-town will be at Morgantown. Fairmont will go to New Martinsville for a night game on Friday.

Saturday will find Roosevelt-Wilson and Washington Irving, both high schools in Clarksburg, clashing. Victory, a third high school in the Clarksburg section, will play Grafton. Parkersburg will travel to Elkins to meet the light, but fighting team of that city.

FOOTBALL FUNDAMENTALS

By Howard Harpster

All-America Quarterback at Carnegie Tech, 1928. Now Head Coach at Geneva College.

Do You Know--

THAT On off-tackle plays and jabs through the line the ball carrier and the man leading the play should run in straight lines toward the hole, as illustrated by the heavy line, and should not circle or "detour," as shown by the dotted lines. There are two very obvious reasons for this.

First, the linemen can keep the hole open only for a short time and it is necessary for the ball carrier to reach the hole as quickly as possible. If he detours in the backfield the hole may be closed by the time he reaches it.

Secondly, the player can run faster and thereby gain more momentum by running in a straight line than he could if he ran in a half circle.

Detouring is a common fault with many runners and is one which materially hinders the success of a play. It is time enough to dodge and circle when past the scrimmage line, but, behind the line, the ball carrier and interferer should run in the most direct path.

downs three times, once on its 23 after Clark had fumbled on the 39, once on its four-yard line after Clark had fumbled a punt on his 31, and again on the 25 after Baker had punted out at that point . . . . Fourth period—Pitt intercepted a pass after losing the ball on downs on its 29 when Luch's punt was blocked on final down.

CAPITALIZE CHANCES

The break that resulted in the first Pitt score developed when Stevens fumbled a punt and Baker recovered the ball on the 13-yard line as the first period ended. Four line smashes after the opening of the second period brought the tally . . . . In the fourth period, the final touchdown resulted when Baker punted over the goal line and Syracuse was penalized 15 yards for holding after scrimmaging the ball on its 20. A bad punt to the 24-yard line followed, and four plays, culminating in a 20-yard pass from Baker to Reider, put the ball a foot from the goal for first down. After Clark and Heller had failed to advance, Hood was brought back into the game, and he plunged over on his first try.

Pitt may not beat Notre Dame next Saturday, but any team that plays as sound a game fundamentally as the Panthers always must be rated a chance against any eleven . . . Going to Syracuse, I asked Coach Sutherland what he thought Notre Dame's reaction would be to a victory or a defeat in its game with Carnegie, insofar as it would affect the battle with Pitt, and he said he thought the result of that tilt would tell very little . . . "Notre Dame doesn't react like the average team," he elaborated. "It just goes out and plays football. However, I think both Coaches Steffen and Rockne have pointed their teams for their meeting at South Bend, with a victory in this game uppermost in their minds. If we get safely past Syracuse, and it looms as one of the toughest games on our schedule, we will be ready to give the Irish a real fight and both sides will know they have been in a football game." . . . Returning from the Syracuse game, W. Don Harrison, athletic director of Pitt, was inclined to believe that the Tech team had come along just a little too rapidly and had reached its crest against Georgia Tech a week ago, which is possible . . . However, this is not to be construed as taking away any of the credit due Notre Dame for its smashing victory over the Plaid.

NEAR TOP FORM

That's one thing about Pitt teams. They do not come along too fast. They round slowly into their top form for the November games, a point brought out in the opening paragraph of this screed. . . . The Panthers got a lot of bad football out of their systems along with their brilliant play against Syracuse and should be hot for Notre Dame, as well as for the other tough teams that follow on the schedule.

For such a grueling contest, Pitt's game with Syracuse was notable for the cleanness of its play and the fine sportsmanship displayed, both of which features brought words of commendation from the officials as well as other persons closely in touch with the combat. . . . The tackling was hard but fair and on at least two occasions the sportsmanship was of a high quality. . . . Late in the third period, for instance, Titmas, the star quarterback of the Orange, was seriously hurt and after time had been taken out was helped off the field and Cramer sent in to replace him. . . . Capt. Berner refused to accept the substitution and Titmas came back on the field. . . . Technically, he was out of the game for good, as the officials explained to Capt. Baker, of Pitt. . . . However, the latter readily consented to his return, and the score at this point was only 7 to 0 in Pitt's favor. . . . Still later, Pitt was penalized 15 yards for holding, putting the ball back on its 18-yard line. . . The lineman who was guilty of the act spoke up and admitted he had been holding, "I didn't mean to do it, but I did it, and it's o. k.," he said, relieving the tension with his words.

SUTHERLAND PRAISED

Among those who enthused over the cleanness of the game was Pete MacRae, former Allegheny High School and Syracuse star end, now a scout for the Orange, who also was loud in his praise of the Pitt team's work and the skill of Coach Sutherland in perfecting such a machine. "He's one of the game's greatest coaches and probably receives less real credit for his success than any other mentor in the sport," MacRae said. "My hat's off to Jock."—HARRY KECK.

Odie Cleghorn To Sign Today With Detroit

DETROIT, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Odie Cleghorn, of Montreal, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, of the National Hockey League, will sign a contract today to manage the Olympics, Detroit entrant in the International Hockey League, Charles Hughes, president of the Detroit Hockey Club, has announced.

gone through 33 consecutive games without suffering a defeat. Though tied three times, the Volunteers had not been beaten since Novembe. 13, 1926, when they lost to Vanderbilt, 20 to 3.

From that time until last Saturday, Tennessee won 30 games and tied three. One of the ties was played with Vanderbilt in 1927 and the two others with Kentucky in 1928 and 1929. In the 33 games, Tennessee scored 929 points against only 98 by its opponents. The team is coached by Maj. Bob Neyland, United States Army engineer. It was weakened Saturday by the loss of Gene McEver, star back, who is injured.

MISS GLENNA COLLETT has never been equal to the contract of winning the women's British golf championship in her foreign invasions, but there can be no question that among the women players of the United States she is in a class of her own. Her third consecutive and fifth all-time capture of the American championship at Los Angeles Saturday established that fact more clearly than ever.

All of her final wins have been decisive. In 1922 she defeated Mrs. W. A. Gavin, 5 and 4; 1925, Mrs. Alexa Sirling Fraser, 9 and 8; 1928, Miss Virginia Van Wie, 13 and 12; 1929, Mrs. Leona Pressler, 4 and 3, and 1930, Miss Van Wie for the second time, 6 and 5. No other woman ever won the American title more than three times and only four accomplished that. They were Mrs. Fraser, Mrs. Dorothy Campbell Hurd, Miss Margaret Curtis and Miss Beatrix Hoyt.

JUSTO SUAREZ, the latest fistic importation from the Argentine, whose victory over Louis Kid Kaplan in New York last Friday night strengthened the good impression he had made in his American start, has found the fight game to be a short cut to financial independence even if he never gets any further. Only four years ago, Suarez was a skinner in a Buenos Aires slaughter house. He took up amateur boxing at 16, won the featherweight and lightweight Argentine championships in that division, and a year ago defeated Iule Macaroa for the professional lightweight title of that country in a fight that drew a gate of $200.0 the Buenos Aires record for boxing receipts. With the tidy sum he pulled down for whipping Kaplan, Iusto today is worth about $125,000. Quite a jump from abbatoir wages. And there is a heap more in sight for him, for he looks more than ever like a fighter who won't be stopped much short of the world lightweight championship.

With 3,000 fans lining the field the feature game in the Keystone Soccer League was played at Bridgeville yesterday, when Morgan went to Millers Run to defeat the Bridgeville club by a 2-goals-to-1 score in one of the greatest battles seen here in years.

Buff Donnelli was only in the game for 20 minutes when he misjudged in an attempt to head the ball and suffered a bad cut over his eye, Morgan finishing with 10 men. It was a real battle from the start.

DONNELLLIS GUARDED

The Bridgeville defense started to block any scoring efforts of the Donnelli boys. This was successful, and while the Donnellis were being guarded, Barrafoldi and Chappel got loose and, when the interval was reached, Morgan was leading by two goals.

The second half found Bridgeville putting up a brilliant fight and Z. Cimeroli reduced the score with a good shot, but that finished the tallying. The lineup:

Morgan—2.		Bridgeville—1.
Boyle	G.	Durkas
Falasci	R. B.	Sharfe
Cyle	L. B.	Smart
Matthews	C. H.	Cimeroli
Mangus	R. H.	Jablonski

Goals—Chappell, Barrafoldi, Cimeroli. Referee—Lumsden.

OTHER GAMES

A number of other league and non-league booting contests also were played yesterday. Primrose was walloped by Shannon Fintex, 9 to 1; Gladden nosed out Coverdale, 4-3, and the Heidelberg Juniors tripped the Fintex Juniors, 2-1.

Bridgmont and Bower Hill tied, 1-all; Horning whipped Beadling, 6-1; Curry downed Cecil, 4-2; Victory Hill copped from Gratztown, 5-1, and Fitz Henry beat out Herminie, 2-1.

Vestaburg lost out to Clarkville, 6-4; Manown and Mather tied, 3-3; Primrose B squad tied Atlasburg, 2-2, and Houston B squad blanked Cedar Grove, 2-0.

Fire Toll $10,000 In Golf Equipment

READING, Pa., Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Hundreds of Reading golfers spent their usual golf hours yesterday sitting on the Reading Country Club steps looking at the perfect greens. And the cold weather had nothing to do with it.

Fire, that is believed to have been of incendiary origin, early yesterday morning burned to the ground the locker room and pro's office of the club, and consumed individual equipment of the members estimated at $10,000.

John S. Giles, vice president, said that investigation led to the theory that the place had been set on fire. The blaze was discovered by motorists who were passing on the Philadelphia Pike and who stopped to arouse employes.

The above form is printed for your convenience. You can use a separate sheet of paper if you wish. Talkiegram No. 1 must be in the mail before midnight tomorrow (Tuesday) night.

Here's How to Write a Talkiegram

Turn to the motion picture theater announcements in today's Sun Telegraph, study the titles of the current attractions at the Pittsburgh theaters, then put a series of them together so that they will make a readable paragraph, with reasonably correct continuity. Use no less than five titles or more than eight.

Easy, simple, interesting and fascinating. There isn't a chance in the world of any two persons creating the identically same "Talkiegrams." It takes but little time and furnishes lots of fun.

MAYBE IT'S LOVE or JUST LOVE IN THE ROUGH, said MOBY DICK when he met SWEET KITTY BELLAIRE during the SINNER'S HOLIDAY but he looked for DANGER LIGHTS as THE DOUGH BOYS came into view and started THE BIG FIGHT.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

The SINNER'S HOLIDAY at MONTE CARLO is full of DANGER LIGHTS, but LOVE IN THE ROUGH had just as many hazards when THE DOUGH BOYS concluded to start THE BIG FIGHT and break up a ROMANCE.

◆ ◆ ◆ ◆

THE BIG FIGHT began on HER WEDDING NIGHT when the lawyer FOR THE DEFENSE brought out the GOOD NEWS that the ROMANCE had started at MONTE CARLO during a SINNER'S HOLIDAY.

Perhaps you can write better "Talkiegrams" than these. Try it! It costs you nothing. The judges will award the prizes to entries selected as the most interesting. Brevity is essential. Write one or more if you wish. Have everyone in the family write one.

Address your "Talkiegrams" to TALKIEGRAM EDITOR, SUN-TELEGRAPH, P. O. Box 596, PITTSBURGH, PENN., and be sure to place the number on the lower lefthand outside corner of your envelope. Use the above "Talkiegram" form if you wish

MY FIFTY YEARS IN BASEBALL

By CONNIE MACK,

Manager, World Champion Philadelphia Athletics

INSTALLMENT NO. 37.

Up to 1924, the history of the Athletics had been one of steady, if not pronounced, success.

Our sojourn of seven years in the cellar had come to an end with the season of 1921. Then we began clicking by degrees. We landed seventh in 1922, sixth in 1923 and fifth in 1924.

That was measurable headway. We were getting one position better each season and this improvement heartened me, inspired our players and captured the fans.

I might say here that baseball attendance in Philadelphia had started to pick up appreciably in the past few seasons. A new generation of followers had grown and they knew how to find Shibe Parrk.

With these teams we were drawing better than we did in the 1910-1914 era, when we were the invincibles of the sport. That was a healthy condition, the forerunner even of greater things, and I buckled down to the serious business of getting a team that would carry us into first place.

Connie Mack

There is nothin like encouragement and the fans of Philadelphia with their loyal support during these days of reconstruction played a big part in the eventual success of the team.

HEARS OF AL SIMMONS

Had these fans not inspired us by their wholesouled support we never would have attempted some of the big things we did in laying out enormous sums to get attractive ball players.

In the season of 1924 I had the good fortune to discover one of the most valuable players of baseball history. That man was Aloysius Harry Szmanski, than whom I don't think a better right-handed hitter ever lived.

What, you never have heard of such a player?

I am sure you have not, because I gave you his family name, but you will instantly recognize Al Simmons, the name under which he goes in baseball.

Al was born in Milwaukee, of Polish parents, and learned to play baseball on the lots in that prosperous city.

He is a big chap with broad shoulders and well-molded head, covered with black hair. He always carries a sparkle in his eye. To many of his friends, he looks more like an artist than a ball player. I will say that he is an artist in leftfield.

My first introduction to Simmons was made by a man in a gray uniform. He was a mail carrier, who one day brought me a letter written in a boyish hand by a youth in Milwaukee who signed his name Al Simmons.

SIMMONS PASSED UP

I would give $100 if I had that letter today, but I clean out my files once a year and that letter made the wastebasket in one shot. I never expected then that Al Simmons would mean anything to me.

It was the usual letter I get every day from aspiring ball players. At that time, Al was a semi-pro in Milwaukee about 18 or 19 years old and he asked me for a chance to lift the Athletics into the first division.

To these letters, my stenographer has the same answer, "Kind of you to let me hear from you. Very sorry, but my team is already made up. Wish you all the success in the world and many thanks."

Managers never depend on the mails for their ball players. They never take youths unless they are carefully scouted by their own representatives.

I forgot all about the ambitious Milwaukee letter writer, who, nevertheless, must have been good, for the Milwaukee club signed him in 1922 and farmed him out to the Aberdeen team at the Dakota League.

FARMED TO SHREVEPORT

He rejoined Milwaukee that September after the Dakota League closed and batted .220 in 19 games.

"Not so hot," mused the late Otto Borchert, owner of the club, who, during the winter, farmed out Simmons to the Shreveport club of the Texas League for 1923.

Now, Shreveport was managed by Ira Thomas, my old catcher, who was such a big figure in our triumph over Frank Chance's Chicago Cubs in the World Series of 1910.

Thomas, who once more is in our organization begged me for some of my surplus players for his Shreveport club. I always liked Ira and rate him highly, both as a baseball leader and a man, and I obliged the best I could.

Ira was delighted and told me if he saw any good-looking young players in the Texas League he would tip me off at once. Little did he know at the time that he had the best young player in the league on his own team.

SELF RELIANCE BEST PANACEA FOR SLUMP

Emersonian Doctrine of Last Administration Not Held Suitable by Mr. Hoover

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Naive persons believe the chief executive in the White House can wield a magic wand which determines prosperity and depression.

Those who remember the prosperity of the last administration sometimes wistfully remark:

"Oh, if only Coolidge were in the White House!"

Although President Hoover was a member of Coolidge's official family, he disagreed radically with his former chief on some fundamental principles. For example, on the very day at the end of last week, when the newspapers were carrying the President's new declaration of an intention to intervene to alleviate economic distress resulting from unemployment, ex-President Coolidge in his daily sermon deprecated reliance on the government to get us out of tight places.

Mr. Rukeyser.

URGES SELF RELIANCE

Preaching the Emersonian doctrine of self reliance, Coolidge said:

"We demand entire freedom of action and then expect the government in some miraculous way to save us from the consequence of our own acts. We want the right to run our own business, fix our own wages and prices, and spend our own money, but if depression and unemployment result we look to government for a remedy.

"Now the only way to hold the government entirely responsible for conditions is to give up our liberty for a dictatorship. If we continue the more reasonable practice of managing our own affairs we must bear the burdens of our own mistakes. A free people cannot shift their responsibility for them to the government. Self-government means self-reliance."

As a statement of abstract principles, Coolidge's remarks are unobjectionable, but it is interesting to compare them with acts in his own administration and with President Hoover's present program.

FEELS RESPONSIBILITY

Instead of insisting on the lack of responsibility on the part of government for current economic distress, President Hoover in a parallel column on the same day said:

"As a nation we must prevent hunger and cold to those of our people who are in honest difficulties."

Ever since the panic, President Hoover has felt a sense of responsibility, and has deliberately sought to intervene to modify the business cycle, instead of merely to hold aloof and ride the storm. Last November, Mr. Hoover, bringing the government into the picture, did the unprecedented act of summoning captains of industry and labor leaders to the White House to work out plans for mitigating the depression. He also sought to co-ordinate the activities of local state governments toward meeting problems arising from unemployment. He has just appointed a cabinet committee to further these activities, with special regard to increasing opportunities for employment.

In spite of Coolidge's enunciation of good old-fashioned doctrines of individualism, governments through the world are interesting themselves more and more in business problems. The collapse of commodity prices has led to the overturn of numerous governments in Latin America.

Although public officials may conceivably be going too far in the direction of paternalistic intervention with the business cycle, it should be recalled that during the Coolidge administration governmental leaders were criticized for whooping it up for prosperity. On one occasion, the correspondents went so far as to report that President Coolidge did not think that brokers' loans were too high. Such utterances from high administration sources tended to prolong the bull market and delayed the subsequent readjustment. President Hoover, in his Cleveland address before the American Bankers' Association, indicated the causes of the depression go back to the excesses of the earlier inflation.

REPORTS SALES GOOD

In spite of adverse conditions, energetic business men are frequently able to buck the tides. Four score leading corporations, for example, reported higher earnings in the first half of 1930 than in the corresponding period of 1929.

Locally, there are a few straws in the wind indicating that initiative and enterprise can bring results even in times of general recession. For example, R. Harris & Co., the jewelers, tell me that September was the best month from a standpoint of sales in the history of the business which dates back more than 50 years, and Harold Levi, manager of the Hecht Department Store, reveals that gross sales thus far in 1930 are running 7 per cent above 1929. Unseasonably warm weather here has been retarding sales of outer garments, blankets and other fall merchandise, but the enterprising department stores have been increasing their volume in commodities that the public now wants, such as furniture and drapery.

WALL STREET HEARS

That there has been a pronounced increase in odd lot buying of stocks during the past week.

That recent selling of Remington Rand represented liquidation of a large block of stock that has been handing over the market; that the company's business has improved since the first of September.

That New York Central will probably earn its $8 dividend by a slight margin

STOCK MARKET PRICES STAGE COME-BACK

List Moves Forward as Easily as It Tumbled Last Week; Sales Light

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—The blue Monday tradition was violated by a sweeping advance in share prices in today's stock market. Trading was in light volume, and the list moved forward as easily as it slipped backward last week.

The upholding of the Bruening cabinet by an unexpectedly large majority in Germany removed a point of uncertainty that had been an unsettling factor in the security markets, and the strong support accorded pivotal shares in last week's closing session had made the bears nervous.

Manufacturing and utility shares showed marked strength, but only a few of the rails participated in the advance. Allied Chemical rose nearly 10 points, and such issues as American Tobacco B, American Can, Westinghouse Electric, Eastman, Air Reduction, Atchison, and Union Pacific advanced 5 or more. Advances of 3 points or more embraced a long list of shares, including U. S. Steel, American Telephone, National Biscuit, DuPont, Consolidated Gas, General Electric, American and Foreign Power, American Water Works and Sears Roebuck.

BUOYANCY DEVELOPS

Buoyancy developed in foreign exchange rates, as well as stocks. The German mark displayed pronounced strength, and other leading European currencies stiffened markedly. The Spanish peseta responded to government support measures with an advance of more than one-third of one cent.

Wall street was encouraged by the fact that distress liquidation appeared to have been largely accomplished. An almost steady decline of about five weeks finds few precedents in stock market history, and the feeling has gained ground in speculative circles that the bottom must have been reached, at least temporarily.

One observer points out that the persistence of important liquidation after short term money rates have been established at extremely low rates has occurred only once previously in the past three decades, namely, in 1914, when the outbreak of the world war completely clouded the speculative outlook.

HELPFUL FACTOR

The far reaching nature of the present business recession has resulted in extreme of pessimism, with political uncertainties abroad an aggravating factor, so the failure of extremists in the German Reichstag to upset the government was decidedly helpful to Wall street sentiment.

Business news and surveys appearing over the week-end were still mixed. Reports from steel and automotive centers in the main failed to provide much cheer, although some independent steel mills reported increases in bookings. The mid-month survey of the Irving Trust Company stressed the fact that collections have improved in some cities for the first time in months. An extensive survey of chain stores sales for September revealed the first increase since April, despite a further decline in commodity prices. Colder weather appearing over the week-end was favorably regarded as an impetus to purchases of seasonal merchandise.

Call money remained unchanged at 2 per cent. The demand was light.

Cigar Production Lower in 9 Months

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Production of cigars by American Cigar Company, a subsidiary of American Tobacco Company, in September was 22,147,000 greater than in September, 1929.

During the same month production of cigars by all manufacturers declined 67,765,320.

For first nine months of 1930 production of cigars by American Cigar Company, gained 121,663,000 while production by all manufacturers dropped 428,662,721.

Stock Memberships Bring Lower Prices

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Arrangements have been made for the sale of two New York Stock Exchange memberships, one at $230,000 and the other at $217,000. The latter figure represents a decrease of $28,000 from last sale made during week ending October 18.

A New York Curb Exchange seat has been sold for $82,000, a decrease of $3,000 from the last previous sale.

N. Y. City Offering Cut to $50,000,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—It has been decided to reduce the amount of the New York City 50-year 4 per cent bond issue to $50,000,000 from $75,00,000 as originally scheduled. This action was taken due to the unsettled condition of the bond market.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—Speculative sentiment underwent sufficient change on the curb today to bring in considerable short covering, with the result that prices firmed. Trading was quiet on the rally, which was most noticeable in utilities harboring a large short interest.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (00 omitted in sales column of stock list; 000 omitted in sales column of bond list):

Leaders Take Helpful Action; Rich Buying

By B. C. FORBES

AMERICA has been suffering from a violent attack of "nerves." This utterly un-American conduct cannot conceivably last long.

There are indications that leadership, real American leadership will shortly assert itself.

THE MOST encouraging development is neither a financial nor an industrial development. It is the businesslike movement by President Hoover, by New York, by Detroit and other cities to meet squarely the unemployment problem.

B. C. Forbes

Heretofore there has been nation-wide complaint that our greatest bankers, our greatest industrialists, our greatest corporations and our most influential governmental leaders were altogether too apathetic, too indifferent, too inactive regarding the sufferings of those unable to earn a living. President Hoover's attempt to operate through the United States Chamber of Commerce proved largely a fizzle. His latest move to effect results through a cabinet committee and Gov. Eugene Meyer, of the Federal Reserve Board, is much more likely to achieve tangible results.

SEWARD PROSSER, New YORK banker noted for his humaneness, has taken the lead in raising funds to provide employment for approximately 10,000 idle. Mr. Prosser's standing is of the highest. His constructive action unquestionably will inspire leaders in other cities to organize for definite action. Already New York City has voted $1,000,000 specifically to provide work.

Within the next few weeks many communities can be counted upon to demonstrate that they are alive to the necessities of the situation. This will go far to modify the bitterness which has been spreading rather alarmingly, bitterness fostered by the feeling that the rich and powerful have concerned themselves solely with looking after their own interests, and have been callous towards the plight of bread winners unable to provide bread for their dependents.

THE NATION'S attack of "nerves" has been most strikingly illustrated by ongoings in Wall street. Average quotations for stocks closed the week even below the minimum at the worst of last years panic. Transactions on the New York Stock Exchange clearly reflected bear attacks despite the efforts of President Hoover and the Exchange governors to discourage destructive operations at this trying time. The succesive decline of stocks found themselves compelled to liquidate because of their inability to provide additional protective margins. Also the dissemination of out-and-out pessimism has induced many small investors to sell out.

This pessimism has been reflected in other directions. It has been manifested on the grain exchanges and on the cotton exchanges. It has been reflected in retail trade, wholesale trade, building, employment, etc.

YET THERE ARE modest sign that heason is returning. Buying for actual consumption is increasing here and in other cities. An increasing number of companies report improvement in sales. While in Cleveland last week the writer discovered several manufacturers who have enjoyed distinct betterment in demand during recent weeks. This statement made to me by President George A. Martin of the Sherwin-Williams Company, doing business all over the continent is typical of the experience of a growing number of concerns:

"There are some encouraging things in our sales reports for September and the first two weeks of October. The industrial lines and heavy goods to manufacturers are off, but our sales to merchants, or what we call our trade sales, which represent such a large part of our total volume, show quite a lot of encouragement. For this period Sherwin-Williams trade sales are just about even with last year, the best fall business we ever had with the possible exception of 1920. This reflects a good condition in thousands of towns, as we have about 8,000 full line agents and several thousand dealers. Our factory operations for September showed an increase of 230 per cent over August. Cleveland, Chicago and Newark plants are all running to capacity; man hours increased from 51,500 to 110,661 or 100 per cent. The first two weeks in October show 300 per cent increase over August."

IT CAN be said regarding general business that it is not getting worse. And that is something. If the current level of activity can be maintained or bettered during the balance of the year the prospects for substantial improvement will be distinctly encouraging.

ONE FACT worth noting is this. Every share of stock now being sacrificed is being purchased by somebody else. The writer knows from first-hand knowledge that numbers of very wealthy men have been quietly buying substantially purchasing stocks during recent weeks. These long-headed and long-pursed men know for a certainty that they will earn very generous profits when the prevailing nervousness and gloom pass. They also know for a certainty that the nervousness and gloom will pass.

HOW'S BUSINESS?

ACTUAL FACTS ON CONDITIONS TODAY

By FRELING FOSTER

Survey of 800 Manufacturers Reveals Winter Outlook Good and Wages Stable

Chart illustrates four important summaries of a nation-wide survey of business conditions, as compared with a year ago, made during the last week of September among 800 manufacturing plants of various sizes and lines of products by the National Association of Manufacturers. It is believed that this survey is comprehensive and complete enough to give a representative picture of general manufacturing conditions and attitudes in the United States today.

PRESENT SALES

64% of these manufacturers stated that their present sales were excellent, good or fair, and the other 36% stated that their sales were poor. "Fair" sales have been combined with "Excellent" and "Good" sales because, when a man states that his business is "Fair" he means or infers that it is possibly good.

WINTER PROSPECTS

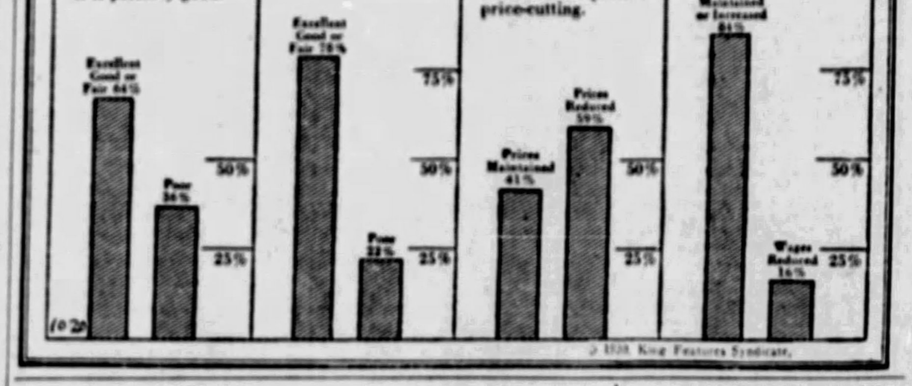
The prospects for business this Winter are considered to be excellent, good or fair by 78% of them. Comparing this with the "present sales" chart, it means that many who are not doing so well now have some basis for believing that the upturn will begin shortly—for them.

COMMODITY PRICES

This summary reveals that 41% of them have been able to maintain their prices despite the slump. The other 59% who were obliged to reduce theirs did so but little, compared with decreases in sales. It is interesting to know, however, that two of every five of them were able to withstand competitive price-cutting.

WAGE SCALE

This is the best news of all. It shows that despite the fact that 59% were forced to reduce their prices, that 84% still maintained or increased their 1929 wage scales. This seems to be an excellent refutation of the impression held by many that wages are being reduced generally.



Part Played by Shorts Not Understood

By GEORGE H. SNYDER.

LACK OF UNDERSTANDING of the part played by short selling in the stock markets has been apparent in many of the attacks levelled against the practice during the past few weeks. While there are some undesirable aspects to bear operations, it should not be forgotten that short selling has its favorable side and that it performs a valuable function in security markets.

The attacks against short selling have considered the problem from only one angle. Any fair appraisal should take into consideration the advantages as well as the disadvantages of permitting the continuation of short operations.

In the minds of many there is a feeling that there is something definitely wrong about the act of a person selling stocks which he does not own. This is in spite of the fact that short selling has its parallels in many forms of commercial activity. It is common practice for dealers in steel scrap to contract to deliver materials to the mills in the future. The dealer does not have the scrap. The scrap may not yet be in existence. But no one believes that the dealer has done anything wrong in taking the order and in gambling on his ability to buy the scrap at a price which will yield a profit.

Compared to Contractor

A MAN MAY want a house built. A builder submits a bid and is awarded the job. When that builder puts his signature on the contract he is short one house. He has agreed to gamble on the price of bricks, lumber, labor and other items going into the cost of the structure.

In the stock market individuals are dealing with securities instead of commodities. The fact that the transactions are not a part of the actual production of some necessary article or structure may make bear activities not entirely comparable to the scrap dealer or the contractor. But this is debatable, since the short selling of stocks plays an actual part in the valuation of securities in an exchange which carries out the necessary task of maintaining an open market for capital.

How a Short Sale Works

UNDERSTANDING OF THE mechanics of the short sale may help materially in judging the part played by bear activities. A trader believes a certain stock is selling above its actual value in comparison to other stocks. He orders his broker to sell 100 shares. The member on the floor of the exchange executes his selling order in precisely the same manner as if he were disposing of stock actually held. The buyer does not care since, so far as he is concerned, the transaction will be settled in the same manner.

All trading on the stock exchange must be settled by delivery of the securities on the following day. The broker for the man who sold the stock must have 100 shares to make this delivery. Accordingly he goes into the loan crowd which meets after the close. He borrows 100 shares from some other broker who has this stock on hand. As security he gives the broker an amount of cash equal to the market value. The lending broker has the use of this money so he pays interest on it to the broker who borrowed the stock.

Loaning Rates

IF THE STOCK is not in great demand by shorts, the loaning rate will correspond with the price of call money. If the stock is in heavy demand he will pay a lower rate of interest. It sometimes happens that the shorts will want so much stock that no interest will be paid and the stock will be said to be loaning "flat." Last week there were a few cases of stocks actually loaning at a small premium. That means that there were so many shorts wanting particular issues that the brokers who were long on these stocks could dictate the terms. That is they had the use of the money put up by the shorts at no cost and were paid a premium besides.

The broker for the short seller required his client to put up margin. He did not have to do any additional financing, however, since the price he received when he sold the stock provided the funds to be given to the lending broker.

The manner in which the short sale finally terminates and its effect on the market will be discussed in future articles in this column.

Subsidiary Formed By Kroger Grocery

CINCINNATI, Oct. 20.—Kroger Grocery and Baking Company has formed a subsidiary, the Wesco Foods Company, to act as purchasing agent and consignment agency for produce and other perishable goods sold by Kroger stores. DAILY TRUE STORY

'Hearts and Flowers'

The orchestra was playing "Hearts and Flowers."

The lights were dimmed, only a few pale blue bulbs being lighted in the hall where the Riverdale High School was having its annual commencement dance.

"Isn't it wonderful? Isn't it so romantic!" Milly Jones cried.

Ted Ward, who was dancing with Milly, smiled at her in a superior way, as befitted a man who was then sophomore and felt that, having emerged from the freshman ranks, he was a very grand person.

"It's all right—I suppose," he answered, putting into the "I suppose" a tone hinting that it was rather silly and juvenile for one of his years and position.

Ted Ward would have been furious if Milly had pointed this out to him. He didn't even suspect she knew the real meaning of "sophomore," much less that she was thinking of it at that moment.

However, Milly was terribly in love with Ted. She wouldn't have offended him for worlds. She was a very wise little girl and understood males quite well. She realized that all in good time Ted would outgrow his feeling of superiority in worldly wisdom and, awaken to the fact that Milly was a sweet little girl.

Beautiful Music

She closed her eyes for a moment and let Ted guide her. Softly she hummed a bit of Hearts and Flowers."

"It's wonderful—it really IS WONderful, Ted, and you needn't laugh—I adore 'Hearts and Flowers.' It reminds me of pictures of elegant ladies and courtly gentlemen dancing in a sort of Watteau garden."

"Ha-ha—if this old high school hall is a Watteau garden, I'm Sir Walter Raleigh."

"It is positively too ro-MANtic to make fun of—every note of that beautiful composition breathes of romance and tender love—it really does, Ted—can't you feel it?"

Ted grinned.

"High school dances," Ted said to her, "bore me terribly, and those idiotically saccharine old wheezes like 'Hearts and Flowers' are absolutely the limit."

Milly looked at him reproachfully.

"We used to have a lot of fun here, Ted," Milly said, reproachfully. "We used to be awfully happy and such close friends—" She paused and added, wistfully, "I didn't think we'd ever get over it."

Starts for College

"One cannot forever remain in the adolescent stage—fortunately," he answered, turning to give Beth Watson, the new school teacher, a sweet smile. Beth was 25 and quite sophisticated. Milly was 18. If you know very young men at all, you know that sophisticated femininity of 25 has a greater appeal to them than innocent 18.

Since Milly was being graduated, she came to the dance and exercises with her classmates, but she felt sure Ted would take her home.

He didn't. He walked down Academy street to the Rawson boarding house with Beth Watson, talking largely of man's affairs in the collegiate world.

Milly remained at home through the summer and saw but little of Ted because he seldom dropped around, being too busy with a new roadster, a gay little widow violinist in the woman's orchestra at the local summer hotel and now and then with Beth Watson.

He stopped off to say his goodbys to Milly before he went back to college.

He half swaggered down and hopped into his shiny roadster.

The next week he was back in college and Milly was in New York taking a private course at Columbia.

Four years, to youth, is an eon and the west coast of Florida is the width of the universe away.

Ted Ward was four years older and living at Crescent Grove, a colony of writers and artists.

Not that he was either artist or author, but just a real estate hustler endeavoring to make Crescent Grove grow into a world metropolis.

He was fairly successful, at that.

Mrs. Metcalf, the wealthiest resident of the colony, had become friendly with him because she approved his plans of keeping the colony section quite apart from the embryo city he was planning to build up. She often entertained him and helped his sales by introducing him to the right people.

"By the way, Ted," she said one day after he had come in from a game of golf with her husband, "drop over tonight—it's quite formal—a reception to Mildred Morley."

"No? Not the Mildred Morley who wrote those sizzling hot novels and that corking latest one, 'Too Beautiful to Be Good?'"

"Never saw her picture. I sure would like to add her to the colony. I'll be over in my best bib and tucker."

And he was right on the dot. Mr. Metcalfe chatted with him in his den, explaining that, to prevent rivalry and hard feeling, he was taking Miss Morley in to dinner.

They went out and met the ladies. Mrs. Metcalfe introduced Ted to Miss Morley.

Meets Millie

"For Pete's sake—it's Milly Jones!" he added.

"Why, hello—it's Ted Ward," Milly said, shaking hands.

"Didn't know you were married—"

"Married?"

"Morley is the name now, isn't it?"

"A pen name, my publishers advised it—perhaps we'll get a chance for a few words later," and she went in to dinner with Mr. Metcalfe, while Ted took one of the Swain girls in and had a miserable time trying to be attentive to her and to watch Milly Jones at the same time—she was Milly Jones to him. He gasped at the idea of Milly ever writing such books. Boy, she must have become sophisticated!

After dinner there was some dancing. Ted managed to ask Milly for a dance. She started to accept and said, "The next one, Ted."

And the next one was a waltz—the music being "Hearts and Flowers"!

"Wonderful, Milly, simply wonderful—that old air is full of memories and sentiment and romance," Ted said.

"Indeed? I consider it an idiotically saccharine old wheeze."

"Why, Milly! It's like—it reminds me of grand ladies and courtly gentlemen dancing in a—in a——"

"Watteau garden?"

"Yes, by jove!"

"Oh, Ted — exactly what I said when you looked down on me from your sophomoric superiority back home — and you laughed at me. Do you know why you laughed at me? It was because you were a foolish second-year student, as the word means. I knew it then."

"Milly, you are right. I was an awful fool, but I'm the wisest man living today?"

"And the most modest," she said, with pained sarcasm."

"I'm the wisest man living, because I want you. I want to marry you, and I intend to if there's a chance in the world for me."

"Every chance, Ted."

The music ceased.

"Repeat 'Hearts and Flowers,' please," Milly and Ted requested the orchestra leader, almost in one voice.

HINTS FOR THE TIRED HOSTESS

The Ideal Hostess

Our Wild Life Department will gladly give hints to the host or hostess on how to entertain pleasure-mad house guests. We have on file a list of instructions for parlor games, such as the following—

AN INDOOR GARDEN PARTY

Lady guests represent various flowers given them by the hostess—such as Heliotrope, Mignonette, Pansy, Rose, Lily, etc.

The gentlemen (if there are any present) are given names of insects, such as Midge, Grub, Wasp, Spider, Butterfly, Boll-Weevil, Horse-fly, etc.

When the hostess drops her handkerchief, rings a gong or blows a whistle, all the flowers and insects move around the room swiftly. When a flower is mentioned by name, the person representing that flower is supposed to bend over, and not carry on like a flower. The insects can behave in whatever manner they like—shrink away or slap a flower on the back good naturedly, or make characteristic remarks. If a flower or insect fails to respond when its name is called, a forfeit is demanded such as requiring that the player thus called go get his or her hat and coat and depart.

Gradually the players are all eliminated, and then the host and hostess, after eating a lot of ice cream and cake, go to bed.

A charge of 35-cents for each guest will help defray the cost of the entertainment and refreshments.

Pittsburgh's High Taxes

People of Only Seven of Nation's 250 Largest Cities Pay More Per Capita.

Citizens who opposed the increase in Pittsburgh's tax rate last winter sought to make comparisons with other cities, but were embarrassed by the difficulty of analyzing the statistics. We commend to their attention a pamphlet just issued by the Bureau of the Census, entitled "Financial Statistics of Cities Having a Population of Over 30,000 for 1928." There they will find the analysis they sought.

It is illuminating to learn that the people of only seven of the 250 largest cities in the United States paid higher property taxes per capita in 1928 than the people of Pittsburgh.

The rate for Pittsburgh was $65.52. For New York it was $63.59; Chicago, $59.31; Philadelphia, $52.15; Detroit, $62.97; Cleveland, $56.46; St. Louis, $38.66; Baltimore, $37.95; San Francisco, $49.71; Buffalo, $57.64, and Milwaukee, $56.50.

The cities with higher rates than Pittsburgh were: Los Angeles, $66.34; Boston, $69.47; Newark, $65.92; Atlantic City, $91.18; New Rochelle, $73.36, and St. Petersburg, $71.57.

Outside of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia the highest per capita property tax paid by the people of the 20 Pennsylvania cities which figure in the report was $37.59, the rate in Harrisburg.

A Sensible Plan

Department of Public Welfare Has Done Well In Utilizing Social Service Agencies in Relief Campaign.

The public will approve the plan announced by Mrs. Enoch Rauh, director of public welfare, for distribution of the $100,000 appropriated by City Council for the relief of destitution.

Mrs. Rauh has decided, with her customary good sense, not to employ workers for the campaign, but to utilize the city's social service agencies.

This assures that the entire fund will be expended for the purpose for which it is appropriated, without deduction for administrative expenses.

It also assures that the money will be distributed without favoritism, that persons whose need is genuine will receive relief, and that those with questionable claims will not.

There is to be no red tape in passing on applications, no unnecessary delay in providing assistance; but the business is to be handled in a businesslike way, which is as it should be.

The public shares Mrs. Rauh's confidence in the ability of the various welfare associations to investigate the applications satisfactorily. Their co-operation will be appreciated.

Chinese Trees

New Kind to Be Introduced Here Prompts Appreciation of Other Species Already Established.

A real estate company operating in the South Hills announces it will plant Chinese elms on its lots, a tree new to America.

The announcement is of more than ordinary interest because of the success that attended the introduction of two other kinds of Chinese trees, which have been for some years firmly established in Pittsburgh.

Virtually the only kind of tree left in the downtown section, the only kind in the thickly built up sections of the North Side and alongside the railroads in the nearby industrial communities, is the ailanthus, an importation from China, where it is known as the Tree of Heaven. The hardy ailanthus is not affected by smoke, and thrives amid conditions which our native trees cannot endure.

Extensively planted in Pittsburgh's parks we find another Chinese tree, the gingko, interesting as the only surviving species of a great family of trees which flourished in remote geological epochs. The gingko is sacred to the Japanese, who plant it near their temples.

If the Chinese elms do as well as the ailanthus and the gingko they will be a welcome addition to the city's flora.

"Sweat-Shops" Persist

Special Care Should Be Taken During Industrial Depression to Protect Women and Children.

Attention is called by the State Bureau of Women and Children to the persistence of "sweat-shops" in Pennsylvania. Introduction of new machinery and changes in the type of product manufactured do not tend, we are told, to eliminate the "sweating" system.

Under that system unskilled or partly skilled workers, especially women and children, are given piece work to be done at home for the lowest wages they can be forced to accept.

Because of the oppression of workers in "sweat-shops," because of the unsanitary conditions in which they worked, the name became a term of reproach. In 1926 Pennsylvania put into effect laws for the protection of such workers.

There is temptation during the industrial depression for unscrupulous manufacturers to take advantage of the necessities of the workers and "sweat" them to the limit. There is special need at this time, therefore, for care to protect women and children from exploitation.

Crashing The Gate

"Bugs" Baer Says:

An Old Egg

Princeton University discovered a dinosaur egg in Montana.

An egg isn't important. If it had been a football they would have built a stadium around it.

It is several million years old. What difference does the two million years make? An egg can't get any older after the first week.

If this egg had been any good it would have been ordered long ago.

Why do scientists consult menus of the Paleozoic time when head waiters galloped through the Cambrian fen and the salad was in the carboniferous stage?

At that, a college professor is the only bird who can dig down 1,200 feet in Montana without starting an oil scandal in Washington.

And when he gets that far he can keep right on going without stopping to write a letter of explanation to the stockholders.

We think the Princeton professors are on the wrong track. They can't make us believe that a dinosaur with tusks, teeth and claws would ever so belittle his dignity as to lay an egg.

We have studied the Tremadoc reds, the Coraline crags and the different strata of the earth. It is very interesting if some other bozo does the digging.

But when you get down 1,200 feet and discover an egg you should be educated enough to realize that Cro-Magnon man hid it there because his customers objected.

The merry chime of the cash register will never tingle for an egg like that. The statute of limitations has mercifully cancelled its legal standing as an omelette.

If we had to live on stuff like that we would soon get our figures back.

Eleven scientists should go into a huddle around that dinosaur egg and make it an even dozen.

What are they going to do with it? Nobody has called for it in 30 days and it's theirs.

It belongs to them. And as to the exact period it belongs to, we hope its the a la carte and not table d'hote.

When a man speaks of her as "the dearest little woman on earth" he may mean one or two things.

ROBERT BOYLE

By Archibald Henderson

Robert Boyle was one of those marked men in the history of science who register the transition from the past to the present. He waged the bitter battle against superstition and error, delusion and sciolism. He imported into chemistry the principles which govern science today, and left his mark upon his age and upon future ages. The Baconian method of ruthless experiment and quantitative measurement was a cardinal principle of his scientific philosophy. Chemical analysis, a phrase which he coined, set the stamp upon a whole branch of modern science. He has been called the godfather of chemical analysis.

Born at Lismore Castle, Waterford, Ireland, on January 25, 1627, Boyle was the fourteenth child of the Earl of Cork. It is said that an apothecary's mistake, which nearly caused the death of Boyle when a lad, was the cause of turning his attention to the study of drugs. This study fired him with the desire to make a thoroughgoing study of chemistry.

During the period of the Civil War in England, the times were much confused and hardship was the order of the day. Boyle spent three years at Eton, and afterwards studied at Geneva under a French tutor. After foreign travel and sojourn for six years, Boyle returned to England. Two years later, he settled down at his property, Stalbridge Manor, in Dorsetshire; and was soon busying himself in scientific pursuits. Although he had labored for seven years on various scientific problems, he accomplished little until after his removal to Oxford in 1654.

A puzzling problem then agitating the minds of scientists and philosophers was the problem of the vacuum. Why does water follow upward the piston of a pump? The glib explanation was put forward in the familiar phrase: Nature abhors a vacuum. Hobbes and Descartes tried their minds on the problem; and Descartes maintained, with metaphysical subtlety, that if a space existed with nothing whatever in it, the walls of that space would be separated by nothing, and consequently must touch each other!

After studying the theories of Hobbes and the pienist school, Boyle decided to make accurate experiments with a suitably constructed instrument for producing a vacuum. The enthusiastic inventor made plans for a very complicated machine, based on the principles of Guericke's pump. Although fearfully and wonderfully made, Boyle's apparatus possessed the one indispensable quality; it did what it was designed to do. He demonstrated by numerous experiments the "spring" or elasticity of the air; and made many other experiments with his fascinating new toy. Finally he demonstrated the falsity of the cardinal principle of the plenist school, that nature abhors a vacuum.

The most famous of all his experiments resulted in the formulation of the famous law associated with his name. In simple terms, Boyle's law of gases is: the volume of gas is inversely proportional to the pressure. The object of the experiment, says J. N. Leonard in his stimulating work "Crusaders of Chemistry," was to see if a column of mercury long enough to double the pressure of the atmosphere on the air in the short leg of a U-shaped glass tube would reduce the volume of that air by one-half. On the day of the experiment the barometer stood at 29⅛ inches. This meant that the air in the closed part of the tube was already under pressure of 29⅛ inches. If it took an additional 29⅛ inches to compress it to half its volume, the hypothesis would be proved. Boyle poured mercury through a funnel into the open end of the tube. When the air in the closed end was reduced to one-half its former volume, the mercury in the open tube stood higher by 29⅛ inches. The principle of modern science was vindicated.

Boyle made an exhaustive study of chemical quantities known as elements. He laid the foundation of the modern study of the elements, which cannot be broken down into compounds.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Eva Smith has an old bureau, filled with clothes. A dozen or so dresses, scores of silk "teddies," slips and nighties, all jammed in, helter skelter. They're not old clothes. Shaking out the wrinkles, you're caught by their modish cut and tricky decoration and you wonder why they've been dicarded. But on closer inspection you see that there's something wrong with each garment. A ripped sleeve—buttons gone—an hour's work would put them to rights.

"But what's the use?" says Eva. "It isn't worth my time. Ready-made clothes are so cheap—nobody bothers with making or mending any more."

You figure a moment. Silk at $1.95 a yard—Well, maybe she's right. And yet—Do they really cost only $7.98, those cheaply bought quickly discarded dresses? Or do they cost much more . . . more than we can safely risk paying?

You remember the long discussions your mother and aunt had over the annual best black taffeta. What a fuss before they got it, what an adventure while they were making it, and what a thrill when it was done. And everything was like that, for them. No "ready-mades" in their lives—no easy flow of luxuries. They had to work for what they had. You're sorry for them—thinking of their lack of conveniences. But did they really get less out of life—or did they get much more?

"Ready-made"—all life's that now. Ready-made clothes. Ready-made foods. Ready-made amusements. Ready-made ideas. Don't have to bother to make anything any more. Life comes all put up in cheap, convenient packages. But what do we get out of those packages? How much thrill, how much adventure, how much creative pride is left, when life comes ready-made?

Yes. I know. We can't stop the wheels of progress. But is a ready-made life really progress? And need we buy life in a package, just because it comes that way?

I know a woman who makes remarkable, old-fashioned vegetable soup. She laughingly admits that she could save time, money and effort by buying canned soup—and she agrees that canned soup may be quite as nourishing. But she says she needs to make soup "to keep her hand in."

"There's something about doing things for yourself," she says, chopping her hand-peeled carrots and turnips in an old wooden bowl.

"Doing things for yourself," there's the urge that lies behind every important human act. The creative urge. Go down the scale of biology and you'll find less and less of that urge. Jelly fish create nothing—they drift with the tide and let the salt current bring them all they need. They lead the perfect ready made lives. But when you come to man he wants things—wants to prove his manhood by making things. Take away that creative urge, give him everything in packages, and what have you? The jelly fish again?

"But look at all people accomplish, now that they don't have to fuss to make things for themselves!" you say triumphantly.

All right, I'm looking. Just what DO they accomplish? Just what does Eva accomplish, with all that saved time on her hands, that can give her the pride that her grandmothers' home made jams and dresses gave them?

Text For Today

He hath said I will never leave thee, nor forsake thee. So that we may boldly say, the Lord is my helper, and I will not fear.—Hebrews, xiii:5, 6.

Think It Over

Drawn By Hal Coffman.

Nearly a year has passed since the black days of 1929, when the stock market collapsed and billions of paper wealth vanished overnight.

How many of us, a year ago, were riding on the crest of the wave, carefree and RICH? Nothing was too good for us. Work was forgotten. We were scrambling madly for the dizzy profits that mounted steadily to incredible heights.

We were "Kings for a Day," and we thought we were going to be kings for life.

A year later few of us are kings. Most of us, in fact, are not even deuce spots.

Let's hope we have learned our lesson—to save wisely, to spend wisely, but NOT to gamble.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Oct 20.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up early shouting anathema on the mad riveting, and cleaning out an old chest came upon a hilarious original by "Ding" of the late Clare Briggs and dusted it off to take to the framer along with a kodak of the late Will Hogg and his dog Gilly.

So at the mail, finding cheering notes from Sinclair Lewis, Adolphe Menjou and Edna Hibbard, then at a window watching a sluicing shower, my poor head filled with noble thoughts but few words to express them. And stifled an urge to attack an inoffensive piano tuner in the adjoining room.

In the late afternoon walking with my wife and Ted and Connie Cook along the Harlem Speedway saw a gravely silent crowd gazing over the parapet. And a policeman said boatmen were dragging for a little boy in the river. Home where Miss Christina Rose came and played some beautiful tunes.

One of the last of the vanishing old guard to continue the ancient 5 o'clock promenade on Fifth avenue is the millionaire-octogenarian, August Hecksher. Each pleasant late afternoon, he walks briskly from his Vanderbilt avenue office to his home on Park via. Fifth. His cheeks are rosy, his steps buoyant and in his eyes is that odd unwinking brightness of enthusiastic youth.

But much of the Fifth avenue 5 o'clock verve has gangrened. To me it will never be the same without Mrs. Belmont's coach and four, caracoling gaily from the Plaza fountain to the Washington Arch and back again. Every few blocks a herald would trumpet the approach and the avenue would pause and pivot slowly. Like so many other useless brilliances, it went out with the war.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

There are many kinds of pests, among them being some who attend movies.

They talk while talking pictures are being shown.

Certain others are always changing position, head first in one place and then in another.

Then there is the stout individual, who not only takes the necessary space to accommodate his size, but crosses his legs or folds his arms, encroaching on the space of those on either side of him.

Tapping on the back of another's seat to the musical rhythm is aggravating to the one whose seat is tapped.

Reading captions aloud is not so frequently done now as in the past, when only silent pictures were shown, but there are still offenders of this kind.

The fellow who shoves his feet through the seat in front of him and against the hat of the one who is using the seat is an irc producer.

The woman who permits her little child to stand on the seat deserves the censure she receives, since she should have taken the child down in front, where his view would be unobstructed.
